Committee Gives Priority To New Elk Lake Hospital

Operated by Staff Of St. Joseph's

By JIM HUME

A $25 million, 800-bed, acute care hospital for the Elk Lake area has been selected as the first priority in the implementation of the Agnew-Peckham recommendations for hospital services.

And the administrative staff of St. Joseph's Hospital has been recommended as the group to manage the new facility.

A special priorities committee comprised of doctors, hospital and regional hospital district board officials, made the in-camera decision Tuesday afternoon and was scheduled to present its major findings to the district's hospitals advisory committee this afternoon.

One week from today, if the advisory committee approves the priorities committee recommendation, the full regional hospital district board will be asked to endorse the move.

LONG DEBATE

The Tuesday decision came after long debate on the major steps recommended by the Toronto-based hospital consultant firm.

Agnew-Peckham stated the Greater Victoria area should move quickly to end the acute hospital bed shortage throughout the area. But it grouped priorities rather than pin-pointed step by step procedures.

In the first group were: a 200-bed extended care hospital on the grounds of St. Mary's Priory, Colwood; a new 200-bed acute care hospital near Elk Lake; and major renovations and extensions to Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospital.

The priorities committee, a sub-committee of the advisory committee which in turn is a sub-committee of the regional hospital district board, was charged with the responsibility of sorting the group into individual order.

Tuesday afternoon it arrived at the following decisions:

- Eliminate St. Joseph's as an acute care hospital and cancel plans to build a new acute care unit on the grounds of St. Ann's Academy.
- Build a new 800-bed acute care hospital in the general area of Elk Lake.
- Move the experienced administrative team from St. Joseph's to the new hospital.
- Convert the existing St. Joseph's Hospital into an extended care unit.

No decision was made on the actual site of the proposed 800-bed hospital but it is known that adequate land is available in the Elk Lake area with adequate water supply, highway proximity and near-future plans for sewage disposal.

An alternative site, under discussion for some weeks and recommended by the Capital Region Planning Board, would see the new hospital located at the junction of McKenzie Avenue and Douglas.

The latter site has run into considerable criticism during earlier debates.

OBJECTIONS

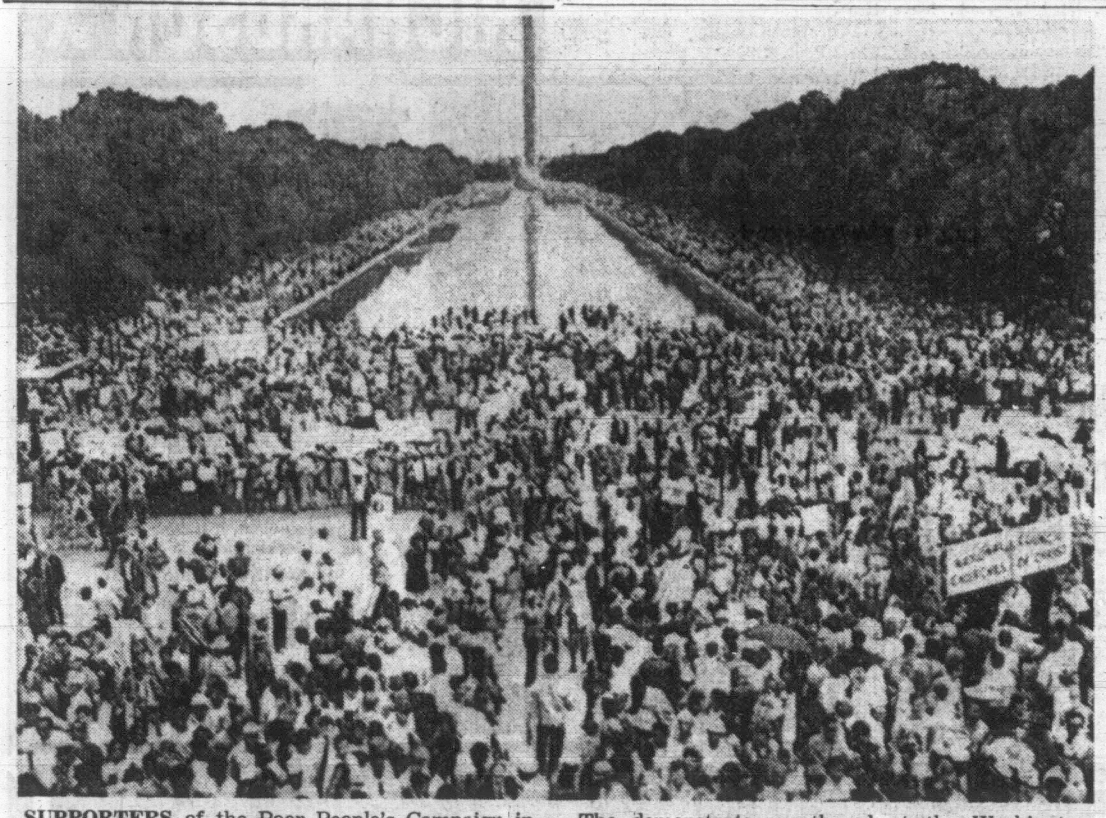

No serious setbacks to the new hospital proposal were expected at this afternoon's meeting but strenuous objections to the recommendation were expected from Rest Haven Hospital authorities.

UPPER AMAZON HIT BY SEVERE TREMOR

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A strong earthquake struck the upper Amazon Basin about 400 miles north of Lima today and first reports said 11 persons were killed and 17 injured.

Hardest hit was the agricultural town of Moyobamba, on the east side of the Andes and 390 miles north of Lima. The quake measured an estimated six on the nine-point Richter Scale, the National Scientific Observatory said.

'Last Non-Violent March' Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Americans marched from the grounds of the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial today to demand a greater government effort to abolish poverty.

The half-mile march took the demonstrators within yards of the plywood and canvass shelters of Resurrection City, home of most of the Poor People's Campaigners who arrived in the nation's capital six weeks ago.

The march never officially started. People just began to move from the tall marble monument to the Lincoln Memorial. One large group was led by Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers Union.

Actor Ossie Davis told the crowd at the monument that "we are advised that the crowd is now 35,000 and heading for 50,000."

ALL PARTICIPATED

It was the climatic demonstration of the Poor People's Campaign for jobs, housing, education and welfare benefits for the poor. Blacks and whites, poor and affluent participated in the demonstration. Some wore business suits, others frayed overalls.

About 4,300 police and members of the National Guard patrolled the area. The demonstration was pledged to non-violence by Rev. Ralph Abernathy, head of the organizing Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

But in a speech at the Lincoln Memorial, Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, said: "This may be the last march which is non-violent and which brings blacks and whites together."

"The nation and the Congress must listen to us now, before it is too late; before the prophets of violence replace the prophets of peace and justice."

N. Vietnamese Death Toll High

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. marines killed 128 North Vietnamese troops in a day-long battle Tuesday near the remote Khe Sanh base after a dawn Communist attack, an American military spokesman said here today.

The marines, who lost 11 men killed and 30 wounded in the clash, received heavy support from helicopter gunships and artillery.

'PM Destroying Goodwill Spirit' Says Stanfield

(Special to the Times)

STE. HYACINTHE, Que. —Robert Stanfield said today that Liberals are dividing the country and he accused Prime Minister Trudeau of destroying the constitutional goodwill built up in the last year.

He also derided Mr. Trudeau for talking about Mozart, an 18th century composer, rather than economic issues in the June 25 election campaign.

"In a sense, I think he is living in the 18th century," Mr. Stanfield said of the Liberal leader.

He said he doesn't blame Liberals for trying to distract attention from "the economic mess" they had made.

"I do blame them for misrepresenting our position. I do blame them for trying to divide the country.

"Canada had been making progress constitutionally. Mr. Trudeau is destroying this. In the course of eight weeks he has destroyed most of the goodwill built up by the Robarts conference and the federal-provincial conference presided over by Mr. Pearson."

CROWDS SMALL, WARM

Mr. Stanfield, moving by helicopter through eastern Quebec in rainy weather, ran into small but warm crowds at Jacques Cartier and Cowansville.

In Shawville Tuesday night Mr. Stanfield charged that the Prime Minister is an accomplice to a smear campaign.

He told a cheering crowd of more than 500 supporters in the western Quebec community that Liberal - sponsored advertisements in Alberta and New

BRANDT ACCUSES REDS OF TORPEDOING PEACE

BONN (UPI) — Foreign Minister Willy Brandt today accused East Germany of deliberately provoking a new crisis over Berlin in hopes of torpedoing efforts to relax tensions between East and West.

Brandt's charge came on a memorable day in postwar Berlin history—the anniversary of the beginning of the Soviet blockade of the isolated western outpost in 1948. That blockade lasted 11 months, ending only after a massive western airlift demonstrated the city could not be starved into submission by closure of land and water routes.

Brandt told a news conference in Bonn that he made the same accusation during an eight-hour meeting with Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrassimov in East Berlin Tuesday.

LEADERS SPLIT

Saigon Gov't About to Fall?

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's capital buzzed today with reports that the month-old government of Premier Tran Van Huong may be on the verge of collapse.

Parliamentary sources said Huong told a group of legislators Monday he was thinking of resigning because of differences with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

But Huong accompanied Thieu to the northern city of Hue today and was present for Thieu's long-delayed proclamation of national mobilization. Associates said the premier made the trip to demonstrate solidarity with Thieu. Other sources said the crisis remains unresolved.

'Won't Ask More Troops'

HUE (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu signed South Vietnam's general mobilization law today and said his governmentt will not ask for more U.S. and other allied troops.

"The Vietnamese government intends to take over more responsibility," Thieu told reporters after ceremonies marking Armed Forces Day.

In the past, Thieu has said more troops were needed above the contribution of 596,000 men by the U.S., Australia, New Zealand and others to ensure an accelerated victory.

Thieu said the general mobilization should add 125,000 men to the regular and militia forces of South Vietnam, bringing their number to almost 875,000 by the end of the next year.

The law also makes 16- and 17-year-olds and men between 38 and 50 eligible for service in local self-defence units. More than 170,000 men already are members of these locals forces.

U.S. officials say the United States has agreed to equip some of the men.

Charges Swapped In Paris

PARIS (CP) — North Vietnam accused the United States today of lack of good faith in the Paris peace talks. Striking back, the U.S. delegation accused North Vietnam of a grotesque distortion of American aims in the conflict.

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnamese ambassador, told U.S. Anbassador W. Averell Harriman the United States had been escalating its fight despite President Johnson's statement that he was de-escalating the war. He claimed the number of air strikes on the North had increased from 2,500 in March to 4,700 in May.

Harriman called Thuy's speech "quite a strong attack" and indicated it had forced him to change his own statement in the meeting today—the ninth since May 13.

He denounced "indiscriminate attacks and shelling of Saigon" by the Communists.

Harriman said the United States wants to make peace on the basis of the Geneva accords of 1954. He sketched a five-point program which he said the United States favors.

FREE ELECTIONS

The essence of the 14-year-old agreement which the United States advocated today, Harriman told Thuy, is "military disengagement, restoration of the status of the demilitarized zone, the renunciation of the use of force, international supervision, and elections free from coercion or outside interference."

Seaway Strike 'Almost Certain'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's support of the St. Lawrence seaway authority in its wage dispute with seaway workers makes a strike Friday "almost unavoidable," a union spokesman said today.

Mr. Trudeau said in a telegram Tuesday to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers that the six-per-cent wage increases this year and next offered by the seaway authority are "fair and reasonable."

The union has said the 1,200 seaway workers will strike Friday morning if they are not given nine-per-cent increases in each of the next two years.

HOPE IS DIMMED

"Mr. Trudeau's statement dimmed whatever hope we had of reaching a settlement," the union said.

Local unions have been alerted that a strike is "almost certain," he said.

Transport Minister Hellyer said after a cabinet meeting today he hoped the union would agree to meet the seaway authority again and seek "an amicable settlement."

WILL NOT BUDGE

A spokesman for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority said an approach to the union was made Monday, suggesting they talk about a one-year or longer contract in place of the two-year one which has been discussed. But he said the government agency would not budge from its position that it cannot offer more than six-per-cent wage increases a year.

Bryce Mackasey, a minister without portfolio who has had special responsibility for the labor department, said in Montreal the federal government would not block a strike.

Seaway workers went on strike two years ago and won a 30-per-cent wage increase, which touched off a wave of increases in other fields and charges the government was abetting inflation.

The Canadian seaway workers are seeking parity with their American counterparts.

WIRE BRIEFS

Missiles Moved?

HUE (AP)—The top U.S. and South Vietnamese commanders flew to the northern war zone today to check on reports of helicopter sightings around the demilitarized zone. General officers speculated that North Vietnamese men were ferrying in Soviet Styx missiles to prey on naval craft offshore.

N.Z. Freezes Prices

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — New Zealand government announced a two-month price freeze today following a labor arbitration court decision not to allow wage increases. The freeze pegged prices at levels prevailing Monday.

Witness Killed

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—A man apparently standing by and watching as sheriff's deputies approached a house early today was shot and killed. A deputy was wounded but not seriously. The man who fired the shots was still at large hours later, Sheriff Clarence McKay said.

Toronto Turns It On —25,000 Greet Pierre

TORONTO (CP) — High noon on Bay Street: Enter the prime minister. Workers from the heart of Toronto's financial district were out to lunch — and some were actually eating while chanting along in today's swinging parade for Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Skirts — maxi, mini and various in-betweens — mingled with business suits as thousands lined the streets and perched from lofty ledges in pied piper disciplineship to Trudeau's motorcade towards city hall.

The crowds filed and fanned outward, but no one would hazard a guess as to how many were there. Police, who kept the throngs orderly — nearly reverent — said they had seen bigger assemblies. One said: "I saw them bigger but I don't know when."

RCMP officers with telescopic-sight rifles took up rooftop vantage points along the route.

First in the procession came Bobby Gimby and a tiny troupe singing Ca-na-da, followed by a long queue of open cars with hopefuls from Ontario ridings.

At the city hall square, some estimated the crowd had gtown to 25,000 as Mr. Trudeau began his speech. There, too, it was orderly, as the public address system blared.

DOUGLAS MAKES PROMISE

NDP Would Eliminate Tuition Fees

REGINA (CP) — A New Democratic Party government would eliminate tuition fees for all students continuing beyond the secondary school level, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said Tuesday.

Previous federal governments must share the blame for a "tragic waste of the talents and energies" of millions of young Canadians who were victims of unequal educational opportunities, Mr. Douglas said in a speech prepared for delivery at a party rally.

No government was more guilty in this area than the present Liberal administration, which "welched on their promise" to provide 10,000 scholarships of $1,000 each for needy students seeking to attend university.

The Liberals had also stopped aid to the building of technical schools and cancelled direct aid programs for the universities.

Mr. Douglas said the NDP is committed to federal action in education for payment of tuition for all post-secondary students, a program of scholarships and bursaries, a student housing program and direct capital grants to universities for expansion purposes.

WANTS MORE SCHOOLS

The party also proposed capital grants to set up post-secondary technical and vocational schools and a federal education office through which development funds for education would be channelled.

Mr. Douglas said federal involvement in education, a matter of provincial responsibility under the constitution, might be seen by some as an infringement of provincial rights.

"Quebec might well wish to stay out of such a program—to do so is her right."

But he felt the people of every other province would jump at the chance for increased federal aid. If necessary, there could be two programs, one for Quebec and another for the other provinces. But there was a need for action now.

Just because politicians lack the will to work together, there was no need to penalize Canadian youth.

A text of Mr. Douglas' remarks was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Mr. Douglas made a pitch for pensioners' votes when addressing a crowd of more than 350 persons at Moose Jaw earlier.

An NDP government would "immediately raise the old age pension to $125 a month effective at 65 years of age," he said.

CAMPAIGN ROUNDUP

Council of Churches Disavows Hate Papers

TORONTO — Two church organizations today issued statements denying any connection with the distribution of what has been called hate literature impugning the character of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Donald Macdonald, acting justice minister, last week termed the pamphlets "as senseless and as unreasonable as the anti-Jewish literature that was published in Germany in 1938."

Mr. Macdonald said some of the pamphlets were authorized by Rev. Harold Slade, minister of Jarvis Street Baptist Church and president of the Canadian Council of Evangelical Protestant Churches.

The Canadian Council of Churches today said it was worried that use of the term "council of churches" had caused some confusion.

"For this reason, it is apparently necessary to go on record that the Canadian Council of Churches, and its member bodies . . . are in no way involved, and repudiate this whole cowardly practice of the character smear as expressed in the current hate literature."

The Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec said in a statement stories about Mr. Slade and the pamphlets had caused the convention some embarrassment. The statement said that "for clarification" Jarvis Street Baptist Church is not a member of the convention.

Mr. Slade told his congregation Sunday there is nothing in the 24-page pamphlets he authorized that has any relation to hate.

He said his object in issuing the pamphlets was to prevent election of anyone "who may be tainted with or show sympathy or tendency toward the evil philosophy of materialistic and atheistic communism."

Mr. Slade had been challenged by Abraham Feinberg to debate next Sunday the "moral and religious issues" raised by the literature. Mr. Slade replied in a telegram the pamphlets contained only truth and therefore were not debatable.

LONDON, Ont.—The national office of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada has protested to the postmaster-general about the distribution of what local carriers term "hate literature" through the mail in London.

Roger Decaire, LCUC national president, said in Ottawa Monday the protest was being considered by a special committee at the post office department.

The protest was lodged after members of Local 4, LCUC, London, complained to their union executive about delivering pamphlets to London East householders from Martin Weiche.

Mr. Weiche, chairman of the Canadian National Socialist Party, is seeking election June 25 in the federal riding of London East.

Several letter carriers—especially Second World War veterans—Thursday said they wanted the public to know they were distributing the pamphlets against their better judgment.

The pamphlets urge the electorate to resist and curb "the world-wide conspiracy of organized Jewry."

VANCOUVER—Ron Basford, Vancouver Centre Liberal candidate, says tens of thousands of hate pamphlets are being circulated in Vancouver ridings.

They attack Prime Minister Trudeau for alleged communist affiliation in the past, he said.

Mr. Basford told a coffee party meeting that "hate mongers, bigots and crackpots" had got into the election campaign.

Mr. Basford said the campaign is being well-financed by the Canadian Intelligence Service of Flesherton, Ont.

"People think this is some sort of official body when in fact it is made up of a group of mentally-sick private citizens," he said.

Mr. Basford's campaign manager said later it had first last week and was beginning to effect voters from eastern last week and eas beginning to effect voters from eastern Europe who have an "irrational fear of Communism."

WINNIPEG — Prime Minister Trudeau's attitude toward his own province of Quebec is an example of great political courage, former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday.

Miss LaMarsh, who describes herself as a "retired politician" and who said she would never serve in a cabinet with Mr. Trudeau after he was elected Liberal leader last fall, made the comment at a coffee party for James Richardson, Liberal candidate in the Winnipeg South riding.

"What Pierre Trudeau has done is of the highest political courage," she said. "He has taken his feeling for one Canada and told the people to choose."

"What Pierre Trudeau has done is of the highest political courage," she said. "He has taken his feeling for one Canada and told the people to choose."

Miss LaMarsh said Mr. Trudeau has told "his own people they can't nibble away at Canada and still have one Canada."

"I have not seen courage like that before."

VANCOUVER — Nurse Garry can stay. An eviction notice served on her because she had election posters in her apartment window has been withdrawn.

Miss Helen Garry was ordered to leave her West End apartment last week because the owners objected to her displaying New Democratic Party posters in the third floor windows. They quoted a rental agreement which banned "trade, business, professional or advertising notices."

But Tuesday, landlady Mrs. Howard Symons said she has dropped the eviction order after being visited by Vancouver Centre NDP candidate Bill Deverell, a lawyer.

Mrs. Symons said she and her husband are convinced they are within their legal rights to insist on removal of the posters —in spite of arguments to the contrary by Mr. Deverell.

"But we are so tired of the publicity we decided to drop the whole thing and allow Miss Garry to stay on with her posters," she said in an interview.

"Miss Garry is a good tenant — and the election will soon be over anyway."

"Another day, another 50 cents!"

. . . HOSPITAL

If the recommendations of the priorities committee are accepted it would spell the end of the hopes of the Seventh Day Adventists to operate a major acute care hospital in the area. It would probably, however, leave room for the continued operations of a small hospital at the north end of the Saanich Peninsula or the conversion of Rest Haven into an extended care unit.

Hospitals, priority committee and advisory committee officials this morning refused comment on the Tuesday decision other than to confirm that it had been made.

They warned that while the recommendation is a major step towards solving hospital problems, it is only a recommendation and that even if approved by all subsequent committees and boards it would still require final approval from the provincial government.

LOFFMARK MEETING

Next Wednesday morning a select committee of the regional hospital district board comprised of Mayors Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, Hugh Curtis, Saanich, Jim Cumming, North Saanich, and William Long, board executive secretary, is scheduled to meet Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to discuss the financial implications of major construction.

The group will be seeking the answer to the big question: How far will the provincial government go financially in implementing the Agnew-Peckham report?

Cost-sharing arrangements at present involve the provincial government for 60 per cent of capital costs, the regional hospital district for 40 per cent of the cost.

The group hopes to be able to take a definite provincial government decision to the June 26 meeting of the region hospital district.

The priorities committee decision has already caused some confusion in hospital ranks.

PLANS SCRAPPED?

St. Joseph's officials, who declined comment pending the official word from the regional district, some weeks ago hired Dr. Harvey Agnew, father of the master plan for the district, to update their long-range projects and advise them on new hospital construction adjacent to the existing hospital.

Adoption of the new concept would presumably scrap their plans for future downtown development.

At Rest Haven, administrator Thomas Bradley, informed of the decision by the Times, also declined comment until he gets the official word.

"You've spoiled my dinner, that's about all I can say. It comes as a bit of a shock because I haven't been informed not even by a slight hint. I can't say anything else at this time."

Driver Fined $1,200

BURNS LAKE (CP) — Ernest Neville, 21, of the Endako River settlement of Palling, was fined $1,200 Tuesday for dangerous driving. He was charged following the death last Oct. 7 of Michael Bayduza of Decker Lake in a single-car accident on Highway 16 west of here. Neville was given nine months to pay.

PM's English Showed; But the Crowd Loved It

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. — "Roller skating Wednesday, Friday, Sunday," it said on one side of the marquee at the Fort William Gardens Tuesday. On the other: "Trudeau tonight."

Inside there were 7,000 people, most of them, this time, well past the age of the arena's roller-skating regulars. A dress in Trudeau Orange, it appeared, can also be worn with grey hair.

He was tired, tired enough for his English to show occasionally the wear of working all day in his second language.

In compensation he got an audience that was ready to cheer every punchline, and the best response of the day to his customary brief switch into French.

He had just come from Saskatoon where his few words of French had, finally, been applauded, but had also drawn a few shouts of "Shut up, frog," "Speak English," and "What's he saying?"

PARTY MEN FOOLED

And at the Lakehead, local party men, as usual, advised against speaking French or talking about national unity. The people, it was argued, weren't ready or interested.

The local party men ended up hearing for themselves the approving roars when he spoke in French and in English about "one Canada with two official languages." The Trudeau speech at Fort William was basically the same speech as he had made in the morning at the Calgary Stampede grounds to 3,000 people, to 2,500 at noon in Medicine Hat, to some 3,500 in mid-afternoon at Riverside Park in Saskatoon. And, with the roles of the two languages reversed, it was basically the same speech he had made in Quebec City Saturday night.

Responses varied. Only in Saskatoon was he called a "frog." Only in Saskatoon did he have to plead, unsuccessfully, with two plucky policemen who dragged out a youth who had just been doing some mild heckling.

The boy waved his one free arm — the police had him around the neck —while the prime minister shouted, "Oh, let him alone. Let him — come on, let him — oh, leave him alone officer."

The boy was still waving. The police were still hauling him through the crowd. The prime minister let out a disgusted, "Oh, what the hell."

To this he added, "In order to have the just society you don't seem to want, you have to have fundamental human liberties."

His best lines got varying reception. In the morning in Calgary he got a roar of laughter when, attacking Conservative constitutional policy, he said, "Maybe they don't have a two-nation policy. They certainly have a two-policy policy."

But this one went dead at Medicine Hat on the first try. He gave them "two-policy policy" again. Still no reaction.

In Saskatoon the laugh came, but slowly. Fort William caught it on cue.

At all stops there were a few dissenting placards. Saskatoon's were the wittiest. For example: "Ask not what I can do for your country, ask what you can do for Trudeau." This, set in quotation marks, was signed, "P. E. T."

VANDERHOOF, B.C. (CP)— A search is continuing for three men missing and presumed drowned in Tatuk Lake, about 60 miles south of here in north-central British Columbia. The three were identified Tuesday as Edmond Eugene Jones, Ronald Allan Martin and his brother Larry Lester Martin, all residents of Vanderhoof and believed to be in their twenties.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cooler air has moved into the province overnight behind the system which passed through Vancouver Tuesday evening. Cloud and showers have persisted in most areas overnight except for the Kootenays where only a few clouds were reported. A gradual improvement is expected today as a ridge of high pressure slowly builds into southern B.C. This will give general sunshine Thursday except for showers in extreme northern B.C. Temperatures will be a little warmer Thursday.

SUPPORTER SCORES VICTORY IN SENATE BID

McCarthy Delegate Win Jolts Humphrey Forces

"ENCOURAGED" with his reception by Republican leaders in the House of Representatives, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is seeking support for his presidential nomination. Behind the governor is Rep. Gerald Ford, of Michigan. (AP Wirephoto.)

ALBANY (AP) — Senator Eugene J. McCarthy jolted state Democratic forces today by overpowering Humphrey and Kennedy delegate slates while a McCarthy supporter scored an upset victory in a three-way Senate race.

While McCarthy added the delegates to his presidential bid, his aides charged in Washington the Democratic national convention leadership had been stacked in favor of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The Minnesota senator jubilantly hailed the results of the state's primary as one of his greatest victories.

Partial returns slowed by hand-counting of paper ballots gave McCarthy 51 of the 123 Democratic convention delegate slots at stake.

HUMPHREY GETS ONE

Delegates who said they were remaining pledged to the ideals of the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy won 20 while backers of Humphrey had one.

The voting trend indicated that McCarthy would maintain the wide lead in delegates.

The surprise Senate victor was Paul O'Dwyer, a former city councilman and brother of the late former mayor of New York City.

Adam Clayton Powell of Harlem, denied his congressional seat last year, won nomination for re-election and so did Representative Emanuel Cellers, 80-year-old chairman of the House of Representatives judiciary committee.

The convention leadership stacking charge came after the appointment Tuesday of House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma as permanent convention chairman, and Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana as platform chairman.

A statement issued by McCarthy's headquarters called Boggs an "extreme hawk" on the Vietnam war and said both Boggs and Albert are strong supporters and confidants of President Johnson.

"We feel strongly," said McCarthy campaign chairman Blair Clark, "that they have stacked the convention leadership."

In some states, primaries test the public's opinion of presidential hopefuls. But this was not the case in New York, where for the first time voters selected delegates to party conventions at which the presidential candidates will be chosen. Previously, the picking of delegates was done at state conventions.

McCarthy delegates were entered in 37 of the state's 41 congressional districts. Slates pledged to Humphrey ran in 25 and delegates pledged to Kennedy in 30.

While the Minnesota senator's feat impressed political observers, O'Dwyer's triumph was even more startling. He was expected to finish last in a three-way race. He was running as a McCarthy adherent.

On the Republican side, supporters of Richard M. Nixon put up challengers for only 11 of the 82 delegate slots. The remaining 71 went automatically to Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Of the 11, two went to Nixon, two to Rockefeller and seven were undecided.

ENGLAND VULNERABLE TO LUNG DISEASES

VANCOUVER (CP) — England leads the world in the incidence of respiratory diseases because of the double threat of air pollution and cigarette smoking, Dr. Leslie Wolloston, president of the British Tuberculosis Association, said here Tuesday.

He said the death rate in England from bronchitis and pneumonia is 115 per 100,000, compared to a rate half that or less in other countries.

FOR NOMINATION

Rockefeller Bid May Cost $3 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Governor Nelson Rockefeller's high-powered advertising campaign to sway voters and influence delegates to the Republican nominating convention may cost as much as $3,000,000 to $4,000,000.

The campaign was launched last week with a half-hour television broadcast seen on 160 stations in the CBS network and with two full-page newspaper advertisements in 43 newspapers in 33 cities across the U.S.

Every week until the Republican delegates convene in Miami Aug. 5 three one-minute commercials on network television will explain to the public—in Rockefeller's words — "Why I run for President."

The television spots will be echoed in full-page ads, worded similarly to the commercials and placed in the 43 newspapers once a week for the next six weeks.

While Rockefeller's offices would not disclose costs, one press officer admitted that the $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 estimate is "a good ballpark figure."

Included in this estimate is the half-hour television speech which could cost as much as $750,000, the one-minute commercials which would run for $30,000 to $70,000 each, and the full-page advertisements which are known to be as high as $6,960, the cost of a full-page ad in the New York Times.

In addition, the Rockefeller press officer said more half-hour broadcasts and radio advertisements were being considered.

POLL SHOWS SMALL SWING TO GAULLISTS

PARIS (Reuters) — A public opinion poll published today forecast a swing to the Gaullists Sunday in the first round of voting in French general elections.

The poll, which appeared in the newspaper Le Figaro, indicated a swing away from Francois Mitterrand's Federation of the Left and the Communists, and a slight drop in outright support for the Communists.

It also showed a 1.2 per cent swing in favor of the small extreme left-wing Unified Socialist party lead by former premier Pierre Mendes-France. Its percentage rose to 3.5.

The survey was conducted June 12 and 13 by the organization Sofres Societe Francaise D'Etudes et de Sondages.

The poll showed the Gaullists and their allies would win 39.5 per cent of the vote while the left-wing federation would get 17.5 per cent.

This showed a 1.7 per cent swing to the Gaullists and their allies and a 1.3 per cent drop in support for the left-wing federation, compared with the first round of the elections in March, 1967. It also showed a .5 per cent drop in support for the Communists, to 22 per cent.

BOMB EXPLODES

In Clouange in eastern France, centre left candidate Claude Fargeot and an aide were injured—neither seriously—when a bomb exploded as he turned the ignition key of his car.

At Alfortville near Paris, left-wing federation candidate Dieudonne Duriez said today he was attacked by three men armed with axe handles while he was sticking up election posters in this constituency.

There seemed little sign of any breakthrough today in solving France's outstanding industrial disputes although the strike movement now is confined to 200,000 militants who refuse to return to work. Two weeks ago almost 10,000,000 workers were on strike.

Still immobilized are the Peugeot, Citroen and Berliet auto factories, the Usinor steel foundries at Dunkerque, sectors of the electrical and electronics industries and the state-run radio and television network.

Suspect Hunted

CALGARY (CP) — Police are still searching for a man wanted for questioning in the death last Friday of Patricia Ann Beaton, 15, of Calgary. Polic said several persons reported seeing a man in the area where her body had been found, who was described as about 40, six feet tall and weighing 180 pounds.

Diagnosis and Remedy

IN MANY OF HIS SPEECHES across the country, Prime Minister Trudeau has made it very clear that the English-French schism, which was the chief domestic controversy before the election campaign engaged Canadian attention, is by no means the only incentive for active measures to improve national unity. There are many other fronts on which dissension must be healed and the essential integration and co-operation of Canadians fostered.

Mr. Trudeau has mentioned British Columbia itself in this regard, with its Social Credit government trying to emphasize the province's separateness due to economics, geography and political opportunism. That is not a concept held by the people, of course, but it has engrossed the thoughts and inspired the words of British Columbia cabinet members on numerous occasions. There is the separateness of the Maritimes, divided from the rest of Canada by a wall of economic need. There is the disparity between the agricultural prairies and the industrial east, between rural and urban populations, between rich and poor, between races. There is the gulf between many individuals throughout this country, originating in ignorance and perpetuated by lack of communication.

Communication emerges as the key to dispelling separateness, and the need for communication — indeed, the determination to foster it —has been a salient point in Mr. Trudeau's messages to the public. The Trudeau "civil dialogue" has not yet been described in detail. Obviously it has not yet been worked out in its entirety. But it does exist as a commitment of a Trudeau administration, and it will call for the involvement of more and more Canadians in political affairs at every level of government. Mr. Trudeau has spoken of organized channels of communication which will convey public opinion to the government and ensure that the electors and the elected maintain a liaison that will promote national unity.

Mr. Trudeau is very much aware of the problems of disunity which afflict many other countries today. Speaking here on Monday he mentioned Britain, France and the United States as struggling to master serious divisions among their people — divisions which eventually could disrupt and even destroy a state. Canada, too, could fall victim to divisive trends which are so common in the world. It is a measure of Mr. Trudeau's great Canadianism that he alone among the country's party leaders has recognized the latent dangers and sought to counter them with a definite policy before they can become too strong.

National unity, and national communication to foster it: these are two major objectives of the Liberal program for the future; these are a direct commitment of the Liberal leader. They are vitally important to Canada, and essential ingredients of any viable state in the unpredictable days to come.

Pacific Power Over Fisheries?

WHILE THE LIBERAL GOVernment has committed itself to the Roberts Bank superport and the campaigning Conservative leadership gives generalized pledges to foster Canada's development as a Pacific power, across the ocean Japan is involved in a territorial difficulty which could be of substantial concern to this country. Japan is regaining, amicably, islands wrested from her by the United States in the fierce fighting of the South Pacific. Less optimistic is her prospect of reclaiming some of the islands of the north taken by Soviet Russia.

The latter are significant in the Japanese economy largely because of their fishing resources. Shikotan and the Habomais will be restored when Japan and Russia sign a peace treaty. More doubtful is the possibility that Japan will recover Etorofu and Kunashiri. These are viewed by Moscow as valuable links in the defensive chain around the Sea of Okhotsk.

As long as the present situation is maintained, Russia may be expected to continue her seizure of boats and fishermen poaching in what the Soviets consider to be their waters around the islands. And while this prevails, Japan will be forced to seek essential fish supplies, needed both for export and to feed her own people, in other areas of the Pacific.

In consequence, both the United States and Canada must view with decreasing expectations an eventual favorable renewal or replacement of the North Pacific salmon fisheries agreement, now expired. In its original form, a clause of the agreement fenced off a major part of the eastern Pacific from Japanese fishermen. When renewal talks were started a year or two ago, Japan, no longer supine from defeat, adopted a tougher attitude toward the question. It is still unsettled. As the Russians hold the Japanese away from what used to be important fishing grounds for them, the search for alternatives exerts pressure eastward.

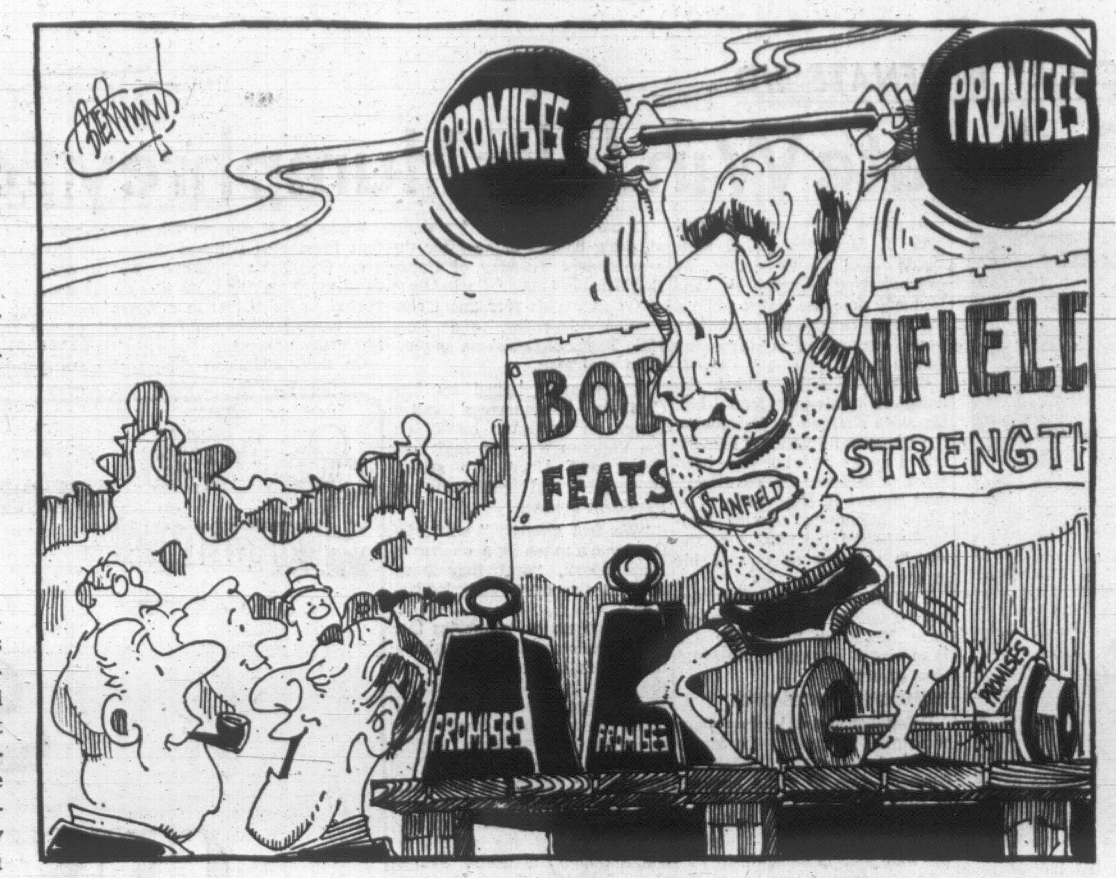

As a Pacific power, Canada must be closely concerned by any such trend, and by the background events which produce it.

New Emphasis on Gun Safety

AS A NATURAL AFTERMATH of the Robert Kennedy shooting, Canadian authorities have shown concern for the political leaders now campaigning in this country and have increased security precautions for the Prime Minister on his many vulnerable appearances before crowds throughout the country. It is just as appropriate that Canadian concern should be focused on gun laws in this nation. In some respects they are dangerously lax.

Proposed amendments to existing legislation on the issue have been talked out during recent sessions of parliament. While the nature of the proposals has not been drastic, as phrased in the different motions put to the Commons, with some regularity strong opponents have risen to criticize any further regulation of firearms' ownership and use. Canadian laws are probably better than federal United States laws concerning hand guns. But they remain hazardously carefree in respect to rifles and shotguns.

Statistics for 1966, for instance, show that 904 Canadians died from gunshots; 609 of them suicides, 197 accidents and 98 homicides. As columnist Richard Purser noted in discussion on this page of the dangers of gun ownership in the United States, easy access to firearms is a traceable factor in this toll. Under the impact of violence and murder in the United States, the Canadian parliament at its next session may be expected to review our own situation.

"They must be hollow."

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

The Recoil Hazard in a Seaways Strike

ALTHOUGH the strike of St. Lawrence Seaway workers, timed for June 21, is plainly an effort to pressure the government on the eve of the general election, it may have the unintended effect of damaging the New Democrats as the party most closely associated with the labor unions. No government would welcome closure of the seaway at a time when there is already concern in the western provinces over the movement of wheat. Prime Minister Trudeau will presumably not lack advice from those who feel that, for political reasons, a settlement is imperative. But a costly intervention would probably be a grave mistake damaging both to the economy and to the government's political prospects.

Western

While the Pearson government, in sanctioning a 30 per cent settlement on the Seaway two years ago, did not intend to set a pattern for other wage negotiations, it is a fact well remembered by the public that the award was taken as a signal by other unions and much quoted by them in subsequent appearances before conciliation boards. In the months that followed the gains achieved by powerful unions bore no obvious relationship to productivity and the inflationary surge carried prices to unprecedented levels.

Dismal Precedent

This must appear a dismal precedent to Mr. Trudeau who has been preaching restraint across the country and practising it by his refusal to make spending commitments. If would seem, in the present temper of the country, that the government has much to gain by resisting the heavy demands being served on its agency, the seaway authority — 18 per cent over two years, with 9 per cent of it retroactive to the beginning of 1968.

Assuming that the government stands firm and the shutdown occurs, the NDP will once again find itself in one of those situations of embarrassment which have recurred fairly regularly since it first emerged, to the acclaim of the unions, from its CCF chrysalis.

Since the era of the horizontal railway freight increases, which used to follow wage settlements as winter follows fall, it has been difficult to argue persuasively that there is an identity of interests among farmers and unionists. In recent years shipping tieups have been not infrequent and each has been a harsh reminder of the ability of small, strategically placed groups, to place in jeopardy the markets of western producers.

Thus a pre-election strike of this character might very well recoil on the party which most clearly identified itself with union interest and in fact relies rather heavily upon union deductions to sustain its political campaigns.

Lewis Argument

At the time of the great wage settlements David Lewis, deputy leader of the NDP, sought to allay concern among other groups by arguing that increased wages were not responsible for increased prices. That this is not the view of the Economic Council of Canada is apparent from its very striking comment on wage parity with the United States as advocated by some unions with the sympathetic backing of the NDP. Speaking of Canada and the United States, the council said in its third annual review:

"A general attempt to bypass or leapfrog essential parts of the catching-up process would be bound to lead to an offsetting adjustment of some kind through the balance of external payments and the domestic price level. If one could imagine parity of money for every Canadian citizen being decreed by order-in-council at 10 o'clock in the morning, one could equally well imagine parity of real incomes being repealed in the foreign exchange market before 3 o'cock the same afternoon."

Plainly, therefore, there is a relationship between wage and price increases. Moreover, large demands by one group, especially if sanctioned by government, do tend to set a pattern. The same review drew specific attention to the seaway workers and the St. Lawrence longshoremen settlements, observing; "to a greater extent than in previous economic expansions, large settlements in the public sector of the economy have played a prominent role in the general evolution of collective bargaining during 1965 and 1966."

Since the NDP ardently defended the wage settlements, it is peculiarly vulnerable. For it is difficult to see how it could be expected to put up much opposition to future demands of this sort.

In enunciating his policy for agriculture at Saskatoon, T. C. Douglas offered a price review board with authority to investigate costs of items used on farms and "all necessary power to prevent unjustified price increases."

There is an obvious initial difficulty here because the federal government lacks the constitutional power to move into this field in the manner suggested.

In any case the NDP has not defined an "unjustified" increase. Suppose it results directly from a wage increase secured by a union. Will the board order a roll-back of wages and, if so, will this be countenanced by a government closely identified with the unions?

But this is not all. It is perfectly clear that the NDP approved all the inflationary settlements; indeed, in some cases, it claimed credit for nagging the government into them. There is no reason to believe that it would adopt a different attitude in office. How could a board, which was an emanation of the government, order a roll-back of prices forced up by a settlement sanctioned by the government?

The NDP is obviously and understandably anxious to avoid identification with a single interest. It has in fact had a good deal of success in recruiting fine candidates, many of them from the professions and a number from small business. The difficulty is that in these disputes involving interest conflicts, it functions in parliament as the political arm of a single group.

In the circumstances a seaway tie-up, although unwelcome to the government, might prove the least desirable form of political advertising for the New Democratic Party.

Letters to the Editor

Tribute

Many Victorians were saddened at the news of the recent death of Dr. Ettore Mazzoleni. The principal of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto since 1946, Dr. Mazzoleni has made a lasting impression on Canadian music and musicians. His sudden death at 62 marks a loss to all Canada.

Dr. Mazzoleni was born in Switzerland and raised in England. He studied music at Oxford, the Royal College of Music, and came under the influence of composer Ralph Vaughan williams.

Dr. Mazzoleni has visited Victoria every few years, and we were always impressed by his sincere interest in our young musicians. One of his quoted remarks expresses his own thoughts—"Music, if it is to be of value and survive, must express the heart and soul."—Carla Levinson, corresponding secretary, The Toronto Conservatory Alumni, Victoria Chapter.

House of All Sorts

It has been the role of the Conservatives to provide a welcome touch of comedy to the otherwise drab business of choosing a government to manage our national affairs for the next few years.

Latest example was the invitation by David Kilgour, Conservative candidate in Vancouver Centre, for those who do not support him (and their numbers must be legion) to vote for a socialist NDP member to represent them. Good sound Conservative principle there.

Then up in Red Deer the Conservative convention palmed off on the constituency the former Social Credit leader, a champion of funny money.

Most extraordinary revolution of all was Mr. Robert Stanfield's cordial welcome into the Tory fold of former colleagues and disciples of Union Nationale's late nefarious Maurice Duplessis. What a charming picture is conjured up at the spectacle of good old-fashioned Tory loyalists swallowing Premier Daniel Johnson's policy of severing ties with Crown and Commonwealth.

Imagination boggles at the kind of policy this mixed bag of irreconcilables would evolve if called upon to work together in office.—C. Norman Senior, 1178 Beach.

Prescient ?

I would like to rebut Mr. S. W. M. Greer's letter of June 15, concerning the national flag of Canada.

He states that in June, 1964, he passed through Peterborough, Ontario, and saw "hundreds of Red Ensigns" flying and only one "Pearson pennant".

I would like to remind Mr. Greer that the flag of Canada was not adopted by the Parliament of Canada until the following December 15, so how could he see any at all? The following February 15, 1965, it was proclaimed by Her Majesty the Queen as the flag of Canada. And so it shall remain. — E. V. Wood, 1300 Yates.

Looking Back

From the Times, June 19, 1908.

Tomorrow is the day of the rose show. This is a great society event and not only that but everyone who likes the old British emblem wil be out to see what the capital city, the most Engoish city in Canada, can do in raising the national emblem.

Mrs. Barnard and Mrs. Burton with the assistance of other delicate fingers have converted the hall into a semblance of fairyland.

Many people are looking forward to the event.

Who Kills The Ibo?

By TIM TRAYNOR from London

MORE and more Britons are throwing their weight behind a drive to halt the sale of British arms to Nigeria. The simmering Nigerian issue has become a major government preoccupation following the breakdown of the Uganda peace talks between representatives of the federal government and the breakaway state of Biafra. In the absence of the hoped-for ceasefire, there has been such a deterioration on the battlefield that Britain's continued inaction looks like brutal coldbloodedness.

Traynor

Armed with British and Russian equipment, the federal armies have seized the all-important Port Harcourt and are pushing the secessionist Ibo tribesmen into a steadily contracting pocket in the former eastern region of the federation. Hundreds of thousands of the Ibo refugees fleeing before the federal armies have poured into the Biafran heartland, creating horrendous conditions.

The precarious, twice-weekly air service to Biafra cannot begin to meet the demand for food, so that the population, estimated to be in excess of 12 million, depends largely on the land. The federal authorities have given approval to Red Cross relief plans, but this has not allayed fears here of mass starvation among the Biafrans.

The Ibo will to fight might by now have died were it not for their deep-rooted fear of massacre by the federal armies, in which anti-Ibo tribesmen from Northern Nigeria predominate.

Horror Picture

The Ibo state of mind can be judged from the picture of a federal attack painted by a refugee for a British reporter: "... Menfolk lined against the wall of the biggest building and machine-gunned, the women raped to the accompaniment of the all-too-ritualistic mutilations, the children spitted on machete knives," (General Gowan, the federal leader has described this report as "rubbish.")

The British policy has been to maintain the pre-war level of arms supplies, including infantry weapons and armored cars, but not tanks or aircraft. When the policy was conceived, it was widely believed that the federal army would be involved in a short police action and would quickly reassert its control over Port Harcourt, a vital oil centre in which British firms have very large investments. In the event, the premise proved completely false and the British armaments were widely and devastatingly deployed before the Ibo grip on Port Harcourt was broken.

The Ibo leaders, who have a penchant for effective propaganda played unceasingly on British susceptibiilties, claiming that General Gowon only prosecuted the war because of London's backing.

Direct peace efforts, apart from those of the Commonwealth secretary-general, the Canadian diplomat Arnold Smith, are now being made, but ministers are hard put to answer those who hold that the old arguments against an arms ban are no longer relevant; that it is better to alienate the federal government than to risk complicity in massacres.

The government was in some danger of defeat when the House took up the matter in an emergency debate this week, though in the end a vote was averted. The Conservative foreign affairs spokesman, former Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, made a telling bid for a tougher British stand. He said the government should make future arms shipments to Lagos conditional on federal Nigerian agreement to an unconditional cease-fire and the setting up of a Commonwealth force to guarantee Biafran security. (The Uganda talks foundered on federal insistence that Biafra renounce its sovereignty in advance of a ceasefire).

Douglas-Home Plan

Under Sir Alec's proposal, federal Nigeria would be told that rejection of security guarantees for the Ibo would make public pressure for an arms ban irresistible.

When the debate ended, the government was still sticking to its position, but some significant qualifications had crept in. The foreign secretary, Michael Stewart, implied the government would impose an arms ban if there was reason to believe federal Nigeria was bent on the extermination of the Ibos and was rejecting reasonable settlement proposals. This, however, was not the case at present: Federal authorities had said they were eager to avoid a final invasion of Biafra.

As to the proposed international arms embargo, there would be serious enforcement difficulties even if the major supplier governments co-operated. As Biafra had shown, black market sources could be readily tapped. (Large quantities of Czech and Western arms have reached Biafra via Lisbon.)

Mr. Stewart's concession will not begin to satisfy public opinion here. Its temper can be judged from this excerpt from a leading article in the weekly magazine, Spectator: "It is quite likely that the historian will select the government's policy on Biafra as its wickedest and most disgraceful act of all. For the first time in our history this country has become an active accomplice in the deliberate slaughter of hundreds of thousands of men, women and children — in short, an accomplice in genocide."

It was mass student-worker demonstrations like the one shown above at Paris' St. Michel Bridge which humbled the government of President Charles de Gaulle and has forced a massive reassessment of the direction and policies of the Fifth Republic and a general election.

The Gaullist 'Achievements' Are Seen to Be Meaningless

An Editorial in New Statesman

When General de Gaulle retreated to his village, there to decide in solitude whether he could still preside over the ruins of his shattered regime, some lessons of the crisis began to emerge.

The most marked, and attractive, characteristic of the revolution through which France is passing is the conspicuous absence of materialism as the dominant motive.

This is something which baffles the government and strikes fear into the hearts of the official Communist leaders, whose entire approach to politics is based on a materialistic philosophy.

The government is now prepared to concede almost anything in terms of wages and conditions, heedless of the effect on the economy, simply to stay in power; the Communist union grabs eagerly at what is offered and hastens to report its "victory" on behalf of the working class. But the workers themselves reject the concessions with contempt, not merely because they are inadequate but because they are, in a deeper sense, irrelevant.

With Students

Here, of course, is where they join hands with the students.

The comforting bourgeois analysis, that the students merely detonated the crisis and now drop into the background while the workers argue out their pay-claims with the government, is seen to be wholly misleading.

The students object not just to university conditions but to the social immorality of a society in which they are expected to provide the elites.

The workers indeed want better material conditions, but in the context of a wholesale reorganization of the economic system. They know what the students feel, because they have the same urges themselves.

New Light

Seen in this light, the "achievements" of the Gaullist regime are meaningless.

The restoration of an arrogant and exclusive bourgeois state to its "rightful place" in the world interests neither students nor workers. They are not flattered if France dominates the Common Market, which they see as a soulless piece of capitalist machinery.

When de Gaulle humbles the dollar, their response is to burn their own temple of gold, the Bourse. What use to them is a "Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals" composed, as it would be, of bourgeois capitalist or Communist states, which stifle liberty of expression and make consumption a god?

They know that Gaullist foreign policy is underpinned by vast and senseless expenditure on nuclear weapons, sinister arms-deals with white racist states, the manipulation of African puppets and cynical meddling in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

As for "stability and prosperity at home," they do not want the stability of the tomb or a prosperity measured solely by a profusion of metal gadgets.

What is impressive about the French crisis is the thoroughness with which the nation has challenged all the assumptions of the Gaullist state.

And not just the Gaullist state either. The astonishing rebuff inflicted by the French workers on the CP, which has for so long held them in its sterile vice, suggests that what is under scrutiny are all the competing political systems — and the assumptions of the consumer society which underlines them.

If—or rather when—de Gaulle goes, the traditional politicians cannot simply expect to step into his shoes and resume the old political game.

It is true that France, happily, has in Pierre Mendes-France a man who stands above all the corruptions of politics and who is gifted with the insight and intellect to give the French revolution a positive and practical meaning.

An Asset

But he is an asset which, at all costs, must not be squandered. If called on to serve, he will need the disciplined co-operation — indeed, submission — of a wide spectrum of France's political elites.

More than that, it will be necessary for many of the traditional assumptions of French bourgeois society — above all about the distribution of power and wealth between the classes — to be abandoned.

Whether the French possessing classes will be prepared for such sacrifices is doubtful. But if they refuse, then chaos indeed will come.

There are lessons, too, for those of us who watch from outside, with awe and admiration, the tremendous events in France.

There is evidently a hunger in the world for governments which are activated by moral principles, which make decisions not because they are expedient but because they are right, whose achievements are measured not by their geopolitical cavortings or the volume of sophisticated junk they unload on the populace, but by their respect for human rights in the widest sense.

If this is the virus which has struck down Gaullism, we cannot hope — and should not wish — to escape infection.

Training Is Important, But You Have to Grow Up

By ART STOTT

The man at the other end of the phone was anonymous by agreement. He has a police record running back to juvenile days. Now he is employed at a wage that gives him a satisfactory living. He was prepared to tell me about the training which had equipped him for the job. He received it in prison.

Stott

My particular interest arose from a news item I had read about an experiment in McNeil Island Federal Penitentiary in Washington State. There the authorities are completing a training program which promises well-paying jobs to inmates learning trades while serving time and due for release at the end of the year.

About 20 years ago some of us then interested in John Howard activities, had investigated a similar proposal for British Columbia inmates. We felt the training systems failed to equip them for jobs on the outside, mainly because the instruction seemed too limited and unions felt themselves in no position to show special concern for former prisoners when the demands of their own union members left them little opportunity to look after anyone else. They approved the idea in principle and, with reluctance, felt they couldn't help much.

Since that time unobtrusive but very effective work has been done in the field. The courses in prison have been improved, a growing number of employers are ready to give the released person a chance, government labor departments have assisted by fitting "inside" instruction into apprenticeship programs and the unions have quietly gone about accepting a new social responsibility which, among other things, judges a workman on a basis of competency and relegates to a minor place a prison record.

The man on the phone told me how it had worked for him. In the British Columbia Penitentiary in 1959-60, he took a course which would have given him apprenticeship credits, did not follow up on his release, returned to crime, was caught, went back to the B.C. Pen and studied to be a mechanic. Out again he once more failed to follow-up.

In 1965 he was sentenced to serve time in Kingston, was transferred to Collins Bay and there started a mechanics course that was the best he'd ever had. After another transfer to British Columbia, he wound up at William Head, found a job on parole and applied to write for certification as a journeyman in his branch of mechanics. He passed, was hired and joined a union. His employer knows he has a record and union officials know enough to satisfy them. He has encountered no discrimination from either.

Instruction courses in the penitentiary, he says, are open to any with the ability to take them, regardless of record. But the biggest break, as he sees it, is not the availability of the course, but the parole which lets him use his training outside.

His criticism of penitentiary courses is straightforward. Some of them, he says, are out-of-date, largely because instructional techniques and equipment in the institutions fall behind technological developments outside. But if a person inside wants to work and to get along, he has the chance. It's a personal issue, up to the individual.

★ ★ ★

The difference in his own case between his recent experience and earlier ones lies in "getting wise to yourself." On other occasions outside he has had jobs with fair pay and, at times he's been in the chips. "But," he points out, "you can't spend it in a cell."

Right now, he says, he's having the best time of his life. He's working at a job he likes, has his freedom and can exercise his independence.

"I don't have to keep looking over my shoulder to see if there's a cop there. I can go to the moving picture of my choice, not take the one they're running in the penitentiary assembly hall or do without. If I want to, I can have a glass of beer—and subject to the rules of my parole—I have my liberty. All this looks good to me now. Maybe I've grown up.

"I've made new friends. Some of them I used to call squares, but I'm a square myself now. I can apply to change jobs. How I've worked on the ones I've held will be the factor determining my advancement."

How it might be with any other union, he doesn't know, but the one he belongs to at present has treated him well.

★ ★ ★

The man at the other end of the phone hasn't solved all his problems. Who has? But if random thoughts of an easy, safe "heist" occasionally pass through his mind, so do memories of a corroding boredom in a prison cell. At all events, he has a job that meets his needs now in a field he likes—and the income from it makes it unnecessary for him to return to crime.

The Canadian program can work, apparently, if the prisoner has grown up. Maybe the McNeil Island people ought to get in touch with our authorities. It might help them on the break-through they hope to make.

Sleep Control Found?

By STUART AUERBACH

WASHINGTON — A medical scientist thinks he has found the chemical in the body that controls sleep.

If Dr. Werner P. Koella is right, scientists should be able to develop a pill that would allow a good night's natural sleep to insomniacs.

Dr. Koella, a neurophysiologist at the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology at Shewsbury, Mass. reported on his findings during the annual convention of the Society of Biological Psychiatry here.

The natural sleep-inducing chemical is serotonin, which Dr. Koella described in an interview as being "somewhat related to adrenalin."

Dr. Koella is a pioneer in research into the connection between serotonin and sleep. He has published papers on it for the past eight years.

●

His latest experiments, conducted on cats for the past two years, "dramatically corroborated" the notion that serotonin is the sleep controlling agent in the body, he said.

In these experiments serotonin in the brains of cats was removed with another chemical agent, P-cholrophenylalanine.

Without the serotonin, Dr. Koella said, the cats did not sleep.

"They were perfectly normal—just a little irritated," he said. "They'd curl up as if to sleep, then get up and toss around the way we do during a sleepless night."

This pattern continued until the supply of serotonin was rebuilt in the brain—a period of from 10 to 16 days, Dr. Koella said.

While the serotonin was building up in the cats, Dr. Koella said, they started sleeping a little bit more each day.

●

The next step, he said, is to accelerate production of serotonin in people who are having trouble sleeping and to inhibit the chemical's breakdown in the body.

The increased amount of the chemical should make it easier for people to get a good night's sleep, he said.

Eventually, he said, this research could lead to a natural sleeping pill. Most people who have trouble sleeping use either tranquilizers or barbiturates. Barbiturates especially, and some tranquilizers, are potentially habit forming.

Another scientist, Dr. Edward V. Evarts of the National Institute of Mental Health, knocked down in his paper a prime theory that people need sleep to rest the brain.

His studies show that the brain does not stop during sleep. Instead, he says, "high levels of activity" in the brain have been observed during sleep.

Consumer Goods Vs. Heavy Industry

Soviet Leadership Cracking?

By SIDNEY I. PLOSS

(Mr. Ploss is associate research professor of international affairs and a member of the Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies at George Washington University.)

WASHINGTON—Signs are cropping up in the Soviet press that the 3½-year collective leadership in the Kremlin is coming unhinged.

The key issue appears to be a dispute over whether to concentrate investment resources on consumer goods rather than heavy industry.

The antagonists are, on one side, the forces around Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, and, on the other, the men around Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The tension already is as high as it was before the downfall of Premiers Georgi M. Malenkov and Nikita S. Khrushchev, whose reformist conceptions were not unlike those of Kosygin.

The clues to a high-level struggle over the sensitive question of resource allocation began to multiply at the close of 1967. Last October, an unorthodox decision was reached to manufacture consumer goods at a higher rate than producer goods.

Temporary

This departure from the custom of giving preferential treatment to heavy industry was officially represented as a temporary measure that would last for no more than one year.

It was explained that the latest wage increases had put into the hands of citizens more money than could be spent. Despite improvement in recent years, there is still a lack of the simplest consumer goods on the market. So the purpose of turning out more everyday necessities was to check inflationary pressures.

The new concessions evidently appealed to many. Only a few weeks later, the magazine of the state planning committee featured an article that tacitly advised the continuance of priority for light industrial development for more than one year.

Y. W. Belik, an unidentified specialist, wrote: "The enormous industrial potential which we have accumulated, along with its more intensive and efficient use, enables us to develop the output of consumer goods at the very same rates as the output of capital goods, or even at higher rates, for not only one year but for a longer period of time as well.'

Resisted

This was a bold restatement of the pro-consumer stand that Malenkov and Khrushchev had taken at various times and which was resisted fiercely and successfully by conservative forces in the power elite.

The historical record from Lenin to Khrushchev teaches that if an ordinarily timid functionary dares to make controversial policy recommendations, it is only because he has been assured of protection from high above. The mounting evidence gives reason to believe that Kosygin, the politburo's overlord of the economy, shared the heretical viewpoint on behalf of the consumer.

Kosygin addressed a gathering of local government officials in the Kremlin Dec. 25 and spoke on economic prospects of the upcoming plan for 1971-5. He called for "special" attention to an upswing in the light and food industries and "satisfaction of the population's demand for goods of various assortment."

But the full text of Kosygin's speech was withheld. This strongly suggests that his specific proposals were found objectionable by the majority of the supreme leadership.

The impression that Kosygin was denied an opportunity to bid for wide popularity by advocating higher living standards for the people was strengthened in February when politburo members attended local party conferences and discussed an array of topics.

Comparing the speeches made by Kosygin and Brezhnev in Minsk and Leningrad, respectively, one sees vast differences in the approach to economic reality.

Kosygin looked forward to the drafting of the new five-year plan in 1969 and hailed "new tendencies" in economic life. The closing of the huge gap that separated the growth rate of light and heavy industry was said to be of great importance.

Better Supply

"We must," declared Kosygin, "fully solve the problem of uninterrupted supply of the population with varied foodstuffs, clothing, footwear and other consumer goods." Similar words were once uttered by Kosygin's fallen predecessors, Malenkov and Khrushchev.

In contrast, Brezhnev harked back to the 1966 decision to ensure the dominant status of heavy industry. He vigorously came out for "preserving the accelerated development of heavy industry as the basis of our industrial might" and added that the Soviet Union had to increase its steel production by another 22 million tons within three years.

This brought to mind Khrushchev's angry words directed against austerity-minded "comrades" who had "developed an appetite for giving the country as much metal as possible" and would leave the consumer to go begging.

Brezhnev a few weeks later seemed to reject the view expressed by Kosygin in Minsk, that many scientific and engineering establishments in the Soviet Union are inefficient and that Russia should copy the West's "sensible organization and management of production."

Brezhnev rebuked those who underrated Soviet scientific and technical successes while exaggerating the achievements of the capitalist world. He thus let it be known that technological contacts with the West were not desirable.

A fresh symptom of infighting behind the scenes was provided when Pravda, the party daily under Brezhnev's general secretariat, handled the theme of economic priorities differently than did Izvestia, the governmental paper managed by figures nearer to Premier Kosygin's apparatus.

THE GALLUP POLL

Majority of Canadians Think Liberals Will Win

By the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

In a voter assessment, a majority of Canadians (59 per cent) believe that the Liberal party will win the June 25 election. Only 19 per cent prophesy victory for the Tories. In 1965, at this same pre-election period, sllightly fewer voters also predicted a Liberal win. Half the population (50 per cent) felt the Liberals would win and less than two-in-ten (16 per cent) named the Conservatives as probable winners.

Surprisingly, the people of Ontario (66 per cent) and of the West (68 per cent) are more likely to expect a Liberal win than those in Quebec—52 per cent. However, Quebec voters are more undecided on the outcome (31 per cent) than in Ontario or the West, each with 13 per cent undecided.

The question: "Regardless of how you plan to vote, what is your best guess as to which political party will get most votes in the next federal election?"

	National	Quebec	Ontario	West
Liberals	59%	52%	66%	68%
Conservatives	19	14	18	18
NDP	1	1	3	*
Other	1	2	*	1
Can't say	20	31	15	13
	100%	100%	100%	100%

*Less than 1 per cent.

But the 59 per cent of voters who prognosticate a Liberal victory do not look for a sweeping majority. Only 12 per cent of these electors say the Liberals will come out of the election with a big lead, while 40 per cent expect another minority government will emerge. Forty-two per cent feel the government will go in with a fair-sized lead.

Nowhere across the country do the people feel there will be another whopping majority government as was won by John Diefenbaker in 1958. In the West only 7 per cent prophesy a big lead for the Liberals, while 15 per cent feel this way in Quebec and 17 per cent in Ontario.

Those who foresee a Liberal victory on June 25th were then asked: "Do you think this party will have a big lead in the number of votes it gets, a fair-sized lead or a small lead?"

	National	Quebec	Ontario	West
Big lead	13%	15%	17%	7%
Fair-sized lead	42	46	36	48
Small lead	40	34	42	41
Can't say	5	5	5	4
	100%	100%	100%	100%

SCRIVENER
... Bell president

'Superb' His Favorite Bell Word

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO — A favorite word of Robert C. Scrivener, incoming president of Bell Canada, is "superb."

That, he says is what the telephone company's achievements have been in the past, what its outlook now is and what its services are going to have to be in the future.

Mr. Scrivener, 53, is to take over the presidency of the $2,650,000,000 company Aug. 1, succeeding Marcel Vincent, 61, who moves up as chariman.

Less than 12 hours after the public announcement of the top-level shifts, Mr. Scrivener was in Toronto to attend a regular monthly meeting of Bell executives and to look in on a subsidiary plant.

Although he used the word "superb" five times during an hour-long interview, he wasn't boasting about the company.

Speaking quickly and clearly, he used it to explain his feelings about how the company has reacted to challenges in the past and will have to move now in the fast-changing communications world.

CALLED 'GREAT STORY'

"Sure I'm prejudiced, but I think Bell is a great success story," he said.

"On a cost basis, it's the lowest in the world but there's none better in providing service.

"Basically it has been and will be a matter of providing superb service — giving customers what they want when they want it and at the lowest price.

"That's what I mean by superb service."

Meeting the needs of the next decade won't be easy, he said. Based on Bell's record of seven-per-cent growth in business a year, it will have doubled in size by 1978.

Communications will be radically changed, with a possibility of every home having a small computer hooked into information banks through a vastly more sophisticated telephone network.

Speaking casually of using laser beams to carry circuits between cities instead of wires or microwaves, Mr. Scrivener said the major challenge will be to establish exchanges which can handle the new flood of demands without any loss of quality.

Bell noow spends about $35,000,000 annually on research and development and more will have to be invested in the future, he said.

In the more immediate future, Mr. Scrivener talks of the possibility of technology improving enough to eliminate long-distance charges.

"If there were no cost factor in long distance, business would pick up five or six times," he said. "It's up to technology to find a way to provide this service without costs climbing five or six times too."

BUSINESS VIEWS

Big Profit Not Only Yardstick

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Conversion of Air Canada to a shareholder-owned corporation from its status as a proprietary corporation of the taxpayers is under discussion.

Kent

There is the view that Canada's internationally known airline, which has served the country well since its inception as Trans-Canada Airlines in 1937, could be made more efficient if operated strictly for profit, answerable to Canadians with a private stake in the business.

When people talk of more efficiency and profit, they must take into account the primary function of Air Canada is to provide a service. Perhaps it is time to weigh this role in terms of future air transport.

★ ★ ★

Gordon McGregor, 67, who has been Air Canada president for 20 years, has always operated the line "as though it had to answer to a few thousand critical stockholders instead of to a few million, which really is the case," to use his words.

The board of directors are all businessmen—no civil servants among them—and are drawn from all geographic areas of Canada. They elect the president and are responsible to Parliament through the transport minister.

C. D. Howe, millionaire businessman, construction magnate, diplomat-politician and ex-minister of munitions and supply, transport, reconstruction and supply, trade and commerce, and defence production in successive cabinets, gets credit for the birth of Trans-Canada Airlines.

It was his original proposal that the airline should be a joint undertaking using private and public capital, but when Canadian Pacific Railway decided against participation, the Canadian government stepped in as sole financier.

He and Trans-Canada's wartime president H. J. Symington completely agreed on ex-fighter pilot McGregor as Symington's successor in 1948, and the other directors agreed.

★ ★ ★

Legend has it that Howe told McGregor to run the line as he saw fit, within its terms of reference and without begging at the government's doorstep, and in return he would keep out of McGregor's hair.

The deal worked, for in the last 18 years, Air Canada has shown a profit in all but three years, these following the granting to Canadian Pacific Airlines competitive transcontinental routes, and refusal by the transport department proposed Air Canada flights to Rome.

That should kill any misconceptions about Air Canada being deficit-prone.

But at the same time, its return on capital invested is comparatively low—only 1.1 per cent.

But when it is considered that not only does Air Canada provide a high level of international service and transcontinental mainline service, but also flies many marginal or unprofitable domestic feeder and regional routes, the return is not bad. Maybe the marginal and losing air routes should be turned over to smaller operators using less costly equipment.

To the investment industry, what could be far more important than the service role is the encouragement of national investment by citizens through something as tangibly Canadian as Air Canada.

But these are matters which will at least wait for next week's election outcome, and likely much longer.

Additional staking in the attractive Port Hardy copper prospect has been acquired by Continental Cinch Mines Ltd. from Benson Securities Ltd. in exchange for 250,000 treasury shares.

Pending Vancouver Stock Exchange approval of engineering progress reports, the shares will be issued quarterly, 50,000 at a time.

The block of 178 claims is staked on what appears as an extension of the geological horizon upon which Utah Construction and Mining Co. and West Coast Mining have about 900 claims.

Continental had 61 claims in its original property on northern Vancouver Island, where preliminary surface work has been done and detailed sampling is under way. There are three anomalous copper and zinc areas and diamond drill equipment is on site in readiness for further exploration.

West Coast is an exploration company working on behalf of several substantial U.S. companies, and is engaged in diamond drilling the claims adjoining the newly-acquired Continental Cinch claims. There is surface sampling and mapping being undertaken on the latter.

Continental has spent more than $35,000 on its property to date and plans on putting another $100,000 into it.

Air Brake Valve Defective

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has asked the owners of 22,683 GMC and Chevrolet trucks from the model years 1966, 1967 and 1968 to return them for possible correction of the air brake assembly.

A GM spokesman said Tuesday the air brake application valve in the vehicles could fail and result in a loss of the air supply to the braking system.

The firm said valve assemblies from two suppliers are used in the trucks, but only one supplier's valve is potentially dangerous. New parts will be installed as a precautionary measure at no cost to the owners, the firm said.

Customers Not Getting Savings

A Scottish trader's comment that Canadians are not getting the benefit of British pound devaluation was both endorsed and objected to here.

Speaking in Vancouver, Matthew Neil, as head of a 10-man trade mission to North America, said distributors on this continent are not passing along to consumers the price saving resulting from devaluation last November.

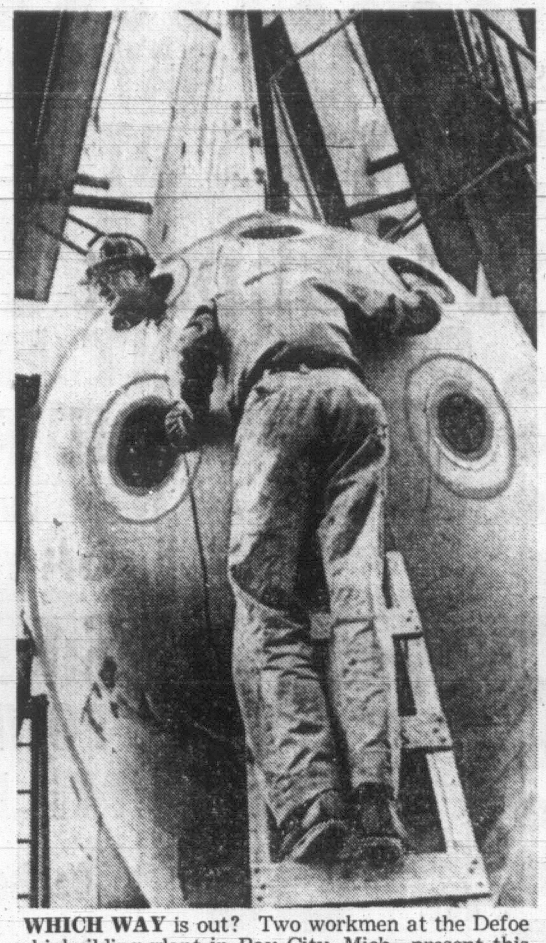

He said they are buying goods at prices 14.3 per cent lower through devaluation, but generally consumers are paying the same as before.

A tobacconist dealing in many brands from the British Isles agreed and noted that in fact, many of the lost prices had actually increased since devaluation.

But a car dealer pointed to retail price savings of up to $150 on purchase prices which immediately followed sterling devaluation.

Imported Scotch whisky, on the other hand, remained unchanged in price, then went up along with other liquor prices when federal and provincial governments adjusted excise taxes in December.

"We haven't had the benefit of the 14.3 per cent decrease in prices since devaluation," said the tobacconist. He said the manufacturers are responsible for setting wholesale prices.

BALANCE OF PAYMENTS PICTURE

DBS Can't Explain Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's balance of payments ledger showed deficits on both current and capital accounts during the first quarter of 1968, reflecting the temporary troubles of the Canadian dollar.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today that improved exports cut the current-account deficit to $225,000,000 from $316,000,000 in the same three months of 1967.

But long-term investments in Canada slowed to a trickle and several hundred million dollars in short-term funds fled the country, resulting in a capital-account deficit of $540,000,000.

DBS said it still cannot explain with any precision on the loss of some $509,000,000 in short-term funds.

The combined balance-of-payments deficits totalling $765,000,000 were met by sales of U.S. dollars from Canada's official exchange reserves.

Reports subsequently published to cover the months of April and May show that capital movements have reversed, the exchange reserves are rebuilding, and the balance of payments picture will be much improved for the second quarter.

In the first quarter of 1967 the capital account showed a favorable balance of $303,000,000, all but matching the current-account deficit.

Canada runs a chronic current-account deficit, largely because it must pay substantial sums in the form of interest and dividends to foreigners.

In the first quarter, exports increased 16 per cent or $410,000,000 to $3,019,000,000, providing a favorable balance of $236,000,000 over imports.

But at the same time net payments of interest and dividends increased by $47,000,000 to $277,000,000.

The growth was attributed to higher profits of unincorporated branches of foreign companies and higher payments by Canadian subsidiaries to parent U.S. companies. Interest payments on bonds, especially provincial-government issues, were also up.

The short-term capital outflow of $645,000,000 was up $240,000,000 from the fourth quarter of 1967.

DBS said Canadians continued to acquire bank deposits in foreign currencies and to make other short-term investments abroad, and non-residents sold some of their holdings of finance company papers.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Record Growth, Spending For B.C. Hydro in 1967

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Tuesday reported that $341,170,731 was spent on power projects during the fiscal year ended March 31, the highest outlay for capital expenditures in its history.

The Peace River project accounted for $166,155,067 during the 12-month period, the provincially-owned authority said in its annual report. Up to the end of March, the government spent $438,129,187 on the giant Peace project.

THREE PROJECTS

The three power projects initiated under the Columbia River Treaty in Canada—Duncan, Arrow and Mica — cost a total of $85,155,368 during the fiscal year just ended. The government has spent a total of $274,847,167 since work started.

The other single major project last year was the Burrard thermal generating plant, in which a fourth 150,000-kilowatt turbine generator was brought into service at a cost of $14,055,466.

MAJOR LINES

The rest of the power project expenditures were made up of major transmission lines and improvements to existing facilities.

Hydro also reported "another year of record growth" with gross revenues topping the $200,000,000 mark for the first time. Revenues during the fiscal period totalled $201,469,898 compared with $178,146,926 the previous year.

Net income reached $12,890,635 last year, compared with $9,350,954 the year before. Hydro spokesmen said the income was used for plant renewal and expansion of service facilities.

DAMS LEAD

Records were also achieved during the year in sales of electricity and gas, in tonnages carried by Hydro's Lower Mainland railway operation and in the number of passengers carried on the urban transportation services.

But the emphasis was on construction of the big Peace and Columbia River dams during the past year.

The report said first generation of electricity from the W. A. C. Bennett Dam on the Peace River at Portage Mountain is scheduled for this fall.

The 600-foot-high Bennett Dam was officially completed Sept. 12, 1967. Three diversion tunnels are nearing completion. The ultimate capacity of the project will be 2,300,000 kilowatts and the dam will create a reservoir 225 miles long, covering 640 square miles.

The second stage of the Peace project calls for construction of a 240-foot-high dam with extra capacity when needed 12 miles downstream from the Portage Mountain site.

PAYMENT MADE

At the Columbia projects, the Duncan Dam was declared operational July 31, 1967, eight months ahead of schedule, resulting in payment of $11,100,000 in additional downstream benefits from the U.S. to B.C. under terms of the Columbia River Treaty.

The report said construction of the Arrow Dam is "several months ahead of schedule" and the project "will become operational in December, 1968, four months ahead of the originally scheduled date..."

FOUR YEARS

Work has started on the $136,300,000 Mica Dam and two diversion tunnels 45 feet in diameter have been completed. The report did not say if work is proceeding on schedule.

In the four years since Premier Bennett enunciated his "two-river" development policy, construction of new facilities has risen rapidly, from $71,000,000 in the year ending March 31, 1964, to last year's record total.

During the same period assets of the authority increased to nearly $2,000,000,000 from $1,000,000,000 said the report. B.C. Hydro expropriated the B.C. Electric in 1962.

Sales of electricity totalled 11,084,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 5,540,000 during the comparable period six years ago.

POWER DEMAND

The report said latest forecasts indicate the demand for power will double in B.C. during the next 10 years, and added investigation of new power sources "will provide a firm foundation for growth of the province."

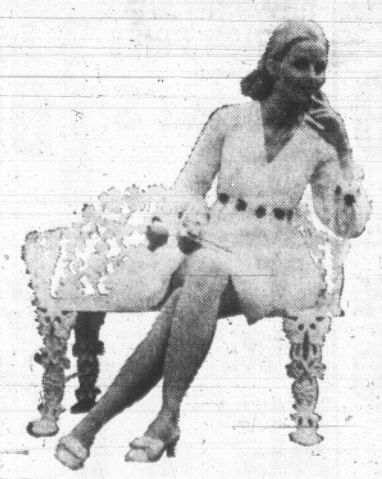

"With its abundance of natural resources, British Columbia's prospects for continued prosperity are exceedingly bright," said the Hydro report.

Despite the increased patronage on the transit system during the past two years, the report said, operating losses have been substantial in both Metropolitan Vancouver and Greater Victoria.

Losses will be partially offset in the coming year by a grant of $1,000,000 from the provincial government.

Gross revenues from rail freight operations totalled $7,000,000, 8.9 per cent above the previous year.

U.S. Orders Better Shelters For Viet Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force has ordered urgent reconstruction of shelters for its aircraft in South Vietnam to protect against intensified Viet Cong rocket and mortar attacks.

"Recent attacks on air force bases in Vietnam have demonstrated the need for better protection of aircraft" than the current roofless shelters now in use, the air force said Monday in response to questions.

At present, the aircraft, most costing at least $1,000,000 each, are parked on bases in South Vietnam in roofless revetements made from earth-filled steel walls five feet wide and 12 feet high.

The first steps taken to carry out the program now are under way in the form of tests to determine the best material to use in building roofs for the current shelters. When the tests are finished in the near future, construction will start.

Gen Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, told a Senate committee earlier this year that more than $132,000,000 in U.S. aircraft had been destroyed or damaged on the ground in Vietnam.

Wheeler contended that special protective shelters planned for U.S. planes based in Europe could have held those losses to about $7,000,000.

Jordanians To Defend Sirhan

AMMAN (Reuters) — Five Jordanian lawyers will travel to the U.S. to defend Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, alleged assassin of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, as a professional and a national duty, it was announced Monday.

Sirhan is a Jordanian whose father lives on the west bank of the Jordan River, now under Israeli control. The father said today he also will go to the U.S.

The Arab Lawyers Federation said "Zionism and imperialism are exploiting this individual incident for political, racial and imperialist ends against the Arabs in general and their just Palestinian cause in particular."

The announcement, issued by the federation's secretary-general, Shafiq Irshedat, said the decision to send five Jordanian lawyers of Palestinian origin to defend Sirhan was made in co-operation with the Jordanian Bar Association.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1968 —PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Visit any campaign headquarters these pre-election days, and you may catch a glimpse of the man of the moment whose name is Mr. Candidate. But whether you do or no, you will certainly observe a mixed batch of people with this for their common denominator: They are busy, busy, busy.

These are the amateur, volunteer campaign workers who toil with but one end in view. The other end, except when they scurry off to grab a jangling phone (who knows, it might be a Voter), is clamped to a chair. The chair fronts a table piled with all the pre-election jazz of the sort that has been turning up in your mailbox.

You can distinguish them from the seasoned campaigners in the dark suits who help Mr. Candidate plan vote-snaring strategy by the fact that most are women. What they want, and all they want, is to see their guy top his riding when the ballots are counted.

How are they enrolled? Some simply turned up at the organization meetings and offered their services in terms more or less like this:

"I used to be a secretary but I've forgotten my typing and my handwriting is just awful, but if there's anything I can do . . ."

Or the recruitment may be more complex: "Well, my daughter goes to the Brownies, and her Brown Owl happens to be related to the candidate, and she asked me if I'd like to help."

★

So they assemble, arrange, and inscribe. They also stuff envelopes and lick stamps (or if they're smart, lick the envelope instead and avoid that uggy after-taste). They also make signs and banners both large and small, and at the end of a long, hard day, sometimes are visited by mild cases of graphospasm.

That's writer's cramp. One of Mr. Candidate's handmaidens stumbled on its other name while checking a medical dictionary for a cure. What she could do, of course, is quit addressing campaign literature. But she won't until the last bundle is in the mail.

When the card of the hundreds she addressed reaches you, please do not scowl if your name is preceded by "Miss" when you're a lawful "Mrs." and have a certificate decked with fat little cherubim to prove it.

She's doing her best, and without her services, the aspirant she backs would come to the June 25 crunch with chances reduced.

Another of her occasional activities is the political coffee party . . . and, brother, if you've never balanced a cup and saucer at one of these functions, you have missed an aspect of modern election campaigning only less important than the doorstep visitation.

★

If it's a suburban coffee party, you and your neighbors stand around for a while and talk about the weather, or your gardens, or the doings of your young.

Mr. Candidate circulates from group to group, and so does your hostess with her bundle of secret worries. Will some spy from another camp grind a cigarette butt into her rug? Will old Mr. Sitzpratt, who holds strong views, cause an awkwardness during the question period that follows the guest of honor's remarks?

When I set to on this screed, our occasional campaign helper was sitting at the other end of the kitchen table with her volunteer's homework.

She decided to type it after her second bout of writer's cramp. Her portable plinked along steadily, and when I asked her if she'd like to take time off for a snack, all I got was, "Darn! You made me hit the wrong key."

This sort of thing is rough on husbands, especially if they are used to being consulted on what they'd like to have for dinner, and what they'd prefer to do this evening. At the moment, I must admit to the merest touch of something mighty like jealousy. But this too will pass.

Election Day, with its huzzas for the victors and its wakes for the losers, is just over the horizon. Then the guys who have been playing second fiddle to Mr. Candidate will get their wives back.

LAUGHING Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson is served by pretty Judi Kendall, vice-president of the Saanich Police Organization for Teenagers. Chief was guest of honor at a dinner for the outgoing executive of SPOT. Dinner at the Princess Mary Restaurant Tuesday was sponsored by the Saanich Police Union. 'Some Progress' In Negotiations Says IWA Chief

Hopes Brighten For Settlement

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Hopes for a settlement without a strike in the British Columbia coast wood products industry grew today.

The official silence surrounding negotiations for the last week was broken with a report of "some progress" by Jack Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America and chairman of the union negotiating committee.

And Syd Thompson, president of the big Vancouver local and a member of the committee, predicted a settlement will be reached this week because of high lumber prices.

Two other members of the negotiating committee expressed hope for a settlement.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan local, said it "looks favorable for a settlement in view of the ever-increasing prices on lumber, plywood and shingles. The industry doesn't want a fieup at this time."

UP TO MEMBERS

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local, said "we're still talking, there's still hope. The membership will make the final decision."

One member of the IWA negotiating committee, however, said although talks are continuing "hopes for a settlement are getting fainter."

Ernest Freer, president of the loggers local 1-71, said union members are dissatisfied with the lack of progress and strike headquarters are being set up in a number of places.

LEADERS WORRIED

Union members have responded — with one brief exception — to the appeals from their negotiating committee not to strike as long as talks go on.

At Weldwood of Vancouver, 30 graveyard shift workers honored a picket line set up by two men but returned to work when the pickets were persuaded to leave.

IWA leaders are fearful such an incident could trigger a larger walkout and harm negotiations.

New 'Estevan' To Be Built On West Coast

Sharpen Pencils City Yard Told

A new coast guard ship guaranteed to a west coast shipyard was announced today by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Local Liberal candidates David Groos and David Anderson both expressed delight at the prospect of work for a declining industry, but both warned that the call for tenders will mean hard work to keep the price competitive.

Estimated cost of a replacement for the soon-to-be-retired CGS Estevan — built in 1912 — ranges up to $6 million.

By comparison, the shorter, but heavier, CGS Camsell cost $4 million nearly nine years ago.

The new ship will be built by a Victoria or Vancouver shipyard by terms of regional shipbuilding guarantees set out by the federal government two years ago, but interrupted with cutbacks in government spending.

Esquimalt - Saanich candidate Anderson said the job likely will be the last of its kind guaranteed to this coast.

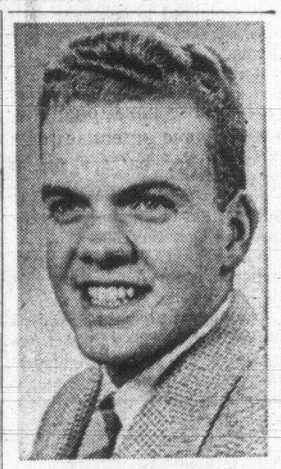

"I am delighted," he said. "The yards should take this construction as a challenge. It is up to the companies and unions to grasp the opportunity. The yards should modify their plants to be competitive with eastern yards."

Mr Groos said:

"I hope our Victoria yard (Yarrows Ltd.) will put in a very strong bid for the thing and that we will get the contract. I hope our yard will be competitive enough against Vancouver."

Mr. Hellyer said the new vessel would be a lighthouse and buoy tender, of all steel welded construction, having a length of 240 feet and displacement of 2,800 tons.

It was expected a contract would be awarded within two months and construction would take place this summer.

ERNEST UNWIN

Ex-Victorian Gets PhD At Tucson

A major landmark on the long educational trail was passed this month by Victoria-born Ernest A. Unwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Unwin, 1757 Richardson Street.

At the convocation of the University of Arizona in Tucson, he received his PhD in systems engineering.

Dr. Unwin started school at Margaret Jenkins, graduated from Victoria high, attended Victoria College, received his BA Sc in electrical engineering from the University of British Columbia and an MS in mathematics from the University of Arizona before proceding to doctoral work.

PROJECT ENGINEER

He was project engineer for Proctor and Gamble, Hamilton, Ontario, and assistant professor in mathematics at Clarkson College in New York before taking an instructor's and assistant professor's posting in systems engineering at Arizona.

With his wife, the former Marion Donelly of Vancouver, and their daughter Jamie, Dr. Unwin will spend the next year fulfilling the tenure of a recently granted Ford Foundation Residency in Engineering Practice in California.

SOCREDS COVERING UP HYDRO COSTS—STRACHAN

'Part of Old Shell Game'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today charged the Social Credit government with subsidizing B.C. Hydro out of general revenue to cover up ballooning Columbia River Treaty costs.

The NDP leader said an order-in-council appointing the provincial highways department as agent for acquisition of Libby Dam flood lands is "part of the old shell game."

"This substantiates our claim that Premier Bennett wasn't telling the truth when he said the Columbia Treaty wouldn't cost us a nickel.

Mr. Strachan said the government will be spending highways department money that should be used for roads.

"Believe you me a lot of roads need a lot of work," said Mr. Strachan.

He asked where the money — estimated at $12,000,000 at one point — would come from if not from general revenue.

The lands to be acquired are in the Kootenays. They will be flooded when the Libby Dam below the U.S. border goes into operation.

MORE SUPPORT

Mr. Strachan said the well-known NDP claim that the Columbia River Treaty costs would exceed revenue by $200,000,000 is further supported by the B.C. Hydro annual report issued Tuesday.

It shows only $69.8 million left in the Columbia fund, he said, but "the High Arrow Dam isn't finished, the Mica Dam is just started and the Libby Dam land has to be purchased."

Hydro acquired flood lands for the Arrow Lakes project on its own, the NDP leader said. The change in policy means the Libby Dam land costs will never show up in Hydro cost figures, he said.

During the legislative session a bill making provision for some agency to acquire land on behalf of Hydro was passed with the NDP failing to find out from the government who would be appointed the agent.

Mr. Strachan today said the granting of expropriation rights to the highways department for other than highway purposes raises serious issues apart from the cost factor.

There is a danger that land owners expropriated by the highways department will find themselves with fewer appeal rights than those who were expropriated by Hydro in the Arrow Lakes district, reporters were told.

Premier Bennett is touring the interior of the province and was unavailable for comment today.

British Columbia received $273,000,000 from the U.S. in the Columbia deal and NDP critics have been claiming the province got the worst of it.

Mr. Strachan made his charges today after telling reporters that he had finally received the answer to the question of who would acquire the land for Hydro.

"Lo and behold," he said. "It's the highways department."

$15,000 FOR INDIANS FROM WIDOW'S ESTATE

A cheque for $15,000 was presented to the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Tuesday night by the estate of Mrs. Elsie Brant of Victoria.

The donation nearly trebles the Mungo Martin Memorial Fund used to assist Indians to study and maintain their heritage and culture.

Mrs. Brant, the widow of John Edward Brant of Niagara Falls, Ont., lived in Victoria for 13 years before her death in January at 68.

Her husband was a direct descendant of Joseph Brant, principal chief of the Six Nations Indians who fought as a captain with the British in the American Revolutionary War, led his Mohawk tribe to settle in Canada and became a missionary, diplomat and scholar.

A spokesman for the estate said Mrs. Brant felt the donation would have put the money to the use her husband would have wanted.

The presentation was made by the executrix, Mrs. Iris Fawcett, 1276 Richardson, to Col. G. S. Andrews, a member of the non-profit society's advisory council.

The society, with about 150 members in the capital district, fosters the work of young Indian students and artists and studies the history of the Canadian Indian.

Mrs. Fawcett recalls Mrs. Brant as an "energetic, fast-moving" woman who concentrated much of her effort in the work of the society.

She had no children and the $15,000 represents the bulk of her estate.

Last year Mrs. Brant travelled to her native England but became ill and returned to Victoria a few months before her death.

Chatterton 'Ballots' Again Draw Protests

By PETE LOUDON

A campaign advertising card issued on behalf of Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate George Chatterton has brought a storm of protest to returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lea.

"It's causing a terrific amount of trouble. We have been kept busy with people phoning about it," she said.

The card, identical to one issued in the 1965 federal campaign, shows an "example ballot" with the name George Chatterton, agriculturist, and a large X.

"Take this notice with you and be sure to mark your ballot with the pencil supplied in the voting booth," a message on the card states.

Taking anything of this nature into a polling place is forbidden. Cards have been left there in the past and no one knows what effect they have on the undecided voter.

Mrs. Lea says she contacted electoral officials at Ottawa and was instructed to advise voters of the regulations.

'DAMAGE DONE'

She said she contacted Mr. Chatterton's campaign office but was told all of the cards had been mailed at that point, "and the damage has been done."

She said she was aware that the same problem arose in 1965 and that Mr. Chatterton had been approached about the impropriety.

"There is nothing I can do about it at the moment," said Mrs. Lea, "but perhaps some of the other candidates can take action against Mr. Chatterton."

If you were impressed with Trudeaumania here on Monday be thankful the hysteria hasn't reached the peak attained in Burnaby Villa where the PM stayed during his Vancouver appearances.

The management revealed to Liberal campaigners that he was beseiged by Trudeau fans offering up to $25 for the sheets he slept in and $20 for a pillow case.

Esquimalt-Saanich returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lea says many voters believe that if their names have been left from the voters' list it is only necessary to bring in the enumerator's slip on voting day.

She points out that anyone in this predicament must apply to the returning officer with the slip and sign an affidavit affirming identity. This may be done at any time prior to the election and will save the voter some time on polling day, Tuesday.

Victoria Conservative candidate Eric Charman addresses a coffee party tonight at Oak Bay Beach Hotel at 8. Thursday night at 8 a similar gathering is being held at White Eagle Hall, 90 Dock Street.

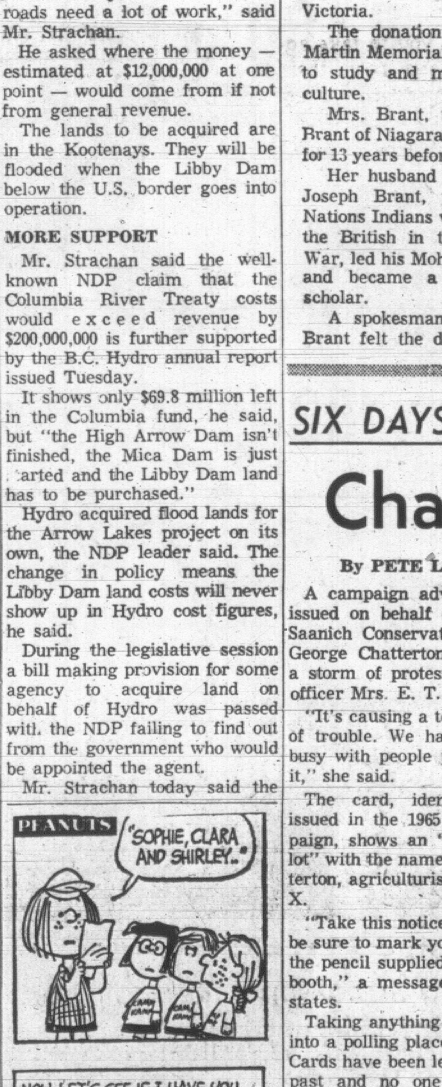

Up-Island NDP candidates—Colin Cameron of Nanaimo, Cowichan and The Islands, and Tom Barnett of Comox-Alberni—will join Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich candidates on the stage during the T. C. Douglas rally here Sunday.

It's at Memorial Arena at 8 p.m., seats on a first come, first seated basis.

Victoria made the headlines in Ottawa Tuesday with the account of the Trudeau meeting here, with emphasis given to the splendid setting and, of course, the crowd.

National headquarters of the Grits was elated, and despite the crowd of 16,000 which greeted Mr. Trudeau at Hamilton, they claim the Victoria rally equalled any crowd which has yet turned out for the PM anywhere in the country.

The PM was reported disappointed at the public address system breakdown.

'Knew I Was Going to Hit And Hit Hard So I Relaxed'

A 34-year old Victoria longshoreman escaped serious injury Tuesday in a spectacular fall over the side of the British ship Ixia at Ogden Point.

George Haywood, 1029 Oliphant, was helping hold a boom restraining chain on the deck of the ship when it slipped loose. A rope on which he was standing threw him.

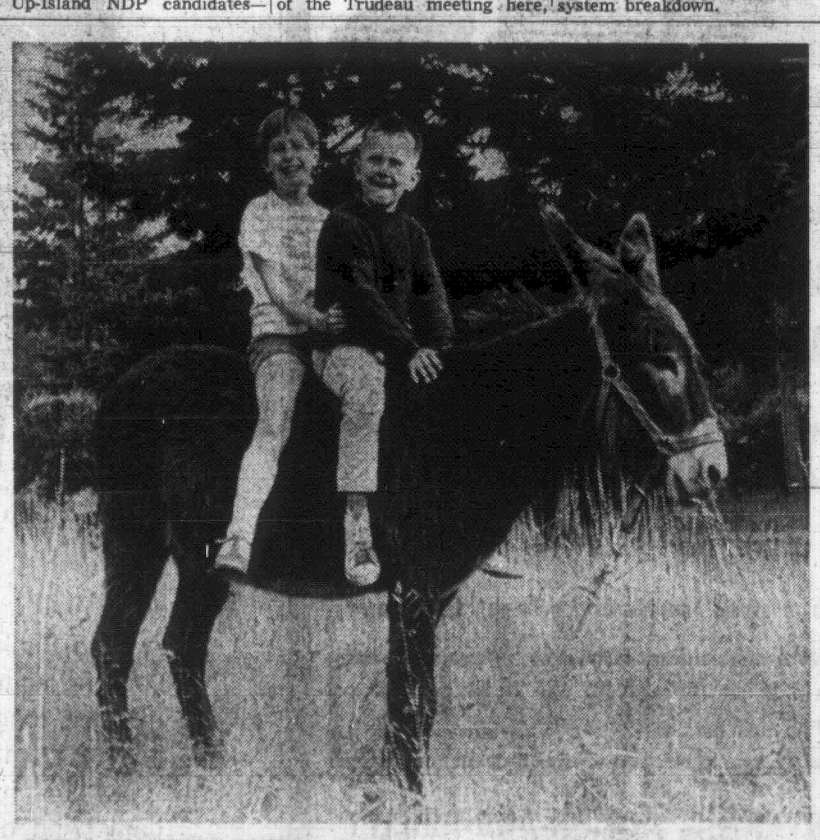

He fell over 30 feet, struck the dock on his left hip, bounced off and fell another 15 feet to a fender log and slipped into the water.

Haywood was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated and released.

"I relaxed because I knew I was going to hit and hit hard," he said.

"I felt myself bounce then hit the fender log. I slipped off into the water and held on to a cable.

"I don't think I've got a muscle that isn't sore this morning."

GOING NOWHERE FAST are Jamie and Robbyn Bell mounted on Carmen, the most phlegmatic donkey in Saanich. Owner, Mrs. James Bell, 5440 Fowler, says one must coax Carmen in a "nice, soft, sweet way", feed her crispy toast, and then she does as she darn well pleases. On her first weekend here she pulled her stake and toured the district. She will deign to give the kids the occasional brief ride, but mostly she you've seen it. (Lyn Hancock photo.)

Q. When and where was the YMCA formed?—A.R.

A. The YMCA was formed in London, England, in 1844 by a drapery clerk named George Williams. Together with 12 other young men, he set up an association for the betterment of young men in an apartment over the drapery store. Since then the Y movement has grown to include five million people in 79 countries.

Q. Can you tell me where Alexander Caulfield Anderson, one time Hudson's Bay factor and later commissioner of Indian Affairs in Victoria, is buried; he died in 1884 and was buried in "South Saanich" cemetery, which we have been unable to locate. H.G.A.

A. The provincial Archives confirms that Mr. Anderson is buried in the cemetery of St. Stephen's Church, off Mount Newton Cross Road.

Brunswick are distorting the Conservative program on constitutional development.

"The prime minister," he said, "is making an accomplice of himself to a smear campaign."

Earlier he told a knot of supporters at a Gatineau shopping centre that he has asked Mr. Trudeau to repudiate the ads which claim he "stands for two countries — two Canadas."

He said the prime minister has done nothing. "He so far does not seem to be a man I thought he was," said Mr. Stanfield.

The Conservative leader spent the day visiting a half dozen Quebec ridings along the Ottawa River from Montreal to Shawville where he made his major speech of the day.

He spent much of his speaking time at a series of stops defending Conservative policy and explaining the position of Marcel Faribault in the Conservative party.

He described Mr. Faribault, at one point, as "the leader of the Quebec candidates" and said he turned to the financier and former Quebec government adviser for help and suggestions on Quebec policy.

The opposition leader, accompanied by his daughter Sarah drew small but attentive crowds at each stop. He was presented with cuff links at Gatineau; a raftsmen's festival toque at Hull and a box of potted geraniums at Shawville.

He went to Shawville to support former Conservative mines minster Paul Martineau who is making a renewed bid for election to parliament after being defeated by Liberal Tom Lefebvre in the old Pontiac-Temiscamingue riding in the last election.

He was joined on the platform by Quebec revenue minister Ray Johnston, the Union Nationale member for Pontiac, who is actively campaigning for the Conservatives in western Quebec.

Both Mr. Johnston and Mr. Martineau pointed to their successful colaboration in bringing a new paper mill to the riding and said they are anxious to continue the partnership.

The Conservative leader was accompanied by Levis Larocque, the candidate in Gatineau and Jean Marie Sequin in Hull. He praised both candidates but stopped short of endorsing a number of local proposals, including lower interest rates which Mr. Sequin is advocating for civil servants buying homes.

PROPOSED NOTHING

The Conservative party, Mr. Stanfield said, has been offering policies to meet the problems of Canada but he said the government has proposed nothing.

Mr. Trudeau, he said, has proposed a policy which he supported on the diplomatic recognition of mainland China but he should also recognize Canadian problems.

While it refused to tell Canadians what its policies are, Mr. Stanfield said the Liberal Party has been deliberately distorting the policies of the Conservatives.

"I challenge any Liberal from Mr. Trudeau down to show me where I ever said I favored two countries; two Canadas," he said.

He said both he and Mr. Faribault believe in a strong united Canada "and the record bears this out."

He said he is confident that the Conservatives are winning the election and will have a majority of members to form a government.

New Birthday, New Life —Magistrate

A boy who turned 16 today was sentenced to one year definite and six months indefinite in prison.

Ronald Taylor, of 840 Attree, had earlier pleaded guilty to 10 counts of house-breaking in Saanich, three similar charges in Oak Bay, and one charge of escaping lawful custody.

He was arrested by Oak Bay police after a house was entered in Oak Bay May 27.

Magistrate Ostler said the presentence report on Taylor was "a chronicle of desperation."

The magistrate said he waited until Taylor's 16th birthday because of "a pecularity of law that you can be sent to the young offender's unit only between the ages of 16 and 23.

"I hope you will make this a new birthday for yourself, the start of a new life," he told the accused.

Arena Burns In Lacombe

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP) — A fire spread by an apparent explosion destroyed the Lacombe Hockey and Sports Arena Tuesday night. The building was valued at $300,000.

The blaze was reported at 11 p.m. and had destroyed the centre's main portion within an hour. The town fire department was able only to prevent the fire spreading to a nearby school bus garage and homes in the vicinity.

Assistant Fire Chief Retiring

Assistant city fire chief William Blair retires at the end of June after 35 years on the force.

Mr. Blair, who lives with his wife Winnie at 866 Richmond, worked at Yarrows as a steel worker, mechanic and welder before joining the fire department June 1, 1933.

Mr. Blair became a lieutenant and driver with the fire department in 1951, went to the fire prevention branch in 1959 and was named assistant chief in 1965.

In his youth he was active in lacrosse with the Sons of Canada and has coached juvenile teams in various sports. A keen fisherman, he also builds his own boats.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair, who have a married son, Alan, will retire to Metchosin.

JOHANNESSEN, ANDERSON CLASH

'Subsidies for CPR, Not Shipyards'

By DERYK THOMPSON

New Democratic and Liberal candidates in Esquimalt-Saanich clashed Tuesday on the advisability of subsidies for shipyards.

Donald Johannessen of the NDP told 30 members of Esquimalt Silver Threads:

"The CPR, mining and insurance companies all get government subsidies. Let's stop giving subsidies to some industries and not the shipyards."

He said John Wallace, manager of Yarrows Ltd., told him his firm needs $10,000,000 worth of government contracts.

"The federal government spends close to $200 million on shipbuilding in Canada a year," Mr. Johannessen said. "All Yarrows wants is part of it to keep a crew of 600 men working steadily."

He said the government loaned $20 million to an oil refinery in Nova Scotia last year, "virtually a subsidy."

Liberal candidate David Anderson said the shipyard question is one of efficiency.

TOO COSTLY

"It would take a phenomenal investment in capital to build up our shipyards on the same levels as those of Japan. We can't do it, it's too expensive.

"The government can spend only what the taxpayers pay.

"We can't subsidize all industries. And we must have efficiency to generate the wealth people demand."

Victoria needs an efficient ship repairing facility he said.

"The government will not subsidize a non-efficient organization."

Social Credit candidate Roy Overton said a Social Credit-Creditiste government under Real Caouette would cease this "all to Ottawa and nothing in return" attitude of previous administrations.

He suggested declaring a state of emergency to provide the country with the powers to increase production of shipyards and factories.

"With the unlimited potential that Canada has with her natural wealth, manpower and technical knowledge, the sky is the limit."

'TROUBLE-FREE'

Mr. Overton also said a minority government would produce good legislation.

"Australia is an example of 19 years of trouble-free minority government," he said.

Conservative George Chatterton, MP in the last House, spoke on veterans and pensioners affairs.

He opposed takeover of the Veterans' Hospital by the Royal Jubilee.

He proposed adding a wing to the existing Veterans' Hospital and building a new Canadian Forces Hospital with improved services and facilities.

He also criticized the Liberal government for stalling on recommendations of the Woods report on old age pensions.

He said a Conservative government would immediately implement the report.

He said disability pensions should be taken out of politics and tied to the wage scale of civil servants.

Clerk Seized, Robbed

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—A woman store clerk was abducted on a busy business district street Monday and robbed of $3,000 in weekend receipts she was taking to a bank. Police said Nancy Dziurzynski, 23, was forced into a car as she walked from a meat market, the money stolen and she was released a short time later unharmed. Police were searching for the bandits.

'YOUTH MUST BE SERVED . . .'

. . . And former Gorge Vale member Art Donaldson (left), now living in Vancouver, didn't need reminding of the old adage when Noel Pumfrey, Cec Ferguson and Dave Mick joined Al MacLeod (not shown) in bringing Gorge Vale the Hamber Cup. Youngsters' 36-hole totals in B.C. Amateur qualifying round brought British Columbia title to Gorge Vale for first time in history. All four are in contention for share of eight match-play berths to be decided today. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Many Hopes Buried At 'Cemetery' Hole

Ticehurst Survives Eight; Kerr Stays Four in Front

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The way Mark Twain wrote it, Huck Finn and Tom Sawyer always tried to hide fear. When they strolled by a cemetery, they walked with a false bravado . . . and whistled in the dark.

Even in daylight, the aptly-named "cemetery hole" at Gorge Vale draws morale-boosting whistles from the bravest competitors running after the B.C. Amateur golf championship. Many title hopes have died there in the past and more are being buried this week.

It's a 409-yard, par-four job . . . but uphill all the way and about as roomy as a telephone booth. It's hole No. 12 at the Gorge, and takes the nickname from the veterans' cemetery that is out-of-bounds territory on the right of the fairway.

If he didn't do it Tuesday, Bert Ticehurst will whistle the next time he strolls along "cemetery fairway."

It will take him a while to forget because the Vancouver swinger, B.C.'s amateur king in 1964, got a mighty fright there Tuesday. Otherwise, Ticehurst may have been seriously challenging Laurie Kerr and Jim Gannon for the medal lead in the provincial fairway frolic.

Kerr, the 1960 provincial champion from Colwood, and Gannon, a collegiate challenger from Seattle, maintained their one-two standing as the tournament moved into today's all-telling rounds.

Two rounds today wrap up the 72-medal portion of the provincial tournament. The low eight step into match play that starts Thursday, continues into Friday's semifinals and reaches a climax with the 36-hole final on Saturday.

Kerr, Gannon Fire Two-Over Tallies

Kerr, six times Victoria champion, and Gannon kept their 1-2 positions they grabbed in the opening round Monday. Both fired two-over-par 75s Tuesday.

Kerr, who opened with a 69, remained four shots ahead of Gannon, 73-75-148. Four players were bracketed two strokes behind at 150. They were Brian Field of Bremerton, Wash.; former Gorge Vale member Art Donaldson, now playing out of Vancouver; Mike Buckley, a slick junior from Marine Drive, and Gorge Vale's Noel Pumfrey, the 1963 Canadian junior finalist.

Ticehurst, rebounding strongly after his first-round 77, was one of three lodged in the 151 category. The others were Gorge Vale juniors Cec Ferguson and Dave Mick.

Ticehurst tossed in one of the better rounds of the day, a one-over-par 74, and might have been overpowering but for his unfortunate flirt with fate on the cemetery hole.

He carded his 74 despite a disastrous eight he took on the par-four 12th!

Only Buckley, with a 72, and defending champion John Russell from Vancouver Point Grey, with a 73, scored better than Ticehurst.

Four Other Eights Recorded on 12th

Ticehurst ran into grief with his tee shot, on 12, pulling it too far into the left rough when he tried too hard to avoid the out-of-bounds cemetery.

Bert tried to chip back to the fairway but didn't quite make it on his second shot. He hooked his third shot, and lost the ball. He took a stroke penalty, missed the green with his next shot, chipped on and two-putted for the eight.

But for that haunter, it was a fine round. Ticehurst went over par on only two other holes, with bogeys on the par-fours fourth and 10th. He ticked off birdies on 7, 9 and 14 and an eagle three on the par-five 11th.

Ticehurst also had 11 pars, and that (unmentionable) eight.

But Bert isn't the only one who may whistle along the cemetery path. In the two days, exactly 175 scores have been recorded on the 12th.

Pumfrey sank an iron shot Monday for an eagle two on the hole. One golfer managed a birdie, and there have been some fours. There also have been four other 8s, in addition to the one Ticehurst took; and nine 7s.

Very much in the majority are 5s and 6s.

Gorge Team Collects Hamber Trophy

Apart from the play of the leaders, the early action has given a chance for juniors to make a strong showing. Eleven players have scored 152 or better, and four of that number are juniors — Buckley, Ferguson, Mick and Tom Moryson.

The steady scoring of Pumfrey, Ferguson, Mick and City Amateur champion Al MacLeod provided the host club with one glory moment Tuesday. The four have combined, over the first 36 holes, to give Gorge a 610 total and the Hamber Cup.

The trophy, emblematic of B.C. team championship, goes to Gorge Vale for the first time.

The Kerr-sparked Colwood team, which also counted scores of Ricky Kent (76-77—153), Vic Painter (79-80—159) and Max Buckley (81-80—161) finished second with 617. Point Grey was third with 627, followed by Quilchena (631), Glen Oaks (634), Fraserview (636) and Marine Drive (641).

Prowler Makes 'Hole-in-Purse'

TORONTO (CP) — Golfers Sam Snead and Ted Makalena, here to play in the Canadian Open beginning Thursday, lost $1,400 Tuesday when a prowler broke into their rooms at a suburban hotel.

Police said Snead, veteran from White Sulphur Springs, Va., was robbed of $900 and Makalena, from Hawaii, $500.

GOLF
10 a.m. — B.C. Amateur championship quarter-finals, Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Coach Dave Unwin says he doesn't expect any miracles but he doesn't believe it will take a miracle to produce victory over Vancouver Carlings tonight at Memorial Arena.

Unwin will send his Victoria Shamrocks, slumping after a fast start in the National Lacrosse Association season, against Vancouver Carlings, currently the hottest club in the Western Division.

Carls climbed out in front of the pack Tuesday night at Vancouver as they continued their surge with a 12-11 comeback triumph over Portland Adanacs before 5,537 fans—largest western crowd of the campaign.

While the Carls have been climbing, Shamrocks have been sliding since winning three of their first four starts. In their last five games they have collected one win on the floor and another when a 16-11 loss to Portland was ruled a Shamrock win because Adanacs used two ineligible players.

EXTRA PRACTICE

Hoping to get back on the victory trail, the Rocks have spent extra time on practice and have talked over problems. Some suggested solutions appear certain to be tried tonight as the Rocks attempt to climb within two points of second-place New Westminster Salmonbellies, who are now two behind the Carls.

"We don't expect any miracles this week," Unwin said. "But we have some ideas and the players seem to be in the right frame of mind to beat Vancouver."

However, Dave knows it will take considerable physical exertion as well as mental toughness to stop the Vancouver crew, which stormed from behind Tuesday with five of the six last-period goals to nip the Adanacs.

McDONALD GETS WINNER

Without the services of Tom McVie, available only for home games, and Jack Bionda, sidelined by a knee injury, Adanacs appeared to have things in hand as they finished the second period with a 10-7 lead.

It was a different story on the third session. Gord Frederickson and Bill Rawson scored goals five seconds apart and then Gary Stevens followed with another Vancouver goal to make it 10-10.

Bob Salt sent Carls in front at 10:43 but Adanacs came back to knot the count two minutes later on a scoring shot by Doug Wallsmith.

Ross McDonald fired the winner with less than two minutes remaining, shifting around Dick Crompton and bouncing a shot past Portland goalie Merv Schweltzer.

GOLFING MALES AGREE RULING IS FAVORABLE

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP)—The mini-skirt has been officially adopted by the Ladies' Professional Golf Association.

Leonard F. Wirtz, the association's executive director, gave the abbreviated skirt his official sanction Tuesday.

"Most women golfers like to keep up with the times," Wirtz said. "Our girls in particular are fashion-minded. Indeed, Carol Mann, Sandra Palmer and Lesley Holbert are some of those already wearing the short skirts."

Wirtz said he thought an official sanction was necessary to reassure some of his group's players that the association would not frown on the minis.

"I think it'll be helpful to their game," he explained. "After all, it's going to be a hot summer."

STARTS THURSDAY

Trevino's Pullout An Open Mystery

TORONTO (CP)—An aura of mystery surrounded the disappearance of Lee Trevino from the scene of the Canadian Open golf championship Tuesday morning and became more bewildering later in the day.

Trevino, of El Paso, Tex., was reported to have withdrawn from the 72-hole tournament because of the serious illness of his daughter, although it was later learned the child had only a slight cold and Trevino wanted time to review a series of financial offers received following is U.S. Open win.

Trevino arrived here Monday to practise for the Open, which starts Thursday and ends Sunday. He was fresh from his victory in the U.S. Open the previous day and the toast of the town when he arrived.

IT TOOK TIME

But he boarded a plane for home early Tuesday morning and it was hours before anyone would comment on his sudden departure. Finally, a Professional Golfers Association official said Trevino had formally withdrawn from the tournament because of the illness of his three-year-old daughter.

Trevino said he will rejoin the PGA tour in two weeks for the Cleveland Open.

Trevino's name has been withdrawn from the list of 147 professionals and three amateurs in the Open, which carries total prize money of $125,000 and a first-place purse of $25,000.

Three other withdrawals were also announced before the starting draw was completed Tuesday. U.S. professionals Bob Goalby and Gay Brewer decided not to play. Goalby is suffering from a shoulder injury and Brewer's daughter was reported to be undergoing surgery.

Joe LeBlanc of Sherbrooke, Que., also withdrew.

Practically every big-name golfer on the U.S. circuit is here for the tournament over the par-70, 6,792-yard St. George's Golf Club layout.

The three amateurs are Nick Weslock, John Micallef and Jim Dolan, all of Toronto.

Tribe Captures Uplands Trophy

Kay Tribe, scoring 82-10—72, won the Harold Robinson trophy and "A" division honors in the women's monthly medal round at Uplands Golf Club Tuesday.

Mrs. B. Davies won the "B" division and Mrs. G. Drummond topped the "C" division.

Phyllis Mearns won the silver division of the "extra day" par points competition at the Victoria Golf Club while Mrs. R. Leach was runnerup. Bronze division laurels went to Mrs. P. McDonald.

Riders Add Pair

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders have signed two new import backfielders—Ron Quillen, 215-pound fullback who led the Eastern Division of the Continental Football League in rushing last season, and James Jackson, 195-pound halfback from Kentucky State.

SPORTS SHORTS

Pirates Believe Future Is Secure

Pittsburgh Pirates are apparently confident in the future of major league baseball.

They announced today the signing of a 40-year contract for the entire Pirate organization to hold spring training at Bradenton, Fla., beginning next year.

The Pirates said Bradenton Mayor B. T. Arbuckle came to Pittsburgh with a delegation of 44 other city officials and leading citizens and signed the agreement.

Pirate officials said construction would begin immediately on a $1 million training complex on a 160-acre tract near the Braden River for use by the Pirates and their minor league affiliates.

The complex will include a 70-room motel, four baseball fields, a clubhouse and an observation tower. Construction is scheduled for completion next Jan. 1.

Mexicans Recovering Investment

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Rafael Solana, press chief of the Olympic Games organizing committee, said Tuesday that Mexico has recovered 80 per cent of the $44,000,000 spent in organizing and promoting the 1968 Olympic Games.

JUSTLY PROUD

"Mexico has demonstrated that an event of this type can be organized without spending a lot of money, something which would be open to censure in a country, like ours, which has pending needs," Solana told a meeting of the Mexican Geography Society.

The investment made in the organization of the games has been recovered by means of the previous sale of tickets and reservations, sale of television rights, of postage stamps, etc.

With regard to the investment in the construction of Olympic installations, estimated at another $40,000,000, Solana said most of it also will be recovered through sale of the installations after the games.

Mexico has already begun to sell apartments in the Olympic village where the athletes will be lodged during the October games.

Aussies Had Struggle To Down Sussex Side

HOVE, England (Reuters) — Australian cricketers had some anxious moments before clinching the fourth victory of their British tour Tuesday by beating Sussex, two days before the second test against England.

The touring team had to struggle through their second innings against a side they thoroughly outplayed in the first half. Not until after tea did they wrap up the victory, which had been expected since Monday.

Sussex, resuming at 241 for five after following on 210 runs behind, carried through their second-innings revival in fine style to reach 330—the highest against Bill Lawry's team so far this tour.

The Australians, set to make 121 in four hours for victory, lost half their side for 81 before reaching the target.

Tuesday's scores:

Gloucestershire 221 and secondly 116. Warwickshire 150 and secondly 75.

Nottinghamshire 226 for nine. Worcestershire 178.

Yorkshire 297 and secondly 228 for five declared. Leicestershire 239 and secondly 143.

Australia 298 and secondly 123 for five. Sussex 88 and secondly 330.

Benefit to Aid Watkins' Family

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats will play a benefit softball game Thursday night for the widow and children of Ted Watkins, recently shot to death in Stockton, Calif.

Facing the Tiger-Cats will be a team composed of several present and former Eastern Football Conference players.

Watkins, a native of Chicago, played four seasons with Ottawa Rough Riders and one with Hamilton.

POWER TOBOGGAN BAN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Restrictions on the use of power toboggans for hunting are being considered by the Manitoba government, Dr. K. H. Doan, acting director of wildlife, has announced.

Draft Boosts Coast League's Status

The stock of the long-established Pacific Coast Soccer League went up Tuesday, with some thanks going to the professional North American League.

Seven PCSL players were among the 228 players chosen by 17 clubs in the first NASL draft session. The full draft list is expected to reach 300 before the meetings in St. Louis come to a close, and other B.C. performers are expected to be added.

The PCSL's prestige soared when UBC's Jim Berry was singled out by Detroit Cougars as the first choice. Vancouver Royals followed by drafting Gene Gazzoler, Robbie Goodheart, Gerry Healey, Dan Wilson, Russ Hillman and Colin Atkinson, all of Vancouver.

Earlier, the Royals signed forward Ike MacKay of Victoria.

Otherwise and elsewhere, soccer provided these items for consumption:

In Edmonton, touring Borussia Dortmund trounced Edmonton's Victoria Canadians 11-0 in an exhibition before 3,500 fans Tuesday. The victory was the fifth in six games for the West German team which moves to Vancouver's Empire Stadium for a game with the Royals tonight.

At Toronto, the Falcons and Washington Whips played to a 2-2 NASL draw before 5,427 fans. Iris DeBrito scored both Toronto goals while Jorge Siega and Antonio de Oliveira counted for the Whips.

In Baltimore, the North American circuit was on the receiving end of a $3,400,000 damage suit filed by Shimon Cohen. The Israeli player, naming Baltimore Bays and San Diego Toros, charges breach of contract, interference of future prospects and slander.

Houston Perks Up For New Manager

By Associated Press

Harry Walker and Bob Skinner, baseball's newest managers, did double-takes Tuesday night but it was the New York Mets and San Francisco Giants who couldn't believe their eyes.

Houston Astros, who had lost six straight games and fallen deep into the National League cellar, made Walker's first day a rousing success by sweeping a twi-night doubleheader from the Mets 3-2 and 6-5.

Skinner, who succeeded Gene Mauch as Philadelphia skipper on Sunday, got his first two victories as the Phillies walloped the Giants in a twi-nighter 10-2 and 9-1.

Elsewhere, league-leading St. Louis Cardinals edged Chicago Cubs 1-0, Cincinnati Reds defeated Atlanta Braves 7-5 and Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Los Angeles Dodgers in 10 innings 3-2.

INJURY HELPED

The Astros won their opener on Jim Wynn's seventh-inning homer and took the nightcap on Bob Watson's seventh-inning sacrifice fly after blowing a 5-0 lead. Ironically, Watson had replaced Wynn after the Houston slugger aggravated a groin injury.

Denny Lemaster hurled a six-hitter in the opener, fanning 10, and rookie Jim Ray picked up his first major league victory in the second game with six innings of shutout relief.

Walker previously piloted St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates. The latter club fired him last July and he joined the Astros four days later.

MANAGED FARM TEAM

Skinner, like Walker a former hard-hitting big-league outfielder, was managing the Phillies' San Diego farm team in the Pacific Coast League when he was tapped to replace Mauch. He lost his debut to the Dodgers but looked on in delight Tuesday night as the Phils pounded out 13 hits in each game, posted their first doubleheader sweep since last August and climbed into third place.

Southpaws Chris Short and Woody Fryman went the route and batted in two runs apiece. Richie Allen who had his troubles with Mauch, and Cookie Rojas both slugged a pair of homers. The Phils salted away the first game with six runs in the fifth inning and scored four in the fifth inning of the nightcap for a 5-0 lead.

HAUNTS EX-MATES

Mack Jones turned on his former Atlanta team-mates by crashing a two-run homer in the ninth inning that powered the Reds past the Braves. Pete Rose cracked five straight hits for the Reds, including three doubles, while rookie catcher Johnny Bench betted in two runs with a homer and double.

Bobby Tolan's first homer of the season and Nelson Briles' eight-hit pitching carried the Cardinals past the Cubs. The Cards increased their lead to 5½ games over Atlanta in winning for the 17th time in their last 21 games.

Matty Alou's run-scoring single in the 10th inning scored Maury Wills from second base and gave Pittsburgh its seventh straight win and put the Pirates in a virtual tie for sixth place.

Don Drysdale, the Dodger starter, left the game after seven innings with a 2-1 lead and a pulled back muscle.

FIREMEN SAVED IT

In the American League, meanwhile, helping hands gave Cleveland Indians' Sam McDowell and Baltimore Orioles' Tom Phoebus the means to an end. Helping themselves got the Washington Senators nowhere.

Stan Williams pitched a perfect ninth inning to nail McDowell's 4-1 victory over Chicago White Sox and Pete Richert protected Phoebus' 3-2 nod over Oakland in the ninth as the Indians and Orioles pulled out of embarrassing tailspins Tuesday night.

The Senators exploded for eight runs in the last two innings at Minnesota, twice overtaking the torrid Twins, but still came up on the short end of a 9-8 count that ran their losing string to seven games.

First place Detroit Tigers edged Boston Red Sox 2-1 and California Angels subdued New York Yankees 3-1 behind rookie Tom Murphy in other American League games.

McDowell, Cleveland's southpaw strikeout king, braked the Indians' skid after seven straight losses, striking out seven and yielding six hits before giving way to Williams in the ninth.

Phoebus, 6-6, allowed six hits and fanned 10 until the ninth, when he was lifted with nobody out and the tying run on second base. Richert got Danny Cater to line into a double play, choking off the rally and bringing the Orioles' five-game losing streak to and end.

AIMING AT SEVEN FEET

Hoping to become first Canadian high-jumper to clear seven feet Saturday night at Centennial Stadium is Simon Fraser University star Wilf Wedmann, shown soaring over bar in practice jump. Wedmann, 19, holds Canadian record of 6:10¼ and is considered threat to win Olympic medal this year. He is one of several international calibre athletes included in more than 650 entrants for Victoria Y-Times meet, which will have strongest field in Vancouver Island track history. Age-class heats will start at 10 a.m.; age-class finals and open heats at 12:45 p.m., and open finals at 6:30. Open events will be trials for B.C. team.

Graebner Boosts Hopes

LONDON (AP) — The cannon ball service of Clark Graebner shattered the calm of London's Queen's Club Tuesday and sent the United States Davis Cup hopes soaring.

The 6-foot-2 tennis star from New York City defeated Australian professional Fred Stolle 6-4, 11-9 in the third round of the London grass courts championship.

The event is open to pros and amateurs and is the last big warmup event before next week's open Wimbledon.

Graebner's service—one of the biggest in the business—tells almost the whole story. Stolle never once got beyond 30 against service.

The big American dropped only 19 points in 15 service games. He served 14 clean aces and hit so many outright winners that the crowd lost count.

Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md., non-playing captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team, said: "When Graebner serves like that nobody can stop him. Let us hope he keeps it up for the inter-zone final."

The United States will play either Spain or Italy who meet next month to settle the European Section A title.

Pierre Barthes of France lost 4-6, 3-6 to Ron Homberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., in the first round and Rosemary Casals, a pro from San Francisco, lost 3-6, 10-8, 6-2 to Britain's Winnie Shaw in the second round of the women's singles.

Meanwhile, two more U.S. Davis Cuppers were eliminated. Tom Okker of the Netherlands defeated Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., 1-6, 6-3, 6-4 and Bill Bowrey of Australia downed Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., 6-4, 6-3.

Rod Laver of Australia and Billie Jean King of the United States today were named top seeds for the singles at the history-making Wimbledon championships opening Monday.

Laver, winner of the Wimbledon men's singles crown as an amateur in 1960 and 1961, now is a professional. So is Billie Jean, who took the women's singles crown in 1966-67.

Governments Step In To Ease Boxla Worries

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Colin Chisholm, president of Chisholm Lacrosse Manufacturing Co., says he will rebuild his fire-destroyed plant "with financial aid from the provincial and federal governments."

There was no insurance on the former wood structure, the world's largest producer of lacrosse sticks, when it was destroyed two weeks ago. Loss was estimated at $100,000.

Mr. Chisholm said in an interview:

"There are no more hitches; the boys (government agents) are coming. There will be enough government aid for us to do the whole job."

He said construction of the new plant will begin as soon as the money question is settled. He declined to say how much the building would cost.

Meantime, production is going on. Hickory cutting is being done in two industrial plants here, sanders and drillers are set up near the burned plant on Cornwall Island and Indian women of St. Regis reserve on the island are lacing sticks at home.

ANOTHER GAMES DATE SOUGHT BY VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver plans to bid for the Commonwealth Games in 1974 or 1978, it was announced Tuesday.

City council unanimously authorized Mayor Tom Campbell to make application.

A letter of intent will be sent immediately to the Commonwealth Games Association of Canada, council decided.

Vancouver was the site of the 1954 British Empire Games.

Fillies Challenge For Queen's Plate

TORONTO (CP)—Two fillies will be in the field for the 109th running of the Queen's Plate here Saturday and if one of them wins, she will duplicate the feat turned in by one of her sex last year.

It was Jammed Lovely who came out of the pack at Woodbine racetrack in 1967 to pluck the richest prize in Canadian racing for owner Conn Smythe.

This year the fillies are Solometeor, owned by E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm, and Mink Stole, from the Toronto barn of brothers Marc, Gene and Don Cavotti.

Mink Stole was generally regarded as the pick of the fillies until June 15, when Solometeor turned in a dramatic victory in the Oak Stakes.

Solometeor beat Mink Stole by 2½ lengths over 1⅛th miles and broke the race record by four-fifths of a second. Her time was 1:50.4, eclipsing the record Northern Minx set two years ago.

"If Solometeor runs like that in the Plate, she has a real chance," said Joe Thomas, Windfields' racing manager.

REBOUNDS FROM INJURY

That Solometeor ran at all was remarkable.

She came back lame from the Cup and Saucer Stakes last October and x-rays showed a hairline fracture in the left foreleg, in the cannon bone which extends from knee to ankle.

The leg was in a cast for two months. She came back in the Selene Stakes at Woodbine early this month and was fifth to Mink Stole over seven furlongs.

In the Oaks, the strategy was for the speedy Cavotti horse to break on top and set the pace but she stumbled coming out of the gate.

Thomas looks at Solometeor's father, Victoria Park, and says it's unusual for horses of her breeding to "like their races too close together."

However, he points to her performance last year when "she won the Princess Elizabeth Stakes at 1 1-16th miles and came back a week later in the Coronation Futurity and was beaten 2¼ lengths by the best Canadian-bred colt in racing, Arctic Blizzard."

South Africans Humble Tourists

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters) — Transvaal outclassed the British Lions Rugby Union team in the second half to win 14-6 here Tuesday.

It was the Lions' first defeat by a provincial side on their tour of South Africa, and the strongest challenge they had met since the first test at Pretoria, where South Africa beat them 25-20.

Transvaal's points came from a goal and three penalty goals. Robbie Barnard got the try.

HEARING SATURDAY

Racing Board Forces Issue

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky Racing Commission has filed a motion seeking to dissolve the restraining order that is blocking hearings in the Dancer's Image case.

The motion, filed Monday, asks Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs to dissolve the temporary injunction granted to Peter Fuller of Boston, owner of the colt which was disqualified as winner of the Kentucky Derby after traces of the drug phenybutazone were found in his system.

Meigs set a hearing on the racing commission's motion for 10:30 a.m. EDT Saturday.

Accompanying the motion to dissolve the injunction was a 350-page transcript from the racing commission's hearing of the case.

Assistant Attorney-General George Rabe said in his motion on behalf of the commission that "all information reasonably necessary for the plaintiff (Fuller) to have a fair opportunity to test the findings of the state chemist has been furnished. The information was disclosed to the plaintiff more than a month ago."

SUGGESTED MORE DATA

In granting temporary injunctions last week, Meigs directed the racing commission to furnish Fuller with more data from the findings of the state chemist, Kenneth Smith. Meigs said no hearing on the Fuller case could be heard until at least 30 days after such information was supplied.

Rabe in effect contended that no additional data was needed.

Monday's motion sought no action on two other injunctions granted by Meigs last week, involving Edward S. Bonnie and Arthur Grafton, Louisville attorneys representing Fuller.

Meigs held that the racing commission had no authority to issue citations against the two attorneys nor to hold hearings on them.

The citations had directed Grafton and Bonnie to appear before a hearing to show cause why licences issued by the commission should not be revoked for alleged "improper conduct" in connection with the investigation of the Dancer's Image controversy.

In turn, the attorneys had said they never had been licensed by the commission and were involved only as legal counsel for Fuller.

Meigs' order concerning the Fuller hearing said it could not be held until the action against Grafton and Bonnie had been settled.

Giants Trade Carr

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Olympic sprinter Henry Carr, a defensive back with New York Giants for the past three National Football League seasons, has been traded to Baltimore Colts in exchange for linebacker Barry Brown.

Curlers Elect Samson

At the annual meeting of the Victoria Curling Club Monday night, Dick Samson was elected president while Harvey Mossop and Bill McLean were elected first and second vice-presidents, respectively.

Scotty Campbell, Keith MacKenzie and Al Savage were elected to the board of directors fo two-year terms while Nancy Baker and Jack Smith will serve for one year.

BUT NO SIGN . . . . . OF YACHTSMAN

WRECKAGE SIGHTED

LONDON (AP) — A United States Navy ship reported finding wreckage Tuesday night in the area where a search is being conducted for Joan DeKat, a French competitor in the transatlantic yacht race.

DeKat, 27, was not found immediately. He sent a message earlier in the day that his 50-foot trimaran Yaksha was breaking up in heavy seas 900 miles west of Ireland.

Wreckage in the area was found by the United States Navy ship Dutton, a support ship for the U.S. ballistic missile program.

Race organizers in London said the description of the wreckage fitted that of decking from the main hull of the Yaksha.

"There still has been no sighting of DeKat," a Royal Air Force spokesman said. "But if he is in his inflatible dinghy with the hood up, he stands a very good chance of surviving."

Search organizers said sighting of the wreckage was a hopeful sign, possibly indicating DeKat's dinghy should not be far away.

The bearded yachtsman designed the trimaran himself.

The 3,000-mile race, sponsored by the London Sunday Observer, began June 1 from Plymouth, England, with 35 boats setting out for Newport, R.I.

The race leader is believed to be Geoffrey Williams of Britain in his ketch, Sir Thomas Lipton.

Quebec's No. 1 Tory Faces Fight

MONTREAL (CP) — Gamelin, a new Montreal constituency, made its appearance on the political map with a bang, even though it lacks the affluence of such sister ridings as Mount Royal, Outremont and Duvernay.

Political observers see a lusty struggle in east-end Gamelin where Marcel Faribault is driving for a seat in the June 25 election as Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's No. 1 man in Quebec.

Making his first try for election to political office, Mr. Faribault, 59, described the new and urban riding he chose as "truly characteristic of the whole province of Quebec."

Mr. Faribault told his nomination convention another reason for his entry in Gamelin was that he understood Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve would contest the seat.

LIVES IN GAMELIN

Mr. Sauve, too, had that intention but was defeated at the Liberal nomination convention by Arthur Portelance, a candidate who may not be so well known elsewhere but has the virtue of residence in Gamelin.

Gamelin thus took its place beside Manitoba's St. Boniface where another of Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet members, Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet, lost a nomination. Such nominations defeats of ministers had been unknown in recent Canadian history.

The New Democratic Party sees opportunity for itself in the early division of the Liberals and the ferocity of the struggle between the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

NDP candidate Denis Lazure, 42-year-old psychiatrist, made a strong bid for Parliament in an Outremont byelection last year and now has vaulting hopes.

COL. FARIBAULT
. . . first try

PORTELANCE
. . . defeated minister

VOTED LIBERAL

In the 1965 general election, when Gamelin formed parts of the constituencies of Mercier and Maisonneuve-Rosemont, the area voted 48-per-cent Liberal, 21-per-cent NDP, 19-per-cent Progressive Conservative and nearly 10-per-cent Creditiste.

But the boundaries of Gamelin resemble those of the provincial riding of Bourget, which in the 1966 Quebec election went to Premier Daniel Johnson's Union Nationale, whose machine now is supporting Mr. Faribault.

An offbeat factor in the campaign is the candidacy of Emile Laporte, 45-year-old builder who founded the Party for the Democratisation of the Economy, with aims summarized in the name.

Leo Larocque, 42, an independent candidate, says the fight is wide open because "nobody knows Portelance and Faribault is never here." Director of a district businessmen's association, Mr. Larocque said in an interview the Liberals are in disarray because of the split between Mr. Portelance and Mr. Sauve, now seeking a seat in St. Hyacinthe.

STRESSES RESIDENCE

Creditiste candidate Gaetan Bernard, 48-year-old truck driver and RCAF veteran, has worked as an organizer in past elections and he, too, stresses the importance of residence in the area.

Mr. Portelance, 40, who competes with Mr. Stanfield in more ways than one—he is an underwear salesman—makes much of the residence factor. He notes that the other major candidates live outside the riding, Mr. Faribault being a resident of Outremont, like Mr. Sauve, whose old Iles-de-la-Madeleine constituency vanished in redistribution.

An organizer of federal and provincial campaigns for nearly 20 years—friends say he never lost an election except to the late premier Maurice Duplessis—Mr. Portelance also has served as returning officer for Bourget riding.

The Tories stress Mr. Faribault's prestige as a French-Canadian distinguished in law, business and several other fields.

WAGE DISPUTE TALK RESUMED

Negotiations have resumed in the Empress Hotel dispute aimed at avoiding a strike.

Both sides met Tuesday and a further meeting is being arranged, hopefully by the weekend, said a union spokesman.

The statutory 48-hour strike notice was served Tuesday afternoon by Local 276 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, transport and General Workers, but implementation is not contemplated while talks contine.

Just over 200 employees rejected a recommended 15-cent hourly pay raise in a two-year contract plus classification adjustments and voted 92 per cent in favor of striking Victoria's biggest hotel. Present pay run from $1.25 to $2.33.

YORK RIDING UNIQUE

Diversification Brings Challenge

By PETER KIERNAN

TORONTO (CP) — Whoever captures York Centre in the June 25 federal election will be winning one of the country's most diverse ridings.

Its dominant feature is the variety of racial origins of the 63,000 voters—40 per cent Jewish, 20 per cent Italian and the remainder made up of several smaller groups.

The three candidates are meeting the challenge with everything from the traditional handshake to television "mini-debates."

NDP candidate Douglas Fisher maintains an edge on exposure through a regular political column in the Toronto Telegram and occasionally uses it to explore some of the issues that concern his constituents.

"Why should we subsidize Nazism," he asks in his May 14 column, and goes on to discuss Bill S-5, an amendment to the Criminal Code covering racism and hate literature which died with the dissolution of Parliament.

AWARE OF CONCERN

James Walker, Liberal member of the last House, is also well aware of the concern in the riding about hate literature.

While he has never "made a play for ethnic groups," Mr. Walker, MP since 1962 and Liberal whip from 1963 to 1965, has been active in trying to push the anti-racist legislation through the House.

His platform, like that of his NDP opponent and Progressive Conservative Rev. Donald V. Stirling is focused mainly on housing, national unity and economic problems.

Mr. Fisher is new to the riding. He was member for Port Arthur from 1957 to 1965 when he retired to journalism. His Port Arthur victory gave him a measure of fame because the loser was Liberal giant C. D. Howe.

He is in a Toronto riding now because "this is where the action is. It is the perfect base for someone who wants to be party leader."

DESCRIPTION FITS

The description fits Mr. Fisher, who has stated publicly he wants to succeed T. C. Douglas.

Mr. Stirling, on leave of absence from Leaside United Church, ran unsuccessfully as a New Democrat in Carleton in the 1965 election.

He says it was a "protest move" because he was disenchanted with the "frailty" of then Conservative leader John Diefenbaker. He returned to Conservative ranks when Robert Stanfield was elected leader.

Before his nomination in York Centre, Mr. Stirling unsuccessfully sought the party's nomination in neighboring York North.

The riding, inside the northern boundary of Metropolitan Toronto, has been sharply reduced in size since Mr. Walker won with a 9,201-vote margin over the New Democrat in 1965. The Conservative was a distant third.

Colonial Official Arrested in Haiti?

From CP

The Bahamian government says a top colonial official who had been listed as missing is under arrest in Port au Prince, Haiti.

The missing man, information director David Knox of the Bahamas, "in some way offended the authorities and is being held in custody," Bahamian spokesman E. P. Doyle said in Nassau.

Charles Sanderson, first secretary of the British high commission in Kingston, Jamaica, has been sent to Haiti "to obtain assurances of his well being and to seek his release," said Doyle, chief of Bahamian government information services.

Knox left on a weekend holiday May 30, ostensibly to Jamaica, a Bahamian government official said. He has been overdue since June 4.

In Washington, Haitian Ambassador Arthur Bonhomme said a man who had his face appearance changed by surgery arrived in Port au Prince and give his name as David Knox.

Bahamian officials said Sunday they took a serious view of the disappearance because of tense relations between the Bahamian and Haitian governments.

Meanwhile, it was reported from Miami Beach, Fla., that a boat similar to the one which Bonhomme said carried 14 men — and presumably guns — has sunk off Miami. Three men who say they were survivors were rescued.

Haitian officials recently charged that an invasion of their country was launched from the Bahamas or the United States.

Planes aimed bombs at the presidential palace in Port au Prince and landed a small invasion in Cap Haitien. Ten men of the invasion group, all Haitians, went on trial Monday in Port au Prince, Bonhomme said.

Rotary Funds Help Purchase Magnascanner

New radio isotope diagnostic equipment has been purchased for St. Joseph's Hospital with the help of the Douglas Rotary Club.

The club raised $8,000 towards the cost of a $15,000 Magnascanner through a car raffle.

The new piece of equipment is used for "scanning" hollow organs such as the thyroid, liver or kidneys rather than using E-rays.

One third of the machinery was paid for by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service with the rest made up by the hospital and the Rotary club.

A spokesman at St. Joseph's said the new equipment had been in use for three months with good results.

LAUDS CALGARY

Jewel-Toned Birds Create Unique Scene

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Travelling north to Edmonton on Highway 2 (four lanes and divided nearly all the way) we talked of the many things we had seen and the places we had visited in Calgary.

Forbes

"You haven't written much about them" accused my travelling companion.

"What, for instance?" I questioned.

"That unusual aviary in the middle of the zoo, for one thing," was the answer.

She's right, of course. The aviary was unusual. Especially in its location. Two huge, glass-roofed buildings, surrounded by grass and flowers and connected through covered walks to a small cafeteria where you could rest after walking around the zoo itself, and enjoy a sandwich and a cup of tea.

Sign on the outside door told us we'd find, just beyond, a small hallway in relative darkness, arranged to prevent tropical birds from flying out and away.

★ ★ ★

On the far side of this twilight zone was the aviary proper, where we found winding pathways, pools and waterfalls, tropical flowers and plants, a large collection of cacti (many in full flower) and small jewel-toned birds, twittering, singing and flying close above our heads.

In cages, here and there, were brilliantly feathered cockatoos, parakeets and parrots. They talked and mugged for us as we passed.

To ensure that the small birds do not hurt themselves in an effort to fly across the cafeteria from one conservatory to the other, fine bead curtains have been placed at the doorways.

The tiny things move unerringly through these beads, across the patio where tables and chairs are placed and in amongst the flowers on the other side.

★ ★ ★

Zoo, aviaries and a park, where we found realistically colored life-size replicas of dinosaurs and other ancient creatures of the region, are situated on St. George's Island, in the Bow River, that with its sister, the Elbow, meanders through the city.

Still travelling north toward Edmonton, we remembered hearing in Calgary of an air omnibus that flies between the two cities.

This shuttle service runs five times a day. The flight takes less than an hour. The terminal in Edmonton is the municipal airport, now almost in the centre of the city. So, little time is lost in reaching the downtown area.

There is no help with luggage. Brief cases and overnight bags are carried aboard by the passengers.

The service is used mainly by business and professional people and it is so popular, the omnibus rarely leaves either city not filled to capacity.

★ ★ ★

By now we were nearing our destination (it takes a good three hours by road) after passing such historic communities as Lacombe and St. Albert, both named for the fearless priest who walked this way in the days of the early west.

This reminded my travelling companion of history preserved in various places in Calgary. "You didn't write much about that," she reminded me.

Actually there is so much history preserved in Calgary, it would take many columns to cover it.

There's the Glenbow Foundation-Alberta Government Museum where displays bring Canada's early pioneers to life. The Horseman's Hall of Fame where exhibits present western Canadian history and famous horsemen —with life-size figures in picture frame settings.

There's the Calgary Brewery Aquarium with its native game fish as well as fresh and salt water marine life from around the world. And a railway exhibit in a hospitality centre in one of the parks.

Through lack of time, we missed other fine displays.

Why don't you decide to see something of this next-door neighbor (provincially) yourselves. The roads are good. And we can assure you the welcome mat is out — everywhere!

Needles Downed

DAGENHAM, England (Reuters)—The Ford Motor Co. Monday laid off 4,000 workers —mostly men — because 187 women who sew seat covers have downed their needles in a demand for equality. Production stopped after a two-week strike by the women who claim men doing the same work are paid five cents an hour more.

ARTIST CREATES UNIQUE THREE-DIMENSIONAL TAPESTRY

Weaver's Trade Is Slow and Costly Work

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

There are no shortcuts in Theo Moorman's trade, and very little money.

"I don't think there is anyone in our country who is living entirely from what they make out of the loom," said Miss Moorman, a professional tapestry-weaver from Gloucester, England. "There are no shortcuts. It is such slow work that you can never charge enough to make up for the time."

Born in Yorkshire, Miss Moorman has been weaving most of her life, with a big gap during the war. At this time she worked with the Arts Council of Great Britain.

"This brought me into contact with artists and sculptors. It brought me out of plain weaving and into the decorative aspect of tapestry."

One of Miss Moorman's latest and largest commissions was a three-dimensional tapestry for a school in Leeds. An abstract crucifixion scene. It is eight feet by nine feet, six inches in size and took six months of hard work to complete—at union wages the cost would be prohibitive.

In this massive work three layers of tapestry hang one behind the other. The tapestry is in shapes rather than one flat piece and these are suspended from threads so the viewer can see through one layer to the next. As he moves, the forms change their relation to one another.

Until this project, Miss Moorman worked entirely on her own. While she was working on this tapestry, however, she gained an associate, Gerald Carter.

"He is more of a traditionalist than I," she said, "but a very versatile weaver. He has been a tremendous help. He is one of these people who has an answer to everything."

Gerald Carter has brought one change into Miss Moorman's work. He dyes threads for her. "I don't do any spinning or dying myself. I work with available threads, sometimes with cellophane and occasionally lurex or unspun fleece. I don't experiment very much but I do have rather a line on incorporating flat pebbles into my work."

To Theo Moorman thread is like paint to an artist. "I work all the time," she said. "I go where the spirit leads me. I have done a lot of flimsy, transparent wall hangings lately.

"Of course when I am doing a commission for a specific place I have to consider fading, wear and so forth but I market everything.

"I have had several one-man exhibitions. I like joining up with another craftsman in another medium. It makes a better-looking show."

Miss Moorman feels things are looking up for the field of weaving. "I think the picture has changed very much during the past few years," she said. "In the old days if you suggested having a wall-hanging in a private house, no one knew what you were talking about."

Theo Moorman was in Victoria for one day to address the Victoria Handweavers' Guild. Her talk here was part of a whirlwind of speaking engagements that will take her down the Pacific Coast to San Francisco where she will spend two weeks teaching at a weaving workshop.

"I expect most of my students will be middle-aged. I would like to have a hippie student—it would be different."

"I put clothes at a minimum and packed all the samples I could," explained Miss Theo Moorman, a professional tapestry weaver from Gloucester, England. Miss Moorman crossed the Atlantic for the first time to give a speaking tour. (Robin Clarke photo.)

LOSE STAKES

Fancy fashions took the eye off flashy thoroughbreds Tuesday as Royal Ascot, the racetrack of social significance, opened a four-day pageant of big betting and haute couture.

The horses, as usual, lost the headlines to the clothes-horses. Outlandish entries in the fashion stakes included a woman with a 48-inch-wide hat, blocking the view of a dozen racegoers. Her choice of colors was faithfully carried out, even to one white stocking and one black.

An actress wore an outfit of real flowers, complete with watering can to keep them blooming. The gimmick proved superfluous as showers broke the sultry heat and watered the flowers naturally.

A 21-year-old girl, Jane Bough, wore a birdcage headpiece with a live budgerigar inside.

Parties Honor Recent Bride

Mrs. Glen (Beverly) Stocks was honored at a round of showers prior to her recent marriage.

Her co-workers at the Department of Finance, Data Processing, honored her at a lunch-time shower. the bride was presented with a corsage of yellow and gold chrysanthemums.

Granddad Walked The Road to Health

By PENNY SAVER

Walking is a healthful activity that reaches its peak in summer. Some people enjoy walking so much that they indulge all year round and in every sort of weather. I have an elderly gentleman neighbor who thinks this way. He has been walking every day all his life and contributes his continuing good health to his daily outings. This fine gentleman lives with his son and daughter-in-law and was quite elated when the doctor advised his son to start walking for his health. Unfortunately, the son waited until he had had a mild heart attack to heed this warning and now he cannot follow his hale father on long, rambling walks. He must walk a certain distance every day until his health improves.

How do you tell how far you have walked? I suggested a pedometer. A fine pedometer is $7. It looks so much like a wristwatch that you may find friends asking you politely why you have decided to keep the time on your ankle rather than on your wrist. This precision machine is cased in stainless steel and attached to a sturdy leather strap. Just set it to zero before your walk begins, strap it in place and begin hiking. The face of this pedometer is marked in various colored rings that are quite attractive to look at. Once you have got the hang of reading the pedometer, these rings will form an important part of reading the distance walked. Each color represents a scale for different pace lengths. The manufacturers have worked out a way that will give you as accurate a reading as possible no matter what size step you take. My elderly neighbor has worked out several interesting routes that his son can follow with this handy gadget.

Hubby's Gift Increases Safety

I am always borrowing my husband's razor blades to cut something or another. Unfortunately I often cut myself and always ruin the blade. The other day he brought me my own blade—one I just cannot cut myself on. This is a long, razor-sharp blade of fine steel that slips down into a combination handle and guard. A rachet system lets you rack the blade out to any length but won't let the blade slip out when you don't want it to. The blade has a sharp point as well as a sharp blade and is perfect for cutting newspaper clippings, recipes, paper dolls—anything. As the point of each blade becomes dull, just snap it off. Special scoring along the length of the blade lets you snap it off to a fresh, sharp point. Each cutter comes with five extra blades in the handy plastic pocket pouch and the blade-handle has a metal clip to clip it securely into a pocket. These cutters range from $1.50 for a narrow blade and rise in price as the blade becomes wider. The widest blade is one inch deep and can be used to cut linoleum. More blades can be purchased at six for 75 cents.

Just for fun I bought my husband a leather paper-weight. This paper-weight is also a bean-bag and when my husband took it to the office he and a few of the other employees indulged in an impromptu game of catch. These attractive paper-weights are of sturdy leather in a pale tone. They are double-stitched for added security so they can double as bean-bags with no trouble at all. Each is $1.95. Perhaps these are the solution to flabby office workers.

If you would like to know where these items are found, please call me at 382-3131.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNISM

LONDON (CP)—A flying Irish priest has decided to establish a unique Roman Catholic mission in the heartland of British Columbia. He calls it a lesson in Christian communism."

With the financial help of his Midlands parishioners and the blessings of Bishop William Wheeler of Leeds, Rev. Leo Walsh will head a company of six church workers who will care for thousands of Indians and whites in the Finlay River area near Prince George.

Since he will be exchanging his Huddersfield, Yorkshire, parish of 35 square miles for one of 50,000 square miles, Father Walsh, a licensed pilot, said he will require a plane and he already has in mind a rich American who will provide one.

WED 60 YEARS ON SATURDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Alexander, 755 Jasmine Avenue, will celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary on Saturday. They were married in St. Margaret's Church, Broughty Ferry, Scotland, on June 22, 1908, and came to Victoria in 1910. They have two daughters, Mrs. F. Archer and Mrs. F. Hebden. There are seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Legs May Still Need More Exercise for New Fashions

The current scene is still very "leggy." I cannot see that skirt lengths have come down any except for the maxi dresses one sees for late afternoon and evening wear.

Lowman

Contour and good grooming both play an important part in leg beauty. Not long ago I gave you some directions about defuzzing the legs, especially if you use the shaving method.

Now about contour! If you are overweight you will need to count calories as well as exercise. However if this is not your problem, and yours is one of contour, exercise can do wonders for you.

If you have pipe stem legs all exercises in which you rise high on your toes will help. Try this one. Stand with your right side toward a chair and place your right hand on top of the chair. Rise high on your right toe as you swing your left leg forward-upward with a stiff knee. Keep trunk erect. Return right heel to floor and left leg to place. Continue, rising as high on your toe as possible.

After a while stand with your left side toward the chair and rise high on your left toe as you swing your right leg forward upward. Return to position and continue.

Ankles are difficult to change because their shape is influenced to a great degree by bony structure. About the best one, is the old one, of making circles with your toes.

Sit on a chair and cross your right leg over your left. Draw large circles in the air with your right toe. Move your toe first in one direction and then in the opposite. After a while cross your left knee over your right and circle your left toe.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Why Not Take Steps Toward Lovely Legs?" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Son's Acting Bug Bugging Parents

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I applied to a well-known school of drama because I have always wanted to be an actor. I am a high school senior and have done only amateur things, but people who are supposed to know talent have said I had great potential.

To make a long story short, I was accepted. Naturally, I was overjoyed, but here is the catch. Now my parents won't let me go. They knew I applied, but they didn't say anything. Now they say they didn't raise any objections when I applied because they didn't think I had a chance. My parents say that "acting" is no profession. They would rather see me be a doctor or a lawyer.

My teachers and friends say that I would be foolish to pass up this opportunity, but what about my parents? Your answer will help me decide.

LOVES TO ACT

DEAR LOVES: If you are unable to pursue your education in drama without your parents' consent (and more important, their financial help) it would appear your "decision" has already been made for you, unless, of course, you choose to defy them and try to make it on your own. "Acting" is a fine profession, but requires more determination, patience, and "luck" than most, so don't blame your parents for their attitude. On the other hand, parents who will help their children only in careers which they themselves select, do their children a disservice.

DEAR ABBY: I have a screwball neighbor who goes on periodic "toots." He rings my doorbell with his own bottle in hand and I have to invite him in, shut off my favorite television program and listen to his alcoholic babbling. Then his wife telephones and asks me to send him home, after which she slams the receiver down as though it's MY fault that her husband came over here.

Please confess to me, Abby, when women are mad at their husbands aren't they mad at ALL men?

STU IN OAKLAND

DEAR STU: I can't speak for "all women." No one woman can. But if this screwball neighbor of yours presents a problem, it's easily solved. When he is on a "toot," and rings your bell, say, "Not tonight, Buddy Boy," and send him home.

DEAR ABBY: I just read in your column where some man told his wife he was not leaving her anything because he didn't want some other man spending his money.

After 15 years in the insurance business, I have run across my share of these characters. In the first place they usually don't have enough life insurance for Sweetie Pie to buy a ticket to the state line. I am always surprised when the husband thinks it's HIS money. Seems to me, both of them have worked for it.

I wonder if the husband remembers just who kept the house, made the meals, diapered the kids, walked the dog, drove him home when he was drunk, and listened to him cry about how his boss didn't appreciate him.

These knotheads don't realize that if it weren't for the little woman's scrimping and saving to accumulate a few bucks, he wouldn't have anything to leave anybody. Somebody should tell these dumbbells that a man will never have a better friend than his wife.

Frankly, I want mine to get every nickel I have. I wish I could leave her a million! And if she finds some other guy to spend it with — good for her. I hope they have a ball.

Very truly yours,
SAM SHAW, MT. VERNON, ILL.

Victorian Installed As Council Chairman

Mrs. W. A. Ludlow of Arbutus Club was installed as chairman of Council No. 5, Pacific Northwest Region of International Toastmistress Clubs at the annual meeting following a luncheon at the new recreation centre in Comox.

Past chairman Mrs. J. J. Wiart presided, and other new officers installed were Mrs. J. E. Hess, Chemainus, vice-chairman; Mrs. C. W. Clark, Co Co Ro club, secretary, and Mrs. W. E. Gould, Marina Club, Qualicum, treasurer.

Members of the Co Co Ro Club from Courtenay, Comox and Royston hosted the luncheon which was attended by 45 members representing the six clubs of Vancouver Island.

Installation officer was Mrs. S. M. McCulloch of Arbutus club, who is incoming regional supervisor. She presented Mrs. Wiart with a past chairman's pin, and the outgoing executive with corsages.

The Irene Warren trophy and the Vera Pipes trophy were on display with the Council History Book. The "Leaves of Gold" was won by the Co Co Ro club for having the greatest percentage of members present at the meeting.

Mrs. Ludlow announced that the first council meeting of the new year will take the form of an officers' training session to be held in Victoria in September.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

In reply to the many readers who have asked for information which appeared in previous columns, I'm happy to repeat the answers (and then some):

DILEMMAS ABOUT DOCTORS

After my recent discussions on dermatology and plastic surgery, there were numerous requests for names of clinics and doctors who might treat specific problems. For this information, contact the local medical association in the city nearest your home.

HAIR SCARE

One of the most frequently-expressed requests concerns the frightening problem of falling hair. Excepting bacterial infections, nervous conditions, aftermaths of illness or medicinal therapy, look to seasonal hair loss as a real culprit. During this period, be especially kind to your hair and scalp. Avoid harsh brushing or teasing.

At least once weekly before washing, heat a bit of corn oil and apply it to your scalp with a wad of cotton. Then wrap a hot, wet towel around your head, rewetting several times to keep up the warmth. Follow by two soapings with a castile shampoo (melt your own from a bar of castile soap).

Ask your doctor about supplementing your diet with cod liver oil which provides vitamin A and D—very beneficial to the health of your hair.

COCOA BUTTER CUBES

Cocoa butter is one of those products that may seem rather mysterious but is really a down-to-earth beauty aid. It's the fatty substance obtained from the seeds of the tropical cacao tree and is the important ingredient in both cocoa and chocolate.

The "butter" is processed in both bar and stick form and is also utilized in countless beauty preparations (available in most drug stores).

Cocoa butter products are wonderful natural emollients, excellent for controlling stretch marks on your body and lubricating both hands and feet.

You'll find cocoa butter great for enriching a sun tan, too. Just don't consider it either a sunscreen or a sun block.

ON SALT SPRING ISLAND

Annual Luncheon Meeting

Provincial president Mrs. K. H. Bancroft travelled from Vancouver to attend the annual luncheon meeting of HMS Ganges Chapter IODE, held at Harbor House in Ganges.

Mrs. Bancroft gave highlights of the 68th annual national meeting to the Salt Spring Island group, stressing that diversity and flexibility was needed in the order. She reported that the order's charter is to be opened in 1970 for review and possible revision.

She said that education was the order's outstanding project, extending from each primary chapter to the international scene. Scholarships for study at overseas universities have been increased from $3,000 to $5,000. Scholarships for study in Canada were raised from $2,000 to $3,000.

She spoke of another education project, which is the support of traffic safety education. She told members that the IODE story is slated to be told on television.

Mrs. O. L Stanron and Mrs. R. Gordon Crosby were thanked for their convenership of the recent arts and crafts fair. Treasurer Mrs. Ed Richardson announced that it had realized proceeds of $373.

Educational secretary Mrs. George Wells was thanked for her work with IODE essay contest for school children. Mrs. Wells said it was hoped to make it possible for the essays to be read by all Salt Spring Island residents.

Mrs. Wells reported that an inviatiation has been sent to Mrs. Alice Bobronik, teacher of the chapter's adopted school at Quilchena, inviting her to visit the local school.

Service convener Mrs. Grant Cruickshank said eight nursery bags had been filled and sent to overseas hospitals. Four more will follow shortly. She said that clothing and jewelry brought to the meeting would be sent to the women's apparel shop at Riverview Hospital.

Covers were laid for 29 at the luncheon. Those attending included several guests who were welcomed by regent Mrs. F. K. Parker. Corsages, made by Mrs. Laurie Mouat, were presented to Mrs. Bancroft, Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Stanton.

The chapter will resume meetings on September 6.

LEUKEMIA RESEARCH

Cells Hold Secret Of Eternal Youth

HONEY HARBOUR, Ont. (CP) — The leukemia cell has the "secret of eternal youth," a leading American cancer researcher said Monday.

Dr. Charlotte Friend of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, New York, told the Canadian Cancer research conference that the cell possesses the secret because it never grows old and dies like normal cells—it just keeps growing.

This means, he said, for body cells "normalcy means death, and malignancy means perpetual life."

Dr. Friend discovered in 1956 a leukemia virus in a mouse. These cells have lived for three years, she said.

She said that if leukemia cells are governed by the same machinery as normal cells, then there may be a way to transform the leukemia cells into normal cells which grow older.

"If such were the case, maturation would ultimately lead to death and equilibrium would once again be established," said Dr. Friend.

'Hard Sell' By Soviet Car Dealers

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A gang of car dealers preyed on the desire of some Russians to acquire a car at any price by drugging and swindling them, the newspaper Evening Moscow said today.

It reported 17 black market car salesman went on trial on charges of swindling and poisoning clients, three of whom died from overdoses of drugs.

The newspaper cited the case of two Armenians who wanted a car and were told to board a train from Moscow to Riga, Latvia, with their money and pick up the car there.

It said the dealers gave the Armenians drugged champagne on the train and when they fell asleep stole from them 8,500 rubles ($11,000)—about twice the fixed price of a new Russian Volga.

The newspaper said the black market ring miscalculated the drug dosage in three previous cases and poisoned their victims.

The Soviet Union does not impose the death penalty for this kind of murder, but large-scale economic speculation can bring a death sentence.

Blast Kills 11 Miners

LOTA, Chile (AP) — Gas fumes exploded deep in an undersea coal mine Monday, killing 11 miners and injuring 15. The government sealed off the mine and ordered an invvestigation. A spokesman for the Lota-Schwager Coal Co. said the explosion was believed caused by the detonation of a dynamite charge in a shaft about 3,000 feet beneath the Pacific Ocean.

Cypriot Corps Mandate Given Extended Life

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Security Council Tuesday renewed the mandate of the UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus for another six months and urged both Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots to continue efforts to settle their longstanding dispute.

The council unanimously adopted a resolution which took note of Secretary-General U Thant's recommendation that the 4,500-man force remain on the island during the forthcoming talks between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot representatives. Canada has about 900 men in the force.

FIRST IN YEARS

Earlier this month the two sides met in Beirut, Lebanon, for the first time in 4½ years and agreed to resume their negotiations June 24.

The force, established in March, 1964, is authorized to remain in Cyprus until Dec. 15. The council also expressed the expectation that by then "sufficient progress toward a final solution will make possible a withdrawal or substantial reduction of the force."

In his report last week, Thant noted that conditions in Cyprus have remained calm for the last three months, although the basic differences between the governing Greek-Cypriot community and the Turkish-Cypriot minority have not been resolved.

In a statement after the vote Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff said that the secretary-general's latest report "offers new grounds for hope that a political settlement of that island's problems can be attained before many months have passed."

He expressed hope that the six-month extension of the mandate for the UN force "will be understood as a measure to facilitate and not to delay the vigorous pursuit of the inter-communal talks which have just begun."

APPOINTMENT of Patrick Watson as co-host of the CBC-TV program The Way It Is was announced Tuesday by Ross McLean, executive producer of the CBC Public Affairs program. The Way It Is succeeds the Seven Days program which was the centre of controversy two years ago. Mr. Watson's co-host on The Way It Is will be John Saywell.

B.C. PLAN 'OPEN DOOR' FOR MANITOBA

REGINA (CP) — C. H. Witney, Manitoba's minister of health, said in an interview Tuesday that acceptance of the British Columbia medical care plan to qualify under the federal medical care scheme means Manitoba will enter the federal scheme "some time."

"As we see it, the Ottawa acceptance of the B.C. plan means the voluntary plan based on need is acceptable.

"Our policy has been a voluntary plan based on need," said Mr. Witney, who was in Regina as an observer at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

He declined to say when Manitoba was likely to enter into the federal program. It was announced last week that the B.C. plan qualified for inclusion in the federal medical care scheme.

MEDICARE SURVEY MADE

Severe Tax Rise Unlikely

OTTAWA (CP) — A research worker for the Canadian Tax Foundation says that introduction of medical care insurance, even if all provinces were to participate, should not mean severe increases in taxation.

David B. Perry, writing in the current issue of the Canadian Tax Journal, also estimates that with Saskatchewan and British Columbia alone joining the plan on July 1, the combined cost to them will be $50,189,000, and the federal treasury will have to pay $45,628,000.

Mr. Perry outlines the difficulty of making firm estimates of future medical care insurance costs because of the unknown number of provinces participating, the rising cost of medical services, and the uncertainty of federal and provincial tax policies.

He says, however, that the estimates given the House of Commons last year appear reasonable. They were that the total cost, with all provinces participating, would be $885,000,000 in a full year based on the 1968-69 fiscal year, or $1,000,000,000 in the first full year of operation, 1969-70.

Under the law which comes into effect July 1, the federal government will pay to each participating province one-half of the average per-capita cost of providing all insured services in all participating provinces, multiplied by the population of the participating province. The provinces, however, have to pay the cost of administration in addition.

Only Saskatchewan and B.C. have indicated they will begin the plan July 1. To qualify, a province must offer a publicly-administered plan for at least 90 per cent of its population, rising to 95 per cent after two years. The plans must be portable among the provinces.

Mr. Perry says administration costs are likely to run to five per cent of the total costs.

He estimates Saskatchewan's total cost would be $28,529,000 in the nine months from July 1 to the end of this fiscal year, next March 31, and Ottawa's share would be $14,564,000 or 51 per cent.

He estimates B.C.'s total cost would be $67,288,000, of which the federal share would be $31,064,000, or 46.2 per cent.

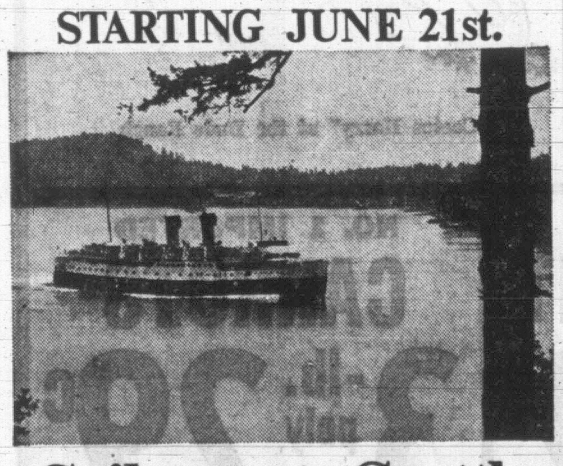

Assuming all provinces are participating in the next fiscal year, Mr. Perry estimates the total cost at $951,214,000, of which the federal share will be $452,661,000, if there were no increase in the per capita cost of medical care.

He allows a five-per-cent increase in costs, bringing the total cost next year to $998,774,000, of which the federal share would be $475,299,000.

"The federal share of medicare will probably be financed out of federal general budgetary revenue, in all probability through increased taxation," Mr. Perry says. Former finance minister Mitchell Sharp had this firm intention.

"The provinces have the option of imposing premiums to finance their share, or they, too, can use their general revenues," Mr. Perry says. "According to our calculations, the effects need not be severe, even if the total cost of medicare is borne by the tax system."

FIGHTING FOR FIRST SEAT

Quebec NDP Chief Gives Philosophy

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — French-Canadian nationalism has an all-Canada meaning in the philosophy of Robert Cliche, Quebec leader of the New Democratic Party.

"I am a real French-Canadian but at the same time I belong to a country and I love that country," says Mr. Cliche, whose party is driving hard to win its first Quebec seats in the June 25 federal election.

The 47-year-old campaigner, in the middle of knocking on 12,000 doors in Montreal Duvernay riding, paused to tell a reporter about his life and politics—and to spin a few admiring yarns about his old grandpere.

"I don't speak two languages," he emphasized. "I say the same things in French and English."

Mr. Cliche was once an ally of such men as Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Jean Marchand, Gerard Pelletier and Rene Levesque — now Quebec breakaway leader—in battle against the late authoritarian premier Maurice Duplessis. A former Liberal, he feels the NDP is the natural home for him and his friends.

"I thought for a while we would all continue to do things together," said Mr. Cliche in a tone of deep regret at the parting of the ways of these men who shared youthful ideals.

CLICHE
. . . frustrations

'TWO FRUSTRATIONS'

On Quebec policy, however. the NDP—advocating special status—is closer to Robert L. Stanfield's Progressive Conservatives than to Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberals, said Mr. Cliche, a lawyer and son of a lawyer.

"We want the Canadian constitution, the British North America Act, rewritten because the Two Solitudes have become two frustrations," he added.

The tendency of English Canada was to centralize power in Ottawa on the ground that division of decision tends to weaken the country.

"I know many English-Canadians are frightened of American assimilation. They are less protected against it than French-Canadians because of our language, our way of life which has been so different.

"For this reason, they want to centralize, they want a strong central power. We know that, right or wrong—whether they be good reasons or bad—Quebec will never want to centralize power."

The answer was a renegotiation of powers providing Quebec with an "infrastructure" on such matters as social security—a position on which all provincial parties, including the Quebec Liberals, were virtually united.

DEFENDS QUEBEC STAND

"Very often English Canada had reasons to be mad like hell at Quebec," said Mr. Cliche. "I understand the feelings of English Canada. Sometimes you had plans you thought were good, but Quebec said no, citing provincial jurisdiction. . . .

"I know the term special status has an unpleasant meaning in English Canada, because it is understood as privilege. It is not privilege, but a way of arranging powers so that you can develop to your full potential and we can, too."

Mr. Cliche, who sports an impressive mane of greying black hair, is always an animated speaker and often an impassioned orator as French Canada's leading exponent of socialism. His socialism is laced with sometimes deadpan, sometimes explosive humor.

His only real opponent in northend Duvernay, 95 per cent French-Canadian, is Liberal Eric Kierans, the intellectual warrior who fought Mr. Trudeau for the prime ministership.

The Cliche—pronounced kleesh—family has thrived in Beauce, south of Quebec City, for centuries and Robert has a whimsical explanation of the clan's present prominence.

It was because his habitant grandfather—"almost a Socialist, though he didn't know it"—had 10 sons in a row, plus one daughter. Lacking land to make them all farmers, he sent them to college.

The result was an array of educated men—Robert's father, lawyer-magistrate Leonce, being former Beauce mayor and twice Liberal candidate, and his uncles including a judge, two doctors, two chartered accountants and a druggist.

Robert's education included St. Dunstan's University, Charlottetown, and Laval but in 1942 he joined the Canadian navy as an ordinary seaman, emerging as a signals officer in 1945.

He encountered no discrimination—somewhat to his surprise—and loved the navy though he was posted much of the time to an old tub, HMCS Buxton, that seemed always "stuck" somewhere.

With his degree from Laval, he established a law practice after the war and soldiered for the then-weak Liberal party against Duplessis' powerful Union Nationale, inspired by the radical liberalism of his grandfather and father.

"The real aim was to fight Duplessis and I was not asking myself questions about the Liberal party."

After the 1960 victory of provincial Liberals, Mr. Cliche turned his full attention to law—"I hoped to become a great jurist"—but joined the NDP in 1963 when Prime Minister Pearson reversed nuclear policy. He was then a part-time law lecturer at Laval.

Succeeding Gerard Picard as NDP leader in 1964, he contested Beauce in the 1965 general election, running second, and has been driving ever since.

"I accepted the leadership for only one year—then I would hang up my skates—but when you form a team, it is not easy to retire."

Isn't there incompatibility between his nationalism and socialism?

"None whatever. Fifty years ago a socialist was an internationalist. But since the war socialism and nationalism have worked together, particularly in the emancipation of Africa."

Mr. Cliche sees the NDP as "challenger of the Liberals" in 12 of Quebec's 74 ridings and he himself has been banging on doors in Duvernay since last September.

It is virtually a family project, with his attractive blonde wife, writer Madeleine Ferron, taking one side of a street while he takes the other.

Students Repelled By Venice Police

VENICE, Italy (UPI) — Militant leftwing art students fought police and enraged Venetians in St. Mark's Square Tuesday night but failed to occupy famous St. Mark's Cathedral and its bell tower.

The students raised a red flag in front of the cathedral before truncheon-swinging police sent them fleeing over Venice's 400 canal bridges and into narrow streets surrounding the sprawling piazza.

The thwarted effort to take over on one of the world's best-known tourist attractions came after 4,000 policemen repulsed student attempts to occupy the Venice Biennale International Art Exhibition, the noted gallery of the fine arts academy and a museum on the Grand Canal containing the 18th century Venetian paintings.

It was the first time an attempt had been made to invade Italy's historic churches during the nation's month-long wave of student agitation.

Where's Cynthia?

B.C. Quits Tideland Dispute

The provincial government Tuesday quietly shelved its dispute with Ottawa over who owns the tidelands at Roberts Bank.

A cabinet order granted the federal government a 115-acre temporary easement over lands required for the building of a three-mile long cuaseway for the Roberts Bank superport.

The National Harbors Board has already called tenders for the causeway.

The provincial government maintains its claim to the tidal flats between the shore and the low water mark by granting an 18-month easement which expires Dec. 31, 1969.

The cabinet order states settlement of the jurisdictional dispute is expected before the end of the 18-month easement.

The easement involves a long strip of tidal land 300 feet wide at the shore broadening to 400 feet at the low water mark.

The causeway to be built here will run to an aritifcial island where coal from Fernie, B.C., will be loaded for shipment to Japan under a Kaiser Steel Corporation contract.

The port facilities must be completed by 1970 to fulfil the contract.

The cabinet order says the easement is granted "in view of the necessity of immediate access."

Postal Talks Set Thursday

OTTAWA (CP) — A conciliation board that will try to avert a nationwide postal strike this summer is expected to meet in Ottawa Thursday to get ready for formal hearings into the dispute.

The three-man board under the chairmanship of Professor Andre Desgagne of Laval University will have 14 days from the time it starts formal hearings to report on the dispute between 24,000 postal workers and the federal government.

The chairman of the public service staff relations board, Jacob Finkelman, can grant an extension to the 14-day limit if the board requests it. The hearings are expected to be closed.

Other members of the board are Ben Coffey of the Ontario Civil Service Association representing the employees and Keith Campbell, a CPR vice-president, representing the treasury board, bargaining agent for the government.

The Council of Postal Unions broke off negotiations April 25 after three months of bargaining and called for a conciliation board. Mediation efforts by Quebec Provincial Court Judge Rene Lippe in the interim failed.

A council spokesman said 40 of the postal workers' demands remained unresolved in addition to the key dispute over wages.

Three Hurt When Car Hits Tree

Three persons were seriously injured Tuesday night when their car went out of control, skidded over an embankment and slammed into a tree on the West Saanich Road.

Driver, Rachael Williams, 22, of 971 Pauquachin, Cole Bay, is in fair condition with facial injuries. Her husband, Donald, 22, is in good condition with chest injuries.

A second passenger, Ernest Wilson, 26, of Saanichton, is in only fair condition with head injuries.

All three are in St. Joseph's Hospital.

LEARNER

Police said the southbound car was driven by Mrs. Williams, holder of a learner's permit, when the accident occurred on a curve in the 500 block, just south of the Little Saanich Mountain observatory entrance.

Barry Gill, 1305 Marchant, a passer-by, was injured while helping the occupants from the car.

He was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for a leg cut and released.

Sons of Norway Open City Meet

The Sons of Norway will hold the first convention of its newly-formed 7th district of B.C. lodges in Victoria beginning Thursday.

Delegates to the three-day meeting at Norway House, 1110 Hillside, will represent nearly 3,000 members of five Island and seven mainland lodges.

Speakers and guests will include Norwegian Consul-General Stein Haaland, Mayor Hugh Stephen, Haaken Soros of New Westminster, supreme director of the organization and Brent Vanberg, a public relations specialist from Minneapolis.

Music Scholarship Awards Announced

Annual open scholarship auditions of Victoria Musical Art Society were held recently at the home of the president, Mrs. S. G. Watts.

Judges were John Coevat of Toronto and Laszlo Gati, Victoria Symphony conductor.

Winner of the top scholarship award of $200 was pianist Camille Inkman.

Scholarships of $150 each were awarded to Trudie Conrad, violinist, and George Kiraly, cellist.

A number of vocalists, instrumentalists and pianists were auditioned.

All three of the winners have signified their intention of pursuing a career in music.

Municipalities Promised Help On Ambulances

NELSON (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Tuesday he will recommend to the next sitting of the B.C. Legislature that municipal per-capita grants be increased and the money used for ambulance services.

He noted that the grant now amounts to $25, but did not elaborate on how big the increase would be.

Mr. Bennett made the remark in reply to a question asking if the provincial government would consider ambulance services as part of the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service.

He said the government did not want centralized ambulance service because "it is something that can be run better locally."

The premier spoke at a public meeting in support of Ted Brothers, Social Credit candidate for Kootenay-West in the federal election.

Newsman Ousted

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) —The photo editor for The Associated Press in Africa, Dennis Lee Royle, left Rhodesia today with his family, in accordance with a government expulsion order. CPR OPPOSES RAISE

Firemen Pay Boost Recommended

OTTAWA (CP) — A wage increase of 24 per cent over three years for passenger-train firemen and 15 per cent for firemen on freight and yard engines with the CPR has been recommended by a federal conciliation board.

The board's majority report Tuesday rejected arguments by the railway that the 1,600 firemen are already paid enough and should receive only a 7-per-cent increase over three years.

A federal conciliation board last week recommended similar wage increases for CNR firemen.

The firemen, members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, would receive the increase in five stages from July 1, 1967, to July 1, 1969, under the board's recommendations.

The last contract expired June 30, 1967.

Figures presented to the conciliation board showed that CPR firemen last year had average gross earnings of $7,434.

The majority report was written by Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal and the union nominee, Ottawa lawyer Maurice Wright. The CPR nominee, R. V. Hicks of Toronto, filed a dissenting report objecting to any increase beyond the 7 per cent offered by the CPR.

Noon Hour Crash Hospitalizes Man

A man was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital after he suffered head injuries in a collision shortly after noon today.

Police said the injured man was the driver of one of two cars which collided at Johnson and Vancouver.

There was only one man in each car and the other driver was uninjured.

Both cars, one southbound on Johnson and one eastbound on Vancouver, were apparently attempting left turns.

TAX-FREE MILLIONS

Capital Gain Levy Backed by Candidate

In Victoria pensioners are paying tax on incomes of $1,300 a year.

Meanwhile Canada's land speculators are "raking in tax free millions," Victoria NDP candidate Dr. Harvey Richardson charged here Monday.

He told Dougals Rotary Club at Red Lion Inn that while Canadian workers are being heavily taxed "land speculators and stock market manipulators escape paying taxes on more than $5,000,000,000 yearly."

Dr. Richardson said the NDP is the only national party supporting the 1964 Carter Report on Taxation which advocates people be taxed according to total income, regardless of source.

(A capital gains tax, which would apply to profits made on trade transactions is a major plank of the NDP election platform.)

The result of such a reform, he said would be that "people earning less than $10,000 a year would pay less taxes while high money free loaders would make their fair contributions."

He added, "This would increase the contry's tax revenue by hundreds of millions."

Dr. Richardson said the Conservative party openly oppose the Carter proposals.

"This gross injustice can be eliminated only by a capital gains tax.

"Mr. Trudeau brushes off this Carter proposal.

"This is a strange reaction from a man who goes around the country saying repeatedly that he favors a just society."

Doctors Attack Inadequate Medical Care for Indians, Eskimos

By KEN KELLY

REGINA (CP) — Medical care for Indians and Eskimos was labelled inadequate Tuesday by the general council of the Canadian Medical Association.

The CMA move, made during the association's annual convention which ends Saturday, was a direct attack on an attempt by the federal government in March to curtail medical care for the native peoples.

Council said curtailment would cause deterioration of maternal and child health care and that only constant improvement in the care would reverse increasing mortality rates in these two fields.

It noted maternal deaths among Indians and Eskimos were "far greater" than among other Canadian groups and that the "vast majority" suffer from lack of income, poor nutrition and housing as well as isolation.

Dr. J. R. Mitchell, chairman of the CMA maternal welfare committee, said "a great deal can be done to help the Indians with family planning and prenatal and delivery care."

The committee proposed regional consulting services be established by the medical profession on a voluntary basis until federal and provincial health departments make satisfactory arrangements.

Meanwhile, a professor of clinical pediatrics from the New York School of Medicine said pregnant women or those expecting to become pregnant, should not use drugs unless recommended as treatment for a specific illness.

Dr. Sidney Q. Cohlan told a CMA scientific forum that although drugs were responsible for less than three per cent of infant abnormalities, "in the present stage of our knowledge . . . it's wise . . . not to take anything unless it is specifically indicated."

The general council adopted a proposal from the Manitoba Medical Association that a statement of how doctors should treat so-called "hopeless" cases should be included in the profession's code of ethics now being rewritten.

The MMA proposal said new knowledge and techniques make it possible to keep body tissues alive artifically, but may bring the doctor into conflict with his duty to cure disease and relieve pain.

PRESSURE FROM PUBLIC

Gun Control Bill Pushed Ahead In U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — With opposition melting under public pressure, a bill to ban the mail order sale of rifles and shotguns has been sent to the Senate judiciary committeee, for years a graveyard of such legislation.

The committee, meeting today on the bill, rejected it originally 10 to 6 just a few hours before the April 4 sniper-slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

But, against a backdrop of the Senator Robert F. Kennedy assassination and a mounting public din, a clear majority now favors the bill and its chances are rated excellent—not only to reach the floor, but perhaps for quick passage.

The measure would go a step further than a section of the omnibus crime control bill passed and sent to the White House just after the Kennedy assassination.

The omnibus bill would ban only mail order handgun sales which President Johnson criticized as too weak.

IMPROVES LOCAL LAWS

The bill also would provide for federal grants to strengthen state and local law enforcement and authorize under court permission police wiretapping. Another section is designed to overturn some recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions on admissibility of confessions and other evidence in federal criminal trials.

The Johnson administration also opposed the wiretapping provision.

The deadline for Johnson to sign or veto the bill is midnight tonight. If he takes no action, it automatically becomes law.

The Senate judiciary subcommittee on juvenile delinquency gave quick approval Tuesday to the bill to ban mail order rifle and shotgun sales. Johnson had urged its quick enactment.

DIRKSEN FOR IT

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, ranking minority member of the parent committee, said he foresaw no objection to reporting the measure favorably to the Senate.

Under committee rules, however, a single member could request that action be put off for a week.

In Lansing, Mich., the president of the National Rifle Association said today that proposed legislation to restrict the sale of firearms "won't save a single life this year or any year."

Harold Glassen, a Lansing lawyer, said in an interview the pressure for new laws is "idiotic" and results from frustration because of the loss of political leaders.

Glassen said the NRA opposes federal gun legislation but not state law in the field.

NUCLEAR ARMS FOR THE HOME?

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — When Congress devised the second amendment to the U.S. constitution in 1789, it certainly didn't have in mind today's pistol-packing Dallas housewife, the Ohio machine-gun owner or the modern-day Montana schoolboy.

Still, this brief amendment—much misinterpreted in the opinion of many—is cited as ensuring their "right," and that of millions of Americans, to "keep and bear arms."

The interpretation is so broad, said Senator Edward Brooke (Rep. Mass.) recently, that "conceivably an individual could even acquire a nuclear weapon."

In all other developed countries, where gun-toting is a much-controlled privilege, gun deaths are a fraction of the nearly 800,000 U.S. citizens killed by privately-owned guns since 1900. This compares with 630,768 Americans killed in all the country's wars.

In the growing clamor for stricter gun-control legislation after the second Kennedy assassination, the voice of the opposing National Rifle Association was heard loud and clear.

CLAMOR 'MASOCHISTIC'

"A strange masochistic spectacle," said President Harold W. Glassen of the thousands of "normally level-headed Americans" urging the government to take "by force one of their basic civil rights, the right to keep and bear arms."

Typically, he did not quote the whole amendment.

Conceived in the dangerous days after the American Revolutionary War, and recognizing the necessity of trained civilians at the ready, the amendment reads:

"A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the rights of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

Advocates of controls argue that the role of the "militia" today in defence of the nation and the individual is filled by the defence department, local police and the National Guard and there is no need for private arsenals. The anti-control faction contends that rioters, criminals and Communists are armed—and will continue to arm themselves illegally—while the rights of the law-abiding citizen will be infringed.

Actually none of the rather mild laws proposed, even gun registration, would infringe on the rights of anyone, save convicted criminals, habitual alcoholics, the mentally unstable and drug addicts.

2,000,000 GUNS SOLD

But the NRA sees any form of control as the thin edge of the wedge penetrating its solid wall of resistance. Meanwhile, gun sales soar past 2,000,000 a year, with particular increases in areas recently hit by riots.

The gun-control debate is almost as old as the American gun fetish and yet no court has given a decisive modern-day interpretation of the second amendment.

Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut and allies sought a ban on mail-order gun sales following the 1963 rifle slaying of President John Kennedy. With the gun assassinations of Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Senator Robert Kennedy, Congress hastily passed a shallow version banning only mail-order traffic in pistols and revolvers.

An amendment by Senator Edward Kennedy seeking to include rifles and shotguns was voted down. So was another by Senator Brooke to prohibit private sales of machine-guns, short-barrelled shotguns and rifles and "destructive devices"—including poison gas bombs, grenades, mines and rockets.

CHATTERTON SKEPTICAL ON ELECTION TEST POLL

A warning against election forecasts by national columnist Peter Regenstreif was issued Tuesday by Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate George Chatterton.

Mr. Chatterton said Mr. Regenstreif, whose columns appear in a morning paper here, is spreading Liberal propaganda.

He is trying "to convince people in advance that the Liberals will win," Mr. Chatterton told a coffee party meeting at the home of A. V. Price, 3337 Acemink.

"He did exactly the same thing in the 1965 election, but people should be forewarned about this type of clever brainwashing.

"The fact is that Mr. Regenstreif's forecast for the November, 1965, election was completely wrong . . ."

Mr. Chatterton showed that the columist predicted 153 Liberal seats whereas the actual count was 131 and his forecast number of Conservative seats was 11 under the actual, making an error of 33 seats.

"No doubt Mr. Regenstreif will make another forecast before this election and I hope people will be forewarned," said Mr. Chatterton.

ADVANCE POLL DOUBLED

Heavy Vote Seen in B.C.

A huge turnout to advance polls here and throughout British Columbia indicates a heavy vote will be cast in the federal election Tuesday.

Returning officers who noted a doubling in size of the last advance poll here—and a tripling in some parts of B.C.—said the other possible reason is that more vacationers than usual plan to be out of their ridings on election day.

In Victoria riding, 1,150 votes were cast at advance polls Saturday and Monday, compared to 607 in 1965, before redistribution.

In Esquimalt-Saanich 1,062 people voted in advance, compared to 332 in 1965.

Victoria returning officer David Wilson said the fact that the 1965 election fell in November, usually a non-vacation month, might also have affected the total.

Returning officers in Vancouver thought a large number of commercial fishermen plan to be at sea next week, which also would have boosted the vote.

But the increases were as large in many interior ridings which are unaffected by the fishing industry. In Kamloops-Cariboo the total of 897 was double the 1965 total.

Six polls in Burnaby-Seymour registered an advance poll of 1,077 compared with 800 from eight polls in the last election.

A triple increase was shown in Vancouver Centre, in Burnaby and in Vancouver Quadra.

In Quebec City the advance poll was heaviest in history and two polls ran out of registration forms.

Owners - Union Both Blamed For Doldrums

Victroia shipyards have been as much at fault as their trade unions in pricing this area out of shipbuilding, Esquimalt-Liberal candidate Dave Anderson said Tuesday. He told a coffee party gathering at 3400 Bethune, "High labor costs are only half of it."

He said he had made this point in discussions with the prime minister after the PM scolded shipyard workers in his speech here Monday.

Mr. Anderson said, "The companies have failed to invest sufficiently. They have been protected too long by cost-plus contracts and subsidies."

He said that if the companies were as automated and modern as some yards in the east the working force here is of sufficiently high calibre to increase production, thus cutting costs.

"We've got better workers and they build better ships," he added.

Following the meeting he recalled in interview that when he was once working in a local yard clearing water from bilges, he devised a syphon to speed the work. But a foreman made him stop it and revert to bailing.

Mr. Anderson is to address workers at Yarrows, in the cafeteria, Thursday at noon.

Sailors Help Douse Flames

NANAIMO — Eighteen members of the ship's company of HMCS Cowichan helped extinguish a beach fire Monday on Valdez Island, just north of Porlier Pass on the east coast of Vancouver Island.

The Cowichan spotted the fire from the sea at 12:50 p.m. and saw that it was spreading to nearby timber. The fire party landed and, aided by six civilians and using a portable pump, had the blaze extinguished by 2:30 p.m.

House Design Contest Draws Many Entries

A $50,000 provincial government competition to encourage new forms of low-cost, good-quality housing attracted 84 entries from builders, architects and non-professional people.

Provincial authorities said it would be several weeks before winners would be announced and expressed pleasure at the large number of entries.

First prize for the best plan is $25,000 and the second is $15,000, with 10 awards of $1,000. Most of the entries were from B.C. with several from other provinces and the U.S.

The contest ended June 15.

HATE LITERATURE

'Some of Blame Rests on Grits'

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP) — Robert Thompson, former Social Credit leader, said Tuesday he rejects "hate literature" aimed at Prime Minister Trudeau, while feeling the Liberals are partly to blame for it by not telling the Canadian people enough about their party leader.

Mr. Thompson, running as a Conservative in the June 25 federal election, spoke at a news conference here Tuesday ending an Atlantic provinces tour.

A reporter asked him about an alleged campaign to brand Mr. Trudeau "soft on communism."

Such campaigns were not started by politicians, Mr. Thompson said. "I think it comes from the public . . . I don't condone hate literature. I dissociate myself from this kind of thing. But . . . I can understand people's reaction to this because the man is not known," Mr. Thompson said.

"The Liberals are partly responsible for this because they don't tell you anything about this man. They don't admit that he was a member of the New Democratic Party.

"But, you read the book The Social Purpose for Canada, his chapter on federalism and it sounds a lot different than you hear from his speeches."

Mr. Thompson said: "I think if the Liberals were a little more open in telling something about their leader's past, his ability and worth in being a candidate for prime minister . . . there would be less question in the minds of the Canadian people."

Hepatitis on Rise

VANCOUVER (CP) — The number of hepatitis cases in Vancouver this year almost equals the total for 1967. Medical health officer Dr. Gerald Bonham said there have been 77 cases of the intestinal and liver disease, compared with 82 cases and three deaths last year.

RAND—Joseph George Rand of Route 1, Vashon, passed away on Saturday, June 15, 1968, in a Seattle hospital following an extended illness. He was born in London, England, on December 13, 1896 and came to Victoria, B.C., in 1910, where he began a career as a pressman. He served in the 2nd Canadian Military Regiment during First World War. He came to Seattle in 1923 where he continued work as a pressman, retiring because of poor health from the Frayne Printing Company, after forty years in the business. He then became owner of Rand Realty on Vashon Island, where the family has made its home since 1928. It was about ten years ago that he sold that business. Mr. Rand was a charter member of the Vashon Unitarian Fellowship. He also held memberships in the Pressmen's Union and the Vashon-Maury Grange. Survivors include his wife, Mabel Heal Rand, at the home; two daughters, Mrs. Paul (Virginia) Schwartz of Vashon and Mrs. John (Barbara) Walls of Anchorage, Alaska; a brother, Kabel Rand of Victoria; six grandchildren.
Services were held at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, June 18 1968, at the chapel of Island Funeral Service, Vashon, with interment at the Vashon Cemetery.

She also leaves a daughter, Dr. Sonia Ryan, Denver, Colo.; three sons, Mark C., Victoria; C. Michael, Eugene Ore; Robert C., Cambridge, Mass.; 3 grandsons in Denver and 3 grandsons in Victoria. Mrs. Stuart was well known in music circles as a pianist, teacher and composer.
Cremation took place in New York on June 8, 1968. A memorial service will be held at a later date.

WHITE—At the Veterans' Hospital on June 18, 1968, Mr. Joseph B. White, aged 90 years, a pioneer resident of Victoria. He leaves his wife, Dora; 2 daughters, Mrs. A. J. (Kathleen) and Mrs. F. (Grace) Thomas of Victoria; 2 sons, Frank E. of Victoria and Roy J. of Sidney, V.I.; 7 grandchildren; 6 great-grandchildren; 2 nephews and 3 nieces. He served in the Boer War and First World War and was a member of the Army and Navy, Victoria.
Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros. FLORAL CHAPEL, Johnson and Vancouver Streets, on Thursday, June 20 at 3:15 p.m. Interment at the Veterans' Cemetery.

8 CARD OF THANKS

As it is impossible for us to thank everyone personally, we wish to express our heart-felt gratitude to all who sent flowers, for the great amount of cards, for every kind word and sympathetic handshake offered to us in our time of sorrow at the loss of a dear daughter and sister, Annette; her husband, Ernest, and children, Terri and Sandra Bitterman. Thank you also for donations to the memorial fund, as well as gifts and money given to Janet. A special thanks to Revs. Hornby and Upton for the comfort we received from their words at the service.—The A. Leland family, J. Leland family, K. Leys and family, N. Thompson and family and Rev. F. Funk and family.

I wish to express my thanks and appreciation to my many friends and relatives for their wonderful acts of kindness and sympathy in the death of my husband, Samuel G. Wilson. Also thanks for their many cards and donations to The Heart Fund, with special thanks to Canon J. Rogers.—Mrs. Enice Wilson.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BUDYNSKI — In loving memory of a beloved husband and father, Clarence Budynski, who passed away June 19th, 1967.
One sad and lonely year has passed.
Since our great sorrow fell.
The shock that we received that day.
No one can ever tell.
God gave us strength to meet it,
And courage to meet the blow,
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
You bade none a last farewell,
Not even said goodbye.
You were gone before we realized it.
Sadly missed, but always remembered by his loving wife, daughter, son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

CRAUSE—In loving memory of our dear sister Rose, who passed away June 19th, 1965.
Her memory is as dear today
As in the hour she passed away.
Fondly remembered by Mabel and Lily.

ELECTION VOICE

'Under 35s' Come Into Their Own

OTTAWA (CP) — People under 35 have a slightly stronger voice for the federal election next Tuesday than in the last two elections, in 1965 and 1963. But they are still far short of the election year of their greatest influence, 1921.

The age group 21 to 34 now makes up about 32.6 per cent of the population of voting age, 21 and over. This compares with 31.8 per cent in 1965 and 32.1 in 1963. The proportion was 39.7 per cent in 1921, the first year for universal suffrage in federal elections.

The proportions cited here may not apply precisely to the people eligible to vote next Tuesday, for two reasons.

First, the latest age-group breakdown of population estimates dates back to June 1, 1967. The estimates are prepared for June 1 in each year in which there is no official population count and the 1968 figure is not yet ready. However, the year-to-year change in these proportions has not been significant.

Second, since the proportions are based on population counts they may not apply to lists of eligible voters, which don't show ages.

BIG DIFFERENCES

There are big differences between population counts of persons 21 and over and totals of eligible voters.

The June 1, 1967 population estimate showed 11,562,200 persons 21 and over. Preliminary tabulation of eligibles for the coming election showed a total of 10,791,502. It is anticipated subsequent revisions will bring the final figure to about 10,875,000.

In 1965, voting eligibles totalled 10,274,904. Population 21 and over than was about 10,976,500. The 1963 conts showed eligibles at 9,910,757, people 21 and over at about 10,625,300.

Several factors may enter into the seeming discrepancies. Some people 21 and over may be ineligible to vote because they aren't Canadian citizens. Others may be missed in the election enumeration and may make no effort to be listed.

The slight gain over 1965 in the proportion of persons 21 to 34 all comes about in the younger 21-24 group. They now form 10.6 per cent of the persons of voting age against 9.8 in 1965. Their high was 12.8 per cent in census year 1931, which would apply pretty closely to the 1930 election. They formed 11.8 per cent in 1921.

SHARE IDENTICAL

The 25-34 group now makes up about 22 per cent of the voting age population, identical with their 1965 share. In 1921, they formed 27.9 per cent.

Percentages of people in the voting age groups 35-44 and 45-54 are slightly lower now than in 1965. The 35-44 proportion now is 22.2 per cent against 22.9 three years ago and its high of 24.1 in 1921. The 45-54 group now stands at 18.4 per cent compared with 18.6 in 1965 and 16.6 in 1921.

People 55 and over are holding their own, as compared with 1965, and have gained sharply from 1921.

The proportion 55 to 64 now is 13.1 per cent, the same as in 1965. They formed 10.8 per cent in 1921.

Those 65 to 69 now stand at 4.8 per cent, against 4.7 in 1965 and 3.6 in 1921. Those 70 and over now make up 8.9 per cent, the same as in 1965, and well up from 5.2 in 1921.

14 Plumbers, Heating Men Complete Course

Weekend graduation ceremonies at the Union Centre, Quadra Street, saw 14 plumbing and heating technicians receive certificates of merit after a five-year training course.

Provincial government official M. E. MacDonald presented diplomas to Lynn Watt, Paul Courville, Tom Tudor, Malcolm Williams, Dave Wallace, Maurice Hunt and Mrs. Edward Freeman present to receive the award for her husband.

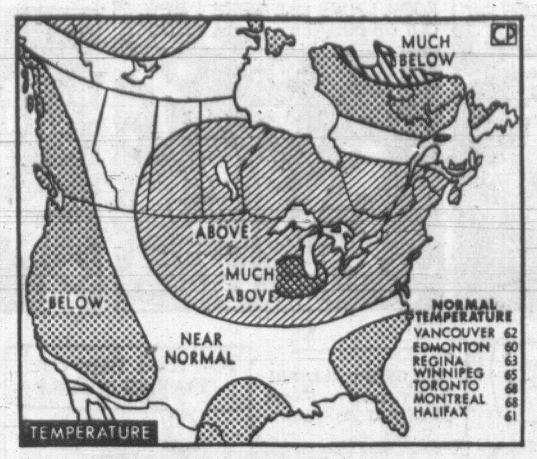

Other graduates completing the joint labor-management apprentice training course but not present to receive their diplomas were: Stan Hodgkinson, Sidney Rucketh, Dave Ridley, John Davies, Tony Gill, Paul Noble and Harold Larson.

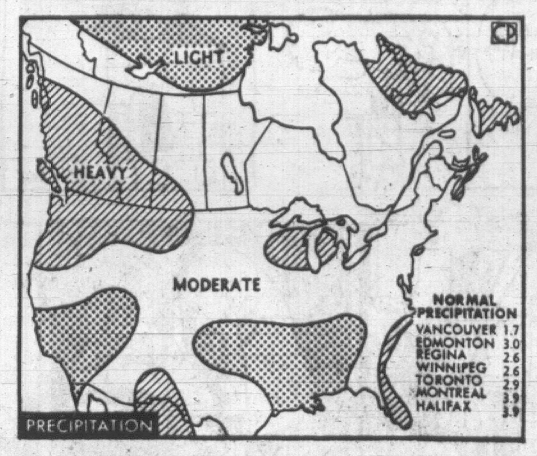

Special awards for high marks in night school courses were presented to Stan Johns, Tom Wilson (a journeyman completing a refresher course), Collin Smith and Hank Wasper, a double prize winner.

Dave Frampton and George Tantz also won special night school course awards but were not present to receive their money awards from S. E. Evans, chairman of the joint-training committee.

General chairman for the presentations, the banquet and dance which followed was Alex Simpson.

Several major construction, plumbing and heating contractors in the Greater Victoria area attended the annual graduation ceremonies.

SUBNORMAL temperatures and higher than normal rainfall is the 34-day forecast for British Columbia according to the United States Weather Bureau. Its long-range forecast gives the rest of Canada above normal temperatures and average precipitation.

LONG TALKS

Escalation Of Viet War 'Deplorable'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant declared Tuesday both sides are escalating the war in Vietnam and expressed a belief that the Paris peace talks "will be deadlocked for a long time to come."

Thant told a luncheon of the UN Correspondents Association that the United States has increased the number of bombings in North Vietnam since the beginning of 1968 and that the Viet Cong "are escalating their raids—I would say even barbarous raids—on many cities, causing the deaths of many innocent civilians."

"This escalation of the war, in my opinion, is most deplorable."

Thant said he still believes the best approach to Vietnam peace would be acceptance of his three-point plan which calls for a complete halt of U.S. bombing in North Vietnam, followed by a reduction of the scale of fighting by both sides and negotiations in which all parties would take part, including the Viet Cong.

He reiterated his opinion that neither side could win a military victory, but said neither had yet accepted this conclusion and this was the reason for the lack of progress in the Paris talks.

HOME GARDEN

Best to Dig Out Bulbs

By HILDA BEASTALL

Higher temperatures the beginning of the week encouraged ripening of daffodil leaves. Most of them are now lying flat on the ground, a sign that the bulbs may be dug for summer storage.

Hilda

While narcissus bulbs (and this means all those we call daffodils) may remain three years without being lifted, they make such enormous clumps in that time as to crowd themselves into starvation.

When growing the beautiful named varieties, it certainly pays the gardener to lift, separate and replant the bulbs in the fall, so that enriched soil may be supplied.

Lift the bulbs carefully, using the yellowing leaves as a guide to their location. A digging fork will do less damage than a shovel, but even so a few may become impaled on the tines.

Lay the bulbs in shallow wooden boxes out of sunlight in an airy shed or garage, allowing the leaves to remain attached until they become dry.

Turn the bulbs daily to hasten the drying process, and do not attempt cleaning until leaves will come away freely without pulling.

Soil and loose dry skin may then be removed. If bulbs separate readily, allow them to do so. Usually those which are completely round will come away easily, while others may have two flattish bulbs attached, one on each side. Leave them as they are for planting.

During summer, store in a cool, dry place, being sure that no heat or moisture can cause damage. This summer ripening period has a distinct influence on the quality of bloom obtained next spring in the garden.

Cleaned and properly stored, the bulbs will be a pleasure to replant in the fall.

YOUR HEALTH

Heart Attack Types

Br. DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

According to many studies by Dr. Meyer Friedman, of Mt. Zion Hospital in San Francisco, so far as heart disease is concerned, there are two types of people: Type A and Type B; it is the Type A person who is most likely to get a heart attack.

Alvarez

Not all doctors are yet interested in this idea, but more and more are listening to what Dr. Friedman says.

Dr. Friedman and his associates questioned some two hundred business executives and some 75 physicians who were treating heart patients, and asked the doctors what in their opinion caused heart attacks in friends and patients.

The results were jolting. Three-fourths of the doctors and executives blamed as a cause not diet, not lack of exercise, not cigarettes, not even worry.

They incriminated a peculiar behavior pattern in which an individual is forced to meet many deadlines and feels almost constantly a decided sense of urgency.

Interestingly, they found that in 40 bookkeepers and accountants their blood cholesterol shoot up in the first two weeks of April when they were working day and night to get out income tax reports. This showed that the level of blood cholesterol can be influenced by the brain.

Then Dr. Friedman and his investigators turned to large corporations in a search for the most aggressive and most ambitious men they could find — men who daily face the pressures of many deadlines.

Eighty of these men were labeled Group A. A second group of 80 who were less aggressive and less time-conscious were listed under Group B. Another 45 who were suffering from acute anxiety were designated as Group C.

The relaxed Group B men did not have a high blood cholesterol, and even though they ate much fat they did not suffer any more frequently from heart disease than do Italians and Africans.

★ ★ ★

On the other hand, the overly ambitious and time-harassed Group A men, while eating no more fat and cholesterol than did the Group B men, showed a far higher level of blood cholesterol, and a faster blood clotting time than did the B and C men.

And the Group A men had several times as much coronary heart disease as did the quieter Group B men. Women with Type A behavior, culled from the big career group, showed essentially the same characteristics as did the A men.

Of late some 3,500 men have been examined, measured, questioned, and observed during four and a half years, and the findings left "not the slightest doubt" in the minds of the investigators that Type A behavior was implicated in the production of coronary heart disease. Fifty of the 69 men who got coronary heart attacks during the period of study had been classified as prone to getting such disease.

The study showed that the Type A man excretes more adrenalin and especially more adrenalin during his working hours.

This powerful chemical comes out of the adrenal glands which lie just above the kidneys.

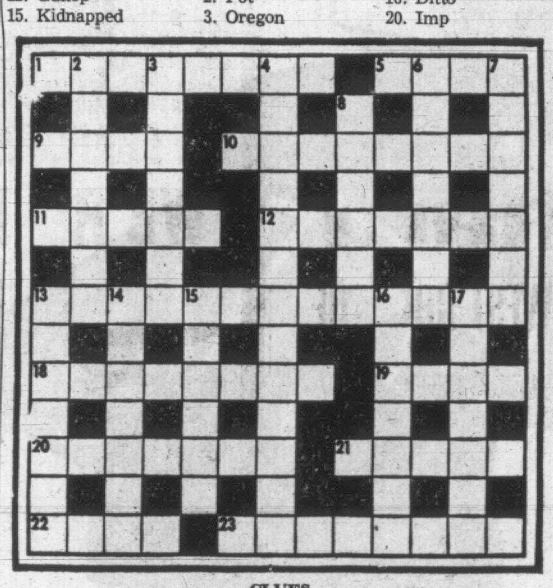

Curiously, Dr. Friedman said that the A men don't always become presidents of large companies, "because they lose their creative ability. The B's get to the top. They beat an A every time creatively." Possibly, they spend more time thinking. Naturally, an A man can get a stomach ulcer. In my experience a man of the A type can get an ulcer when he runs into strain and worry in his business or in his home.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Daniel John, age 13, of Duluth, Minnesota, for his question:

Do we know how stars are formed?

This conundrum is a big problem for the astrophysicists and the stellar astronomers. A star has an immense life span and we cannot watch it progress from birth to death. The experts, however, have used masses of indirect evidence to figure out the most likely answers.

We cannot explain every detail that occurs in the formation of a star but we have a general idea. It is based on masses of data gathered with the help of telescopes and spectroscopes. Our knowledge of nuclear physics also helps, for stars are cosmic powerhouses of nuclear activity. In addition to all this data, researchers in recent years have also had the help of the radio telescope. This instrument gathers radio waves of cosmic energy from afar. It has corroborated the findings of the big telescopes and also added a new range of its own to our picture of the cosmos.

We know that our star-studded galaxy is strewn with immense clouds of hydrogen gas and cosmic dust. Since stars are more or less concentrated balls of these materials, it seemed logical to regard such clouds as stellar breeding grounds. Evidence from both telescopes and radio telescopes has supported this idea. Surveys of the vast hydrogen nebulae in the constellations Orion, Taurus and Perseus reveal pockets of concentrated materials. They appear to be developing stellar eggs in cosmic nests of filmy hydrogen.

In such concentrated pockets, we can expect the gaseous particles to collide more often than those in the thinner parts of the cloud. With time and more time, colliding particles stick together and form larger fragments. Radio surveys have pinpointed a wide range of different materials in the stellar embryos. The dust fragments contain heavy atoms such as iron and nickel, compounds such as methane and ammonia and crystals of frozen water.

Star Congeals

This process of building larger from smaller bits of matter seems reasonable. It seems logical to expect the same process to continue. But we are not certain how the dusty fragments congeal to form a massive, unborn star. One theory suggests that they are pushed together by the weak, slow-acting pressure of star light. In any case, the star empryo takes eons to congeal. Gravitation and other cosmic forces cause the dusty pocket to shrink and become dense. It reaches a critical stage and the next operation occurs in perhaps a mere 100,000 earth years. It is ignited by its enormous pressure and heat and the infant star is born in a blaze of seething nuclear activity.

The basic ingredient in star formation is hydrogen gas. Radio images reveal the hydrogen atoms in nearby stars as sharp, narrow spikes. In cosmic clouds, the hydrogen image may be a blurred hump. Such distortions reveal the structure and turbulence of a cosmic cloud. The velocities of the streaming gases vary from 1,000 to 100,000 miles per hour and every 10 million years or so our galactic cloud collides with another one and gains fresh energy. If it has wild turbulence plus high heat and pressure, it is likely to form a batch of new stars.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Joshua Wolin, age 10, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, for his question:

How long does a star live?

A star does not blaze by the same process as a fire of coals. Nevertheless it burns and as it burns it consumes fuel. It is a nuclear powerhouse that consumes hydrogen gas, transforming it into helium gas. And, like a coal fire, it may burn fast or slow. The faster it burns the bigger and hotter the blaze and also the more fuel it consumes. It starts out with a built-in quota of its own hydrogen fuel and when this supply is consumed, the star becomes a lifeless ball of dark, dead ashes.

Compared with life on earth, the life span of every star is very long. Astronomers estimate that some of the fast-burning stars may burn themselves to ashes in perhaps a million earth-years. This is about the shortest life expectancy for a star. Stars like our sun, that burn more slowly, can expect to live 20 to 30 billion years or so. Other stars burn even more slowly. Some of them may expect to live 50 to 100 billion years. At last, however, every star now shining will burn up all its fuel and go on its way as a cold dark ball of dead ashes.

Suddenly, Greats of Past Become Real Personalities

By AUDREY JOHNSON

There were no doubt many, especially among the younger members of Tuesday night's audience at McPherson Playhouse, to whom the names Burbidge, McCready, James Quinn, even Irving, were nothing more than echoes of a past era.

But this morning, for most of us, they will have become fleshed out, personalities with whom we are at least slightly acquainted.

This was achieved through the theatrical skill of two men — Martin Jenkins and Harry Hill — presenting an unusual and completely original entertainment.

INFORMAL

On a stage comfortably furnished in the style of an English country gentleman's study, in an intimate and informal manner, the actors reviewed the careers of England's Great Knights of the Theatre from the first great tragedian, Richard Burbidge, to the latest, Paul Scofield.

The Shakespearean play which linked these men and their lives was the tragedy of King Lear.

But the tragedy aspect was treated with complete objectivity — except for the several excerpts. The over-all prsentation was dominated by a sense of humor that kept laughter rippling through the audience.

Through direct commentary, through the reading of reviews of the period, letters, journal entries and passages from memoirs, the actors peopled the stage with the various and distinct personalities of four centuries.

Because the style was so objectively balanced, so buoyant, the excerpts from Lear stood out like jewels in a simple setting.

The scene when Lear's two daughters combine to divest him of his last evidence of kingly estate, the scene between blinded Gloucester and mad Lear, Cordelia's death scene — these had power to enthral and move the audience.

Students present must have learned something about that most neglected (in this city) part of the actor's equipment, the voice.

Mr. Jenkins is a master of the subtleties of vocal color. His whisper is more expressive and more distinct than most actor's ordinary levels of speech.

TO BE REPEATED

Great Knights of the Theatre, which will be repeated June 28 and 29 at the McPherson, is not for the causual seeker after entertainment, but ideal for theatre-steeped persons who delight in the "something-different" that comes to hand all too seldom.

It does seem to me that many performers, deceived perhaps by the size of the McPherson, misjudge the energy-level and projection required.

In this particular, it appeared an adjustment upward could be made my Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Hill without destroying the relaxed informality of the presentation.

Restore Parking For Amputated; Daffodils Out

The Victoria city traffic committee Tuesday agreed to reinstitute parking privileges for amputees and paraplegics on Humboldt Street near the Belmont Building.

A two-car parking strip was recently removed by orders of the same committee.

After hearing a letter from the War Amputations of Canada and a verbal presentation to back the letter, the committee decided to reinstate the parking spaces and to issue stickers to amputees and paraplegics permitting them special parking privileges.

In other business the public works committee rejected a request by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce to hang daffodils from flower baskets next spring.

"It's a highly hazardous operation," said parks superintendent Herb Warren. "If we get a late frost the flowers die, if we get a warm spring they flop. Daffodils just aren't suited for the baskets and they are very expensive, too."

The committee will inform the chamber that daffodils will not hang next spring.

FORMER night club owner and dancer Lillian Reis was awarded $1,825,000 Tuesday in a libel suit against Saturday Evening Post magazine. She claimed invasion of privacy and libel from publication of a story, They Call Me Tiger Lil, published in 1963. She was involved in two headline burglary trials in the early 1960s and is currently appealing a robbery conviction involving a coal company official.

LONG STRIKE FEARED ON BROADWAY

'No Business in Show Business'

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking members of Actors Equity prepared for a long run in their Broadway theatre picket lines as positions hardened in the second day of their walkout.

The strike which closed 19 shows here and nine on the road showed no sign of an early settlement. Taxi, bar and restaurant business slumped sharply in the theatrical district. Three of the Broadway shows will not reopen.

"There's no business in show business," quipped ticket agent David J. Foley, as he handed out refunds at a box office. The strike cut off a $1,000,000-a-week flow in box office receipts.

Vincent D. McDonnell, chairman of the state mediation board, was not optimistic about settlement prospects: "The position is exactly as it was on Monday—very grave. If there is no change this can be a long strike."

Lions Star Fined

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions fullback Bill Munsey, 27, was fined $100 Tuesday for possession of an unregistered firearm. RCMP said they found a loaded .635 semi-automatic gun under a mattress in Munsey's home.

ACTION 'REASONABLE'

Police Shooting Verdict Reserved

NELSON (CP)—Actions taken by Constable Gordon McPhail of the Nelson police force, charged with criminal negligence in the April 19 death by shooting of Walter Polzun, were "entirely reasonable", police chief H. M. Thomlison told a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Chief Thomlison told the hearing that police had reason to believe a break-in would be attempted by Polzun at the Kootenay Cleaning Centre, where the shooting took place, and that police "staked-out" the firm.

He said he had received an RCMP message in 1967 that Polzun had escaped from the provincial mental hospital. and said he considered Polzun a dangerous criminal. Polzun had been convicted twice before of possession of weapons.

A second constable, Allan Herbert Skaley, who was with McPhail the night of the shooting, testified that in conversation with Polzun April 14 in a police cell, Polzun implied he broke into a Nelson store and stole six weapons. Constable Skaley said Polzun told him that if he ever got into a tight spot, he would get as many policemen as he could.

Corporal Keith Nicol described McPhail as a good investigator and never reckless.

Crown counsel R. B. Allan, summing up, asked that trial be ordered for McPhail on criminal negligence charges. Defence lawyer Stewart Enderton asked that the charges be dismissed.

Magistrate Parker Williams said he will hand down his decision Friday.

WILL SURVEY BERING SEA SHELF LAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — An extensive survey will be made this summer of the floor of the Bering Sea as part of a long range program to map all of the 862,000 square miles of continental shelf land adjoining the United States, the U.S. Geological Survey has reported.

The Bering Sea study will include a search for indications of gold, tin, platinum or petroleum. It will be the most comprehensive study ever made of the area off Nome, Alaska, between St. Lawrence Island and the Seward Peninsula, the federal agency said.

The study will be made jointly by the Geological Survey and the Environmental Sciences Services Administration.

NEW EVIDENCE GIVEN

Anti-Smoking Drugs Found Not Helpful

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New evidence that smoking is harmful to both women and men was given to the American Medical Association by several investigators today—along with a report that drugs now in use to deter smoking don't help.

Dr. Colin R. Woolf of the University of Toronto challenged what he said was a general impression that smoking might be less injurious to women than to men.

Dr. Woolf said the use of cigarettes by women has risen sharply since the Second World War and there has been a progressive increase in the prevalence of coughing, wheezing, chest colds and lung disorders in women.

Dr. Charles Schuster Jr., University of Michigan pharmacologist, told the AMA's annual convention that lobeline sulfate, widely used in smoking clinics, had no effect on the number of cigarettes smoked by test subjects.

SMOKING INCREASED

He said subjects who were given D-amphetamine, an appetite depressant, increased their smoking by 20 to 25 per cent.

Meprobamate, a tranquillizer given to overcome tensions built up when people quit smoking, "had no effect whatsoever on smoking behavior," he said.

The only thing that helped, he added, was injection of nicotine equivalent to that which goes into the blood stream from smoking two cigarettes.

This decreased the number of cigarettes smoked by about 25 per cent.

FRISCO FORCES GUN CONTROL

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) —The toughest gun control measure in the U.S. enforcing registration of every privately-owned weapon in San Francisco, was approved by the city board of supervisors Monday night.

The proposed city statute, now almost certain to become law, makes failure to register any type of gun a misdemeanor punishable by up to six months in prison and a $500 fine.

Garrison Challenged By Clay Shaw

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Clay L. Shaw has asked a federal court to permanently bar District Attorney Jim Garrison from prosecuting him on a charge of conspiring to murder President John F. Kennedy.

The court was told that allowing Garrison to prosecute Shaw would be tantamount to repudiating the Warren commission report, which Shaw's lawyers called "the most elaborate investigation ever made in the United States."

The Warren commission said Lee Harvey Oswald gunned down Kennedy in Dallas in 1963.

Lawyers for Shaw already have got a temporary federal court order stopping the state court case here. They want the three-judge federal court to make it permanent and to declare unconstitutional the Louisiana conspiracy statutes under which he is charged.

Shaw has asked, too, that the Warren report be made "valid and binding" on every court in the U.S.

Edward F. Wegmann, one of Shaw's lawyers, argued Monday that Garrison's sole motive in prosecuting the 55-year-old retired businessman is to provide himself with a forum for attacking the Warren commission.

Socred Nominated

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Peter Robinson, 39, president of Robinson Agencies and Robak Engineering Ltd., was nominated Monday night as the Social Credit candidate in North Vancouver-Capilano for the July 15 provincial byelection. The vacancy was created when provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault resigned to run against national New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas in the federal riding of Burnaby-Seymour.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT is the charge against James Meredith, first Negro graduate of University of Mississippi, who was arrested by New York police Monday. Meredith is alleged to have punched a policeman during a dispute over his attempt to enter a Harlem school about an hour after an ousted school teacher, Ralph Poynter, had been arrested when he tried to keep the principal from entering the school.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined Tuesday for careless driving were: Dennis Vanraes, 1802 Belmont, accident on Kings Road May 24, $32; Beryl Sheard, 4030 Braefoot, accident at Cook and Merritt May 23, $40; Alun Thulin, 3884 Cedar Hill Road, collided with curb on Dallas Road May 25, $35; Hugh Mott, HMCS St. Croix, rear-end collision on Douglas April 24, $40.

'Hasty' Ban Under Fire For DDT in Holland

HONEY HARBOUR, Ont. (CP) — A cancer specialist suggested Monday it would be unwise to ban substances hastily just because they cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Dr. John Higginson, director of the International Agency for Research on Cancer, Lyon, France, told the eighth Canadian Cancer Research Conference such action might cause considerable economic and health problems.

After publication of a single series of laboratory tests on mice in Hungary, both Hungary and Holland banned the sale of the insecticide DDT, Dr. Higginson said.

The dangers associated with the withdrawal of DDT in terms of human health and agricultural productivity are great, he said.

Dr. Higginson said four laboratories associated with his agency are doing research on DDT, although the research is relatively dull.

TEND TO PLAY SAFE

"While the tendency is to play it safe and ban foodstuffs contaminated with known carcinogens (cancer-causing substances) whenever possible, careful consideration must be given to reports indicating possible fallacies in circumstantial evidence," the doctor said.

Dr. Higginson said he did not mean to invalidate present legislative measures that insure safety of substances ingested by man, but rather indicates some of the problems that must be considered in providing professional advice to lay legislators.

Earlier, Dr. Kenneth Endicott, director of the U.S. National Cancer Institute, said funds for cancer research are being cut in the United States as a result of the war in Vietnam.

He told the conference the situation is expected to get worse.

Dr. C. Gordon Zubrod, scientific director of the institute told the conference surgery and irradiation have so improved that localized cancer can often be cured.

As well as being liable for prosecution under provincial statutes, people who start forest fires either on purpose or through carelessness are also subject to stiff penalties under the Criminal Code of Canada.

'PLAYING FACILITIES INADEQUATE'

Sport Activities Suspended

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Junior soccer, Little League baseball and ladies' softball in this area may be disbanded.

President Ken Paskin of the newly-formed Cowichan Field Sports' Association said Tuesday: "We decided it was impossible to carry on without reasonable playing facilities.

"Representatives of soccer, baseball and softball voted unanimously Monday to suspend all activities."

Mr. Paskin accused North Cowichan Recreation commission of acting dictatorially.

"A delegation was insulted last week when we were told there were greater needs such as old people's amenities and a swimming pool.

"This had nothing to do with the playing fields issue. It was put up by the commission as a smokescreen and they did not appear to be the least bit sympathetic.

"We asked for a reasonable portion of the $800,000 to be allowed for in the bylaw to be used on the provision of playing fields.

"We mean business and have decided to quit rather than try to carry on with existing facilities and have to turn boys and girls away."

Results Thursday On Strike Vote By Pulp Workers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Result of a strike vote by about 4,000 pulp and paper workers will be announced Thursday.

Gordon Wickham, vice-president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said the union-supervised vote started today at Crofton, Castlegar, Woodfibre, Prince Rupert, Harmac and Vancouver.

The strike vote was announced after conciliation talks failed over the weekend.

Orville Braaten, president of the PPWC, said the companies "did not demonstrate any real sense of wanting to come to agreement".

Don Lanskail, spokesman for the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, which bargains for the pulp employers, said no proper recognition has been made by the union of the industry's economic problems.

Mr. Lanskail also announced that conciliation talks will open June 24 with the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers. Direct talks broke down two weeks ago.

The international union is seeking a 12 per cent wage increase on a base rate of $2.84 an hour and is also seeking a guaranteed annual income.

The PPWC is seeking a 50-cent hourly pay increase and a guaranteed monthly income.

LAST LAYER OF CONCRETE FOR NEW ARENA

CHEMAINUS — The final layer of concrete floor in the new $430,000 Fullers Lake ice arena was laid Tuesday.

It was an 18-hour job for the 40-man crew.

The 210x86 foot slab required 240 cubic yards of cement and the total cost will be about $15,000.

Underneath the final slab there are three miles of wiring to prevent ground frost, another layer of concrete and 10 miles of refrigeration plastic pipe.

Official opening is set for July 1.

Detroit Red Wings star Gordie Howe will be chief guest at a sportmen dinner in the arena, Saturday, July 6.

Two Scramble To Safety

CAMPBELL RIVER — Douglas Temoin, 20, of 560 Charles Place, and Joseph Lawlor, 26, of Nelson Road, scrambled ashore Tuesday after their 16-foot plywood cabin cruiser was holed on rocks at Seymour Narrows.

Using their life-jackets, the men reached the beach and then used a rope to put the cruiser in a position where it could be salvaged.

Mr. Temoin and Mr. Lawlor were seen standing on the beach by a passing tug, Island Commander.

The skipper radioed the Rescue Co-ordination Centre and the RCMP dispatched a motor launch.

ON TARGET and proud of it are Debra Dougherty, 13, on left, and Sandra Talbot, 12, of Alexander Elementary School. Debra had smallest grouping among 400 students and Sandra scored two bullseyes.

Firearm Lessons Popular

DUNCAN — Only three or four parents refused their children permission to participate in the firearm safety training for Grade 7 students organized by Cowichan school board.

Director of elementary instruction Robert Moss said: "There has not been the criticism I expected.

"It is significant that only a few of the parents objected. The course is intended to teach children the potential danger of firearms and in most homes there are firearms.

400 TAKE PART

"If adults would stop using guns then such a course would become unnecessary but until such time we must warn children of the dangers."

A total of 400 boys and girls from every elementary school in the district took part in the first day of instruction Monday.

The five-week course is being held at the Glenora rifle range of the Cowichan Fish and Game Association which is co-operating in running the course.

Instruction is being given by local RCMP, conservation officers and members of the fish and game association.

NANAIMO MAYOR:

'No Bulldozing' On Amalgamation

NANAIMO — Mayor Frank Ney said today the city of Nanaimo must work towards amalgamation with its outlying communities.

But, he cautioned, the city could not "bulldoze" the communities into it.

Three communities will hold a September plebiscite on amalgamating into a separate community at Nanaimo's west end.

Advisory planning commission member F. A. Schulze said Tuesday the city now is too small for effective planning and development. The whole area should be governed by one body.

NO SENSE

He told the planning commission it made no sense to split the city of 15,000 from the surrounding population of 10,000. It would result in unnecessary duplication of administration and services.

The three outlying communities are Harewood, Northfield and Wellington.

Mayor Ney said it is important to show the communities that amalgamation with the city would not bring a disproportionate tax increase.

SAME TAX BASE

He said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell recently assured him that in amalgamation, the communities could maintain their present tax bases.

Mayor Ney pointed out, in an interview, that a decision to amalgamate did not come from local or the provincial governments but from a popular vote.

The commission passed a motion recommending city council take action to see what could be done about possible amalgamation of the whole area.

Nanaimo needs a separate west-end city "like it needs a hole in the head," Mr. Schulze said.

600 LOGS DAILY

New Debarker Heavy Eater

DUNCAN — Something new to the Canadian woods is being introduced by B.C. Forest Products Ltd. at its Koksilah Logging division.

For the past 10 days the company has been trying out a machine which debarks logs and cuts them into chips ready for the pulp mill.

All this is done on the yarding site.

The portable chipper is the product of Morbark Debarker Co. of Winn, Michigan.

J. T. (Roli) Parker, of BCFP said Tuesday: "It has an enormous appetite — 600 logs a day."

The machine handles trees up to 50 feet long and a maximum of 22" in diameter.

It costs about $140,000.

Trucks are making a 60-mile round trip to haul the chips to the company's Crofton pulp mill.

The portable chipper is producing up to 200 tons of chips a day.

Mr. Parker said the machine can't compete on a cost basis with the Crofton woodroom but made itself competitive in reducing the costs involved in transporting the raw logs to the mill.

In its ability to use up small wood it is an asset in improving the company's close utilization program.

Mr. Parker said the company does not consider the bark to be a serious fire hazard. It will be "broadcast" or buried and will mulch readily.

"We hope this machine can be used in slash areas to provide more fibre per acre for the pulp mill.

"It has such a tremendous appetite it will have to be used elsewhere within hauling distance of Crofton.

The company has an option to buy the machine.

It is working in the Koksilah division in conjunction with a tree shear which can snip down small trees at the rate of an almost unbelievable 120 an hour.

500 Season Tickets Sold for Symphony Series

CAMPBELL RIVER — The concert association here held a meeting Tuesday which turned into a victory celebration.

In the previous week the membership committee had sold almost 500 season tickets and raised $3,200 with the possibility of increasing that figure to $4,000 when all receipts are in.

Lazlo Gati, conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, and Arnie Bo, the production manager, atended the meeting.

"A town of this size that has been able to raise such a large amount of money is a wonderful example of what can be done," Mr. Gati told the group.

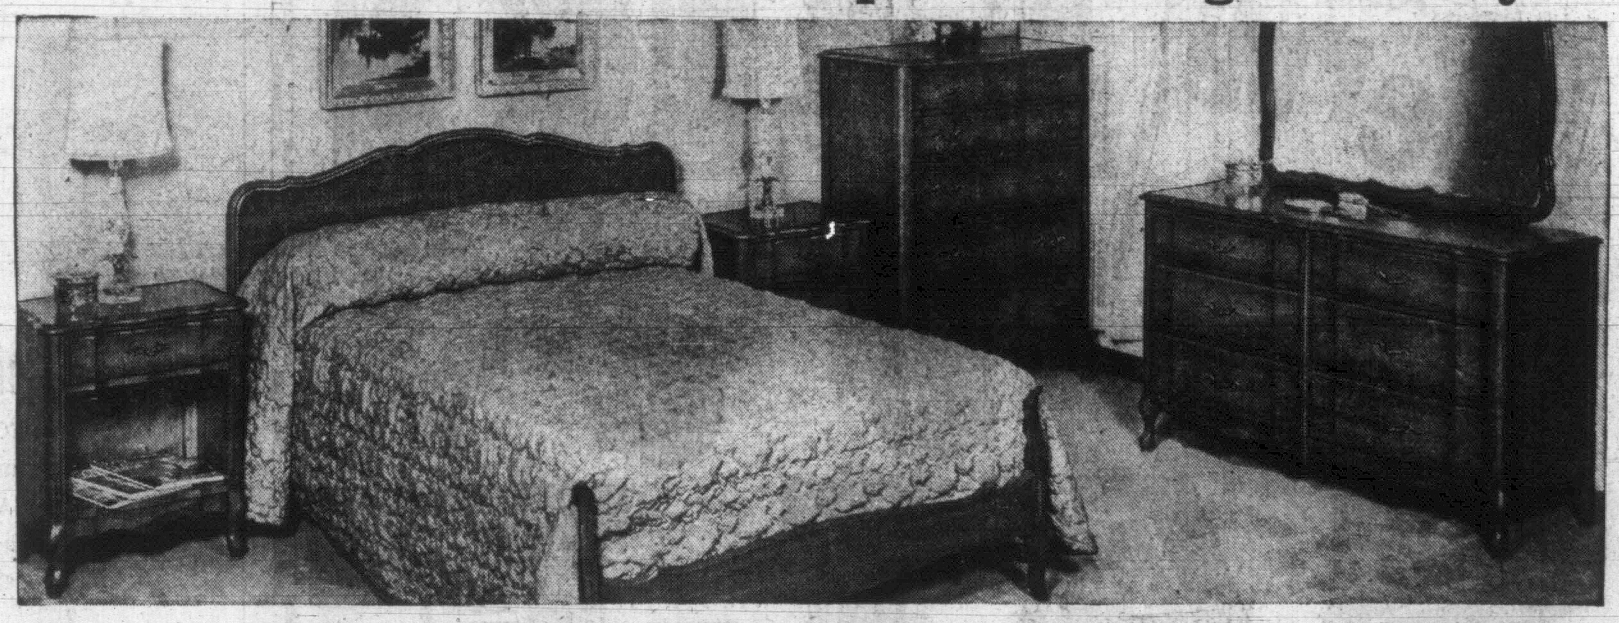

The conductor spent the evening with the committee planning a series of four concerts for the Campbell River winter season which include the full symphony, the concert orchestra and two recitals.

Committee Gives Priority To New Elk Lake Hospital

Operated by Staff Of St. Joseph's

By JIM HUME

A $25 million, 800-bed, acute care hospital for the Elk Lake area has been selected as the first priority in the implementation of the Agnew-Peckham recommendations for hospital services.

And the administrative staff of St. Joseph's Hospital has been recommended as the group to manage the new facility.

A special priorities committee comprised of doctors, hospital and regional hospital district board officials, made the in-camera decision Tuesday afternoon and was scheduled to present its major findings to the district's hospitals advisory committee this afternoon.

One week from today, if the advisory committee approves the priorities committee recommendation, the full regional hospital district board will be asked to endorse the move.

LONG DEBATE

The Tuesday decision came after long debate on the major steps recommended by the Toronto-based hospital consultant firm.

Agnew-Peckham stated the Greater Victoria area should move quickly to end the acute hospital bed shortage throughout the area. But it grouped priorities rather than pin-point step by step procedures.

In the first group were: a 200-bed extended care hospital on the grounds of St. Mary's Priory, Colwood; a new 200-bed acute care hospital near Elk Lake; and major renovations and extensions to Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospital.

The priorities committee, a sub-committee of the advisory committee which in turn is a sub-committee of the regional hospital district board, was charged with the responsibility of sorting the group into individual order.

Tuesday afternoon it arrived at the following decisions:

- Eliminate St. Joseph's as an acute care hospital and cancel plans to build a new acute care unit on the grounds of St. Ann's Academy.
- Build a new 800-bed acute care hospital in the general area of Elk Lake.
- Move the experienced administrative team from St. Joseph's to the new hospital.
- Convert the existing St. Joseph's Hospital into an extended care unit.

No decision was made on the actual site of the proposed 800-bed hospital but it is known that adequate land is available in the Elk Lake area with adequate water supply, highway proximity and near-future plans for sewage disposal.

An alternative site, under discussion for some weeks and recommended by the Capital Region Planning Board, would see the new hospital located at the junction of McKenzie Avenue and Douglas.

The latter site has run into considerable criticism during earlier debates.

OBJECTIONS

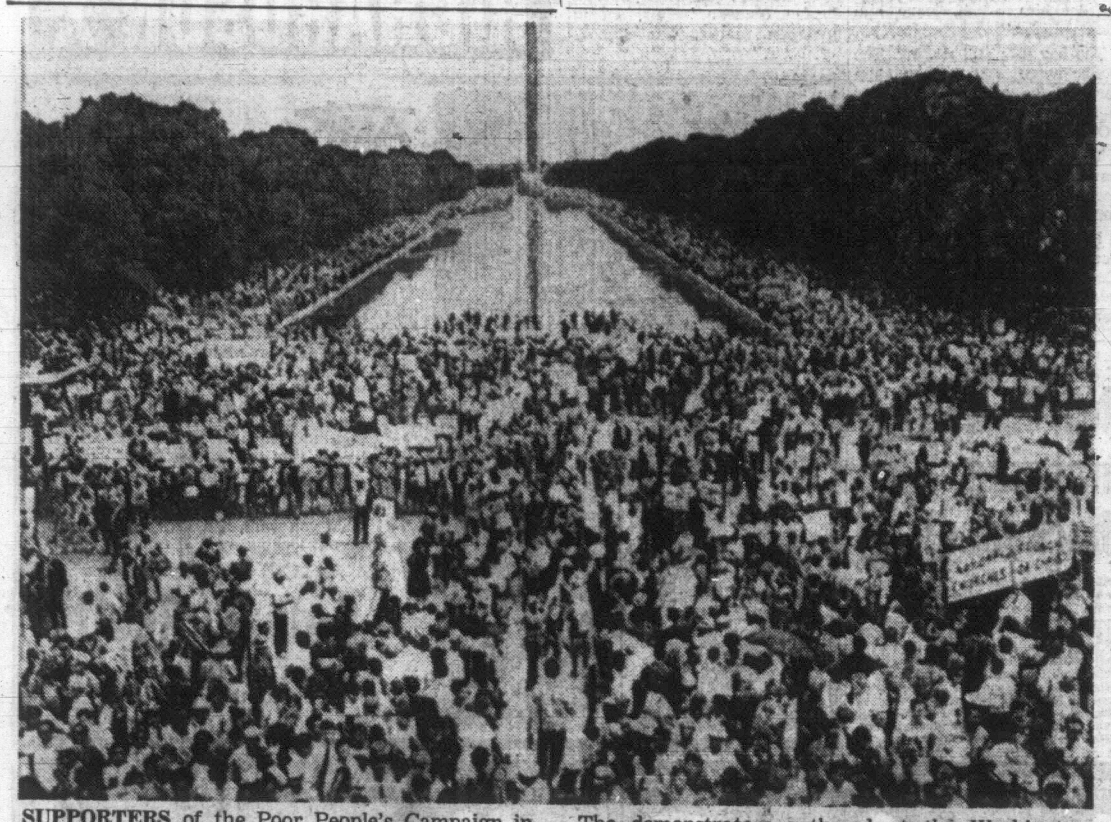

No serious setbacks to the new hospital proposal were expected at this afternoon's meeting but strenuous objections to the recommendation were expected from Rest Haven Hospital authorities.

UPPER AMAZON HIT BY SEVERE TREMOR

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A strong earthquake struck the upper Amazon Basin about 400 miles north of Lima today and first reports said 11 persons were killed and 17 injured.

Hardest hit was the agricultural town of Moyobamba, on the east side of the Andes and 390 miles north of Lima. The quake measured an estimated six on the nine-point Richter Scale, the National Scientific Observatory said.

'Last Non-Violent March' Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Americans marched from the grounds of the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial today to demand a greater government effort to abolish poverty.

The half-mile march took the demonstrators within yards of the plywood and canvass shelters of Resurrection City, home of most of the Poor People's Campaigners who arrived in the nation's capital six weeks ago.

The march never officially started. People just began to move from the tall marble monument to the Lincoln Memorial. One large group was led by Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers Union.

Actor Ossie Davis told the crowd at the monument that "we are advised that the crowd is now 35,000 and heading for 50,000."

ALL PARTICIPATED

It was the climatic demonstration of the Poor People's Campaign for jobs, housing, education and welfare benefits for the poor. Blacks and whites, poor and affluent participated in the demonstration. Some wore business suits, others frayed overalls.

About 4,300 police and members of the National Guard patrolled the area. The demonstration was pledged to non-violence by Rev. Ralph Abernathy, head of the organizing Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

But in a speech at the Lincoln Memorial, Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, said: "This may be the last march which is non-violent and which brings blacks and whites together."

"The nation and the Congress must listen to us now, before it is too late; before the prophets of violence replace the prophets of peace and justice."

N. Vietnamese Death Toll High

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. marines killed 128 North Vietnamese troops in a day-long battle Tuesday near the remote Khe Sanh base after a dawn Communist attack, an American military spokesman said here today.

The marines, who lost 11 men killed and 30 wounded in the clash, received heavy support from helicopter gunships and artillery.

'PM Destroying Goodwill Spirit' Says Stanfield

(Special to the Times)

STE. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP) — Robert Stanfield said today Liberals are dividing the country and he accused Prime Minister Trudeau of destroying the constitutional goodwill built up in the last year.

He also derided Mr. Trudeau for talking about Mozart, an 18th century composer, rather than economic issues in the June 25 election campaign.

"In a sense, I think he is living in the 18th century," Mr. Stanfield said of the Liberal leader.

He said he doesn't blame Liberals for trying to distract attention from "the economic mess" they had made.

"I do blame them for misrepresenting our position. I do blame them for trying to divide the country.

"Canada had been making progress constitutionally. Mr. Trudeau is destroying this. In the course of eight weeks he has destroyed most of the goodwill built up by the Robarts conference and the federal-provincial conference presided over by Mr. Pearson."

CROWDS SMALL, WARM

Mr. Stanfield, moving by helicopter through eastern Quebec in rainy weather, ran into small but warm crowds at Jacques Cartier and Cowansville.

In Shawville Tuesday night Mr. Stanfield charged that the Prime Minister is an accomplice to a smear campaign.

He told a cheering crowd of more than 500 supporters in the western Quebec community that Liberal-sponsored advertisements in Alberta and New

Toronto Turns It On —25,000 Greet Pierre

TORONTO (CP) — High noon on Bay Street: Enter the prime minister. Workers from the heart of Toronto's financial district were out to lunch — and some were actually eating while chanting along in today's swinging parade for Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Skirts — maxi, mini and various in-betweens — mingled with business suits as thousands lined the streets and perched from lofty ledges in pied piper disciplineship to Trudeau's motorcade towards city hall.

The crowds filed and fanned outward, but no one would hazard a guess as to how many were there. Police, who kept the throngs orderly — nearly reverent — said they had seen bigger assemblies. One said: "I saw them bigger but I don't know when."

RCMP officers with telescopic-sight rifles took up rooftop vantage points along the route.

First in the procession came Bobby Gimby and a tiny troupe singing Ca-na-da, followed by a long queue of open cars with hopefuls from Onatrio ridings.

At the city hall square, some estimated the crowd had gtown to 25,000 as Mr. Trudeau began his speech. There, too, it was orderly, as the public address system blared.

BRANDT ACCUSES REDS OF TORPEDOING PEACE

BONN (UPI) — Foreign Minister Willy Brandt today accused East Germany of deliberately provoking a new crisis over Berlin in hopes of torpedoing efforts to relax tensions between East and West.

Brandt's charge came on a memorable day in postwar Berlin history—the anniversary of the beginning of the Soviet blockade of the isolated western outpost in 1948. That blockade lasted 11 months, ending only after a massive western airlift demonstrated the city could not be starved into submission by closure of land and water routes.

Brandt told a news conference in Bonn that he made the same accusation during an eight-hour meeting with Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrassimov in East Berlin Tuesday.

Saigon Gov't About to Fall?

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's capital buzzed today with reports that the month-old government of Premier Tran Van Huong may be on the verge of collapse.

Parliamentary sources said Huong told a group of legislators Monday he was thinking of resigning because of differences with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

But Huong accompanied Thieu to the northern city of Hue today and was present for Thieu's long-delayed proclamation of national mobilization. Associates said the premier made the trip to demonstrate solidarity with Thieu. Other sources said the crisis remains unresolved.

'Won't Ask More Troops'

HUE (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu signed South Vietnam's general mobilization law today and said his governmentt will not ask for more U.S. and other allied troops.

"The Vietnamese government intends to take over more responsibility," Thieu told reporters after ceremonies marking Armed Forces Day.

In the past, Thieu has said more troops were needed above the contribution of 596,000 men by the U.S., Australia, New Zealand and others to ensure an accelerated victory.

Thieu said the general mobilization should add 125,000 men to the regular and militia forces of South Vietnam, bringing their number to almost 875,000 by the end of the next year.

The law also makes 16- and 17-year-olds and men between 38 and 50 eligible for service in local self-defence units. More than 170,000 men already are members of these locals forces.

U.S. officials say the United States has agreed to equip some of the men.

Charges Swapped In Paris

PARIS (CP) — North Vietnam accused the United States today of lack of good faith in the Paris peace talks. Striking back, the U.S. delegation accused North Vietnam of a grotesque distortion of American aims in the conflict.

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnamese ambassador, told U.S. Anbassador W. Averell Harriman the United States had been escalating its fight despite President Johnson's statement that he was de-escalating the war. He claimed the number of air strikes on the North had increased from 2,500 in March to 4,700 in May.

Harriman called Thuy's speech "quite a strong attack" and indicated it had forced him to change his own statement in the meeting today—the ninth since May 13.

He denounced "indiscriminate attacks and shelling of Saigon" by the Communists.

Harriman said the United States wants to make peace on the basis of the Geneva accords of 1954. He sketched a five-point program which he said the United States favors.

FREE ELECTIONS

The essence of the 14-year-old agreement which the United States advocated today, Harriman told Thuy, is "military disengagement, restoration of the status of the demilitarized zone, the renunciation of the use of force, international supervision, and elections free from coercion or outside interference."

WIRE BRIEFS

Missiles Moved?

HUE (AP)—The top U.S. and South Vietnamese commanders flew to the northern war zone today to check on reports of helicopter sightings around the demilitarized zone. General officers speculated that North Vietnamese men were ferrying in Soviet Styx missiles to prey on naval craft offshore.

N.Z. Freezes Prices

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — New Zealand government announced a two-month price freeze today following a labor arbitration court decision not to allow wage increases. The freeze pegged prices at levels prevailing Monday.

Witness Killed

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—A man apparently standing by and watching as sheriff's deputies approached a house early today was shot and killed. A deputy was wounded but not seriously. The man who fired the shots was still at large hours later, Sheriff Clarence McKay said.

Seaway Strike 'Almost Certain'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's support of the St. Lawrence seaway authority in its wage dispute with seaway workers makes a strike Friday "almost unavoidable," a union spokesman said today.

Mr. Trudeau said in a telegram Tuesday to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers that the six-per-cent wage increases this year and next offered by the seaway authority are "fair and reasonable."

The union has said the 1,200 seaway workers will strike Friday morning if they are not given nine-per-cent increases in each of the next two years.

HOPE IS DIMMED

"Mr. Trudeau's statement dimmed whatever hope we had of reaching a settlement," the union said.

Local unions have been alerted that a strike is "almost certain," he said.

Transport Minister Hellyer said after a cabinet meeting today he hoped the union would agree to meet the seaway authority again and seek "an amicable settlement."

WILL NOT BUDGE

A spokesman for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority said an approach to the union was made Monday, suggesting they talk about a one-year or longer contract in place of the two-year one which has been discussed. But he said the government agency would not budge from its position that it cannot offer more than six-per-cent wage increases a year.

Bryce Mackasey, a minister without portfolio who has had special responsibility for the labor department, said in Montreal the federal government would not block a strike.

Seaway workers went on strike two years ago and won a 30-per-cent wage increase, which touched off a wave of increases in other fields and charges the government was abetting inflation.

The Canadian seaway workers are seeking parity with their American counterparts.

DOUGLAS MAKES PROMISE

NDP Would Eliminate Tuition Fees

REGINA (CP) — A New Democratic Party government would eliminate tuition fees for all students continuing beyond the secondary school level, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said Tuesday.

Previous federal governments must share the blame for a "tragic waste of the talents and energies" of millions of young Canadians who were victims of unequal educational opportunities, Mr. Douglas said in a speech prepared for delivery at a party rally.

No government was more guilty in this area than the present Liberal administration, which "welched on their promise" to provide 10,000 scholarships of $1,000 each for needy students seeking to attend university.

The Liberals had also stopped aid to the building of technical schools and cancelled direct aid programs for the universities.

Mr. Douglas said the NDP is committed to federal action in education for payment of tuition for all post-secondary students, a program of scholarships and bursaries, a student housing program and direct capital grants to universities for expansion purposes.

WANTS MORE SCHOOLS

The party also proposed capital grants to set up post-secondary technical and vocational schools and a federal education office through which development funds for education would be channelled.

Mr. Douglas said federal involvement in education, a matter of provincial responsibility under the constitution, might be seen by some as an infringement of provincial rights.

"Quebec might well wish to stay out of such a program—to do so is her right."

But he felt the people of every other province would jump at the chance for increased federal aid. If necessary, there could be two programs, one for Quebec and another for the other provinces. But there was a need for action now.

Just because politicians lack the will to work together, there was no need to penalize Canadian youth.

A text of Mr. Douglas' remarks was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Mr. Douglas made a pitch for pensioners' votes when addressing a crowd of more than 350 persons at Moose Jaw earlier.

An NDP government would "immediately raise the old age pension to $125 a month effective at 65 years of age," he said.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1968—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Visit any campaign headquarters these pre-election days, and you may catch a glimpse of the man of the moment whose name is Mr. Candidate. But whether you do or no, you will certainly observe a mixed batch of people with this for their common denominator: They are busy, busy, busy.

These are the amateur, volunteer campaign workers who toil with but one end in view. The other end, except when they scurry off to grab a jangling phone (who knows, it might be a Voter), is clamped to a chair. The chair fronts a table piled with all the pre-election jazz of the sort that has been turning up in your mailbox.

You can distinguish them from the seasoned campaigners in the dark suits who help Mr. Candidate plan vote-snaring strategy by the fact that most are women. What they want, and all they want, is to see their guy top his riding when the ballots are counted.

How are they enrolled? Some simply turned up at the organization meetings and offered their services in terms more or less like this:

"I used to be a secretary but I've forgotten my typing and my handwriting is just awful, but if there's anything I can do . . ."

Or the recruitment may be more complex: "Well, my daughter goes to the Brownies, and her Brown Owl happens to be related to the candidate, and she asked me if I'd like to help."

★

So they assemble, arrange, and inscribe. They also stuff envelopes and lick stamps (or if they're smart, lick the envelope instead and avoid that uggy after-taste). They also make signs and banners both large and small, and at the end of a long, hard day, sometimes are visited by mild cases of graphospasm.

That's writer's cramp. One of Mr. Candidate's handmaidens stumbled on its other name while checking a medical dictionary for a cure. What she could do, of course, is quit addressing campaign literature. But she won't until the last bundle is in the mail.

When the card of the hundreds she addressed reaches you, please do not scowl if your name is preceded by "Miss" when you're a lawful "Mrs." and have a certificate decked with fat little cherubim to prove it.

She's doing her best, and without her services, the aspirant she backs would come to the June 25 crunch with chances reduced.

Another of her occasional activities is the political coffee party . . . and, brother, if you've never balanced a cup and saucer at one of these functions, you have missed an aspect of modern election campaigning only less important than the doorstep visitation.

★

If it's a suburban coffee party, you and your neighbors stand around for a while and talk about the weather, or your gardens, or the doings of your young.

Mr. Candidate circulates from group to group, and so does your hostess with her bundle of secret worries. Will some spy from another camp grind a cigarette butt into her rug? Will old Mr. Sitzpratt, who holds strong views, cause an awkwardness during the question period that follows the guest of honor's remarks?

When I set to on this screed, our occasional campaign helper was sitting at the other end of the kitchen table with her volunteer's homework.

She decided to type it after her second bout of writer's cramp. Her portable plinked along steadily, and when I asked her if she'd like to take time off for a snack, all I got was, "Darn! You made me hit the wrong key."

This sort of thing is rough on husbands, especially if they are used to being consulted on what they'd like to have for dinner, and what they'd prefer to do this evening. At the moment, I must admit to the merest touch of something mightily like jealousy. But this too will pass.

Election Day, with its huzzas for the victors and its wakes for the losers, is just over the horizon. Then the guys who have been playing second fiddle to Mr. Candidate will get their wives back.

LAUGHING Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson is served by pretty Judi Kendall, vice-president of the Saanich Police Organization for Teenagers. Chief was guest of honor at a dinner for the outgoing executive of SPOT. Dinner at the Princess Mary Restaurant Tuesday was sponsored by the Saanich Police Union. Standing left to right in the picture are Don Hutchings, new president Gwen Jones, former president Cathy Munro, secretary Barbara Munro, and Craig Darling. Seated are union president Const. Norm Christman, Chief Pearson, and SPOT treasurer Ted Marson.

SOCREDS COVERING UP HYDRO COSTS—STRACHAN

'Part of Old Shell Game'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today charged the Social Credit government with subsidizing B.C. Hydro out of general revenue to cover up ballooning Columbia River Treaty costs.

The NDP leader said an order-in-council appointing the provincial highways department as agent for acquisition of Libby Dam flood lands is "part of the old shell game."

"This substantiates our claim that Premier Bennett wasn't telling the truth when he said the Columbia Treaty wouldn't cost us a nickel.

Mr. Strachan said the government will be spending highways department money that should be used for roads.

"Believe you me a lot of roads need a lot of work," said Mr. Strachan.

He asked where the money — estimated at $12,000,000 at one point — would come from if not from general revenue.

The lands to be acquired are in the Kootenays. They will be flooded when the Libby Dam below the U.S. border goes into operation.

MORE SUPPORT

Mr. Strachan said the well-known NDP claim that the Columbia River Treaty costs would exceed revenue by $200,000,000 is further supported by the B.C. Hydro annual report issued Tuesday.

It shows only $69.8 million left in the Columbia fund, he said, but "the High Arrow Dam isn't finished, the Mica Dam is just started and the Libby Dam land has to be purchased."

Hydro acquired flood lands for the Arrow Lakes project on its own, the NDP leader said. The change in policy means the Libby Dam land costs will never show up in Hydro cost figures, he said.

During the legislative session a bill making provision for some agency to acquire land on behalf of Hydro was passed with the NDP failing to find out from the government who would be appointed the agent.

Mr. Strachan today said the granting of expropriation rights to the highways department for other than highway purposes raises serious issues apart from the cost factor.

There is a danger that land owners expropriated by the highways department will find themselves with fewer appeal rights than those who were expropriated by Hydro in the Arrow Lakes district, reporters were told.

Premier Bennett is touring the interior of the province and was unavailable for comment today.

British Columbia received $273,000,000 from the U.S. in the Columbia deal and NDP critics have been claiming the province got the worst of it.

Mr. Strachan made his charges today after telling reporters that he had finally received the answer to the question of who would acquire the land for Hydro.

"Lo and behold," he said. "It's the highways department."

$15,000 FOR INDIANS FROM WIDOW'S ESTATE

A cheque for $15,000 was presented to the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Tuesday night by the estate of Mrs. Elsie Brant of Victoria.

The donation nearly trebles the Mungo Martin Memorial Fund used to assist Indians to study and maintain their heritage and culture.

Mrs. Brant, the widow of John Edward Brant of Niagara Falls, Ont., lived in Victoria for 13 years before her death in January at 68.

Her husband was a direct descendant of Joseph Brant, principal chief of the Six Nations Indians who fought as a captain with the British in the American Revolutionary War, led his Mohawk tribe to settle in Canada and became a missionary, diplomat and scholar.

A spokesman for the estate said Mrs. Brant felt the donation would have put the money to the use her husband would have wanted.

The presentation was made by the executrix, Mrs. Iris Fawcett, 1276 Richardson, to Col. G. S. Andrews, a member of the non-profit society's advisory council.

The society, with about 150 members in the capital district, fosters the work of young Indian students and artists and studies the history of the Canadian Indian.

Mrs. Fawcett recalls Mrs. Brant as an "energetic, fast-moving" woman who concentrated much of her effort in the work of the society.

She had no children and the $15,000 represents the bulk of her estate.

Last year Mrs. Brant travelled to her native England but became ill and returned to Victoria a few months before her death.

SIX DAYS TO GO

Chatterton 'Ballots' Again Draw Protests

By PETE LOUDON

A campaign advertising card issued on behalf of Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate George Chatterton has brought a storm of protest to returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lee.

"It's causing a terrific amount of trouble. We have been kept busy with people phoning about it," she said.

The card, identical to one issued in the 1965 federal campaign, showes an "example ballot" with the name George Chatterton, agriculturist, and a large X.

"Take this notice with you and be sure to mark your ballot with the pencil supplied in the voting booth," a message on the card states.

Taking anything of this nature into a polling place is forbidden. Cards have been left there in the past and no one knows what effect they have on the undecided voter.

Mrs. Lea says she contacted electoral officials at Ottawa and was instructed to advise voters of the regulations.

'DAMAGE DONE'

She said she contacted Mr. Chatterton's campaign office but was told all of the cards had been mailed at that point, "and the damage has been done."

She said she was aware that the same problem arose in 1965 and that Mr. Chatterton had been approached about the impropriety.

"There is nothing I can do about it at the moment," said Mrs. Lea, "but perhaps some of the other candidates can take action against Mr. Chatterton."

If you were impressed with Trudeaumania here on Monday be thankful the hysteria hasn't reached the peak attained in Burnaby Villa where the PM stayed during his Vancouver appearances.

The management revealed to Liberal campaigners that he was beseiged by Trudeau fans offering up to $25 for the sheets he slept in and $20 for a pillow case.

Esquimalt-Saanich returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lea says many voters believe that if their names have been left from the voters' list it is only necessary to bring in the enumerator's slip on voting day.

She points out that anyone in this predicament must apply to the returning officer with the slip and sign an affidavit affirming identity. This may be done at any time prior to the election and will save the voter some time on polling day, Tuesday.

Victoria Conservative candidate Eric Charman addresses a coffee party tonight at Oak Bay Beach Hotel at 8. Thursday night at 8 a similar gathering is being held at White Eagle Hall, 90 Dock Street.

Up-Island NDP candidates—Colin Cameron of Nanaimo, Cowichan and The Islands, and Tom Barnett of Alberni—will join Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich condidates on the stage during the T. C. Douglas rally here Sunday.

It's at Memorial Arena at 8 p.m., seats on a first come, first seated basis.

Victoria made the headlines in Ottawa Tuesday with the account of the Trudeau meeting here, with emphasis given to the splendid setting and, of course, the crowd.

National headquarters of the Grits was elated, and despite the crowd of 16,000 which greeted Mr. Trudeau at Hamilton, they claim the Victoria rally equalled any crowd which has yet turned out for the PM anywhere in the country.

The PM was reported disappointed at the public address system breakdown.

'Knew I Was Going to Hit And Hit Hard So I Relaxed'

A 34-year old Victoria longshoreman escaped serious injury Tuesday in a spectacular fall over the side of the British ship Ixia at Ogden Point.

George Haywood, 1029 Oliphant, was helping hold a boom restraining chain on the deck of the ship when it slipped loose. A rope on which he was standing threw him.

He fell over 30 feet, struck the dock on his left hip, bounced off and fell another 15 feet to a fender log and slipped into the water.

Haywood was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated and released.

"I relaxed because I knew it was going to hit and hit hard," he said.

"I felt myself bounce then hit the fender log. I slipped off into the water and held on to a cable.

"I don't think I've got a muscle that isn't sore this morning."

'Some Progress' In Negotiations Says IWA Chief

Hopes Brighten For Settlement

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Hopes for a settlement without a strike in the British Columbia coast wood products industry grew today.

The official silence surrounding negotiations for the last week was broken with a report of "some progress" by Jack Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America and chairman of the union negotiating committee.

And Syd Thompson, president of the big Vancouver local and a member of the committee, predicted a settlement will be reached this week because of high lumber prices.

Two other members of the negotiating committee expressed hope for a settlement.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan local, said it "looks favorable for a settlement in view of the ever-increasing prices on lumber, plywood and shingles. The industry doesn't want a tieup at this time."

UP TO MEMBERS

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local, said "we're still talking, there's still hope. The membership will make the final decision."

One member of the IWA negotiating committee, however, said although talks are continuing "hopes for a settlement are getting fainter."

Ernest Freer, president of the loggers local 1-71, said union members are dissatisfied with the lack of progress and strike headquarters are being set up in a number of places.

LEADERS WORRIED

Union members have responded — with one brief exception — to the appeals from their negotiating committee not to strike as long as talks go on.

At Weldwood of Vancouver, 30 graveyard shift workers honored a picket line set up by two men but returned to work when the pickets were persuaded to leave.

IWA leaders are fearful such an incident could trigger a larger walkout and harm negotiations.

New 'Estevan' To Be Built On West Coast

City Yard Told Sharpen Pencils

A new coast guard ship guaranteed to a west coast shipyard was announced today by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Local Liberal candidates David Groos and David Anderson both expressed delight at the prospect of work for a declining industry, but both warned that the call for tenders will mean hard work to keep the price competitive.

Estimated cost of a replacement for the soon-to-be-retired CGS Estevan — built in 1912 — ranges up to $6 million.

By comparison, the shorter, but heavier, CGS Camsell cost $4 million nearly nine years ago.

The new ship will be built by a Victoria or Vancouver shipyard by terms of regional shipbuilding guarantees set out by the federal government two years ago, but interrupted with cutbacks in government spending.

Esquimalt-Saanich candidate Anderson said the job likely will be the last of its kind guaranteed to this coast.

"I am delighted," he said. "The yards should take this construction as a challenge. It is up to the companies and unions to grasp the opportunity. The yards should modify their plants to be competitive with eastern yards."

Mr Groos said:

"I hope our Victoria yard (Yarrows Ltd.) will put in a very strong bid for the thing and that we will get the contract. I hope our yard will be competitive enough against Vancouver."

Mr. Hellyer said the new vessel would be a lighthouse and buoy tender, of all steel welded construction, having a length of 240 feet and displacement of 2,800 tons.

It was expected a contract would be awarded within two months and construction would take place this summer.

Ex-Victorian Gets PhD At Tucson

A major landmark on the long educational trail was passed this month by Victoria-born Ernest A. Unwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Unwin, 1757 Richardson Street.

At the convocation of the University of Arizona in Tucson, he received his PhD in systems engineering.

Dr. Unwin started school at Margaret Jenkins, graduated from Victoria high, attended Victoria College, received his BA Sc in electrical engineering from the University of British Columbia and an MS in mathematics from the University of Arizona before proceding to doctoral work.

PROJECT ENGINEER

He was project engineer for Proctor and Gamble, Hamilton, Ontario, and assistant professor in mathematics at Clarkson College in New York before taking an instructor's and assistant professor's posting in systems engineering at Arizona.

With his wife, the former Marion Donelly of Vancouver, and their daughter Jamie, Dr. Unwin will spend the next year fulfilling the tenure of a recently granted Ford Foundation Residency in Engineering Practice in California.

Ask The Times

Q. When and where was the YMCA formed?—A.R.

A. The YMCA was formed in London, England, in 1844 by a drapery clerk named George Williams. Together with 12 other young men, he set up an association for the betterment of young men in an apartment over the drapery store. Since then the Y movement has grown to include five million people in 79 countries.

Q. Can you tell me where Alexander Caulfield Anderson, one time Hudson's Bay factor and later commissioner of Indian Affairs in Victoria, is buried; he died in 1884 and was buried in "South Saanich" cemetery, which we have been unable to locate. H.G.A.

A. The provincial Archives confirms that Mr. Anderson is buried in the cemetery of St. Stephen's Church, off Mount Newton Cross Road.

CAMPAIGN ROUNDUP

Council of Churches Disavows Hate Papers

TORONTO — Two church organizations today issued statements denying any connection with the distribution of what has been called hate literature impugning the character of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Donald Macdonald, acting justice minister, last week termed the pamphlets "as senseless and as unreasonable as the anti-Jewish literature that was published in Germany in 1938."

Mr. Macdonald said some of the pamphlets were authorized by Rev. Harold Slade, minister of Jarvis Street Baptist Church and president of the Canadian Council of Evangelical Protestant Churches.

The Canadian Council of Churches today said it was worried that use of the term "council of churches" had caused some confusion.

"For this reason, it is apparently necessary to go on record that the Canadian Council of Churches, and its member bodies . . . are in no way involved, and repudiate this whole cowardly practice of the character smear as expressed in the current hate literature."

The Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec said in a statement stories about Mr. Slade and the pamphlets had caused the convention some embarrassment. The statement said that "for clarification" Jarvis Street Baptist Church is not a member of the convention.

Mr. Slade told his congregation Sunday there is nothing in the 24-page pamphlets he authorized that has any relation to hate.

He said his object in issuing the pamphlets was to prevent election of anyone "who may be tainted with or show sympathy or tendency toward the evil philosophy of materialistic and atheistic communism."

Mr. Slade had been challenged by Abraham Feinberg to debate next Sunday the "moral and religious issues" raised by the literature. Mr. Slade replied in a telegram the pamphlets contained only truth and therefore were not debatable.

LONDON, Ont.—The national office of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada has protested to the postmaster-general about the distribution of what local carriers term "hate literature" through the mail in London.

Roger Decaire, LCUC national president, said in Ottawa Monday the protest was being considered by a special committee at the post office department.

The protest was lodged after members of Local 4, LCUC, London, complained to their union executive about delivering pamphlets to London East householders from Martin Weiche.

Mr. Weiche, chairman of the Canadian National Socialist Party, is seeking election June 25 in the federal riding of London East.

Several letter carriers—especially Second World War veterans—Thursday said they wanted the public to know they were distributing the pamphlets against their better judgment.

The pamphlets urge the electorate to resist and curb "the world-wide conspiracy of organized Jewry."

★ ★ ★

VANCOUVER—Ron Basford, Vancouver Centre Liberal candidate, says tens of thousands of hate pamphlets are being circulated in Vancouver ridings.

They attack Prime Minister Trudeau for alleged communist affiliation in the past, he said.

Mr. Basford told a coffee party meeting that "hate mongers, bigots and crackpots" had got into the election campaign.

Mr. Basford said the campaign is being well-financed by the Canadian Intelligence Service of Flesherton, Ont.

"People think this is some sort of official body when in fact it is made up of a group of mentally-sick private citizens," he said.

Mr. Basford's campaign manager said later it had first last week and was beginning to effect voters from eastern last week and eas beginning to effect voters from eastern Europe who have an "irrational fear of Communism."

★ ★ ★

WINNIPEG — Prime Minister Trudeau's attitude toward his own province of Quebec is an example of great political courage, former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday.

Miss LaMarsh, who describes herself as a "retired politician" and who said she would never serve in a cabinet with Mr. Trudeau after he was elected Liberal leader last fall, made the comment at a coffee party for James Richardson, Liberal candidate in the Winnipeg South riding.

"What Pierre Trudeau has done is of the highest political courage," she said. "He has taken his feeling for one Canada and told the people to choose."

Miss LaMarsh said Mr. Trudeau has told "his own people they can't nibble away at Canada and still have one Canada."

"I have not seen courage like that before."

★ ★ ★

VANCOUVER — Nurse Garry can stay. An eviction notice served on her because she had election posters in her apartment window has been withdrawn.

Miss Helen Garry was ordered to leave her West End apartment last week because the owners objected to her displaying New Democratic Party posters in the third floor windows. They quoted a rental agreement which banned "trade, business, professional or advertising notices."

But Tuesday, landlady Mrs. Howard Symons said she has dropped the eviction order after being visited by Vancouver Centre NDP candidate Bill Deverell, a lawyer.

Mrs. Symons said she and her husband are convinced they are within their legal rights to insist on removal of the posters —in spite of arguments to the contrary by Mr. Deverell.

"But we are so tired of the publicity we decided to drop the whole thing and allow Miss Garry to stay on with her posters," she said in an interview.

"Miss Garry is a good tenant — and the election will soon be over anyway."

"Another day, another 50 cents!"

. . . HOSPITAL

If the recommendations of the priorities committee are accepted it would spell the end of the hopes of the Seventh Day Adventists to operate a major acute care hospital in the area. It would probably, however, leave room for the continued operations of a small hospital at the north end of the Saanich Peninsula or the conversion of Rest Haven into an extended care unit.

Hospitals, priority committee and advisory committee officials this morning refused comment on the Tuesday decision other than to confirm that it had been made.

They warned that while the recommendation is a major step towards solving hospital problems, it is only a recommendation and that even if approved by all subsequent committees and boards it would still require final approval from the provincial government.

LOFFMARK MEETING

Next Wednesday morning a select committee of the regional hospital district board comprised of Mayors Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, Hugh Curtis, Saanich, Jim Cumming, North Saanich, and William Long, board executive secretary, is scheduled to meet Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to discuss the financial implications of major construction.

The group will be seeking the answer to the big question: How far will the provincial government go financially in implementing the Agnew-Peckham report?

Cost-sharing arrangements at present involve the provincial government for 60 per cent of capital costs, the regional hospital district for 40 per cent of the cost.

The group hopes to be able to take a definite provincial government decision to the June 26 meeting of the region hospital district.

The priorities committee decision has already caused some confusion in hospital ranks.

PLANS SCRAPPED?

St. Joseph's officials, who declined comment pending the official word from the regional district, some weeks ago hired Dr. Harvey Agnew, father of the master plan for the district, to update their long-range projects and advise them on new hospital construction adjacent to the existing hospital.

Adoption of the new concept would presumably scrap their plans for future downtown development.

At Rest Haven, administrator Thomas Bradley, informed of the decision by the Times, also declined comment until he gets the official word.

"You've spoiled my dinner, that's about all I can say. It comes as a bit of a shock because I haven't been informed not even by a slight hint. I can't say anything else at this time."

Driver Fined $1,200

BURNS LAKE (CP) — Ernest Neville, 21, of the Endako River settlement of Palling, was fined $1,200 Tuesday for dangerous driving. He was charged following the death last Oct. 7 of Michael Bayduza of Decker Lake in a single-car accident on Highway 16 west of here. Neville was given nine months to pay.

PM's English Showed; But the Crowd Loved It

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. — "Roller skating Wednesday, Friday, Sunday," it said on one side of the marquee at the Fort William Gardens Tuesday. On the other: "Trudeau tonight."

Inside there were 7,000 people, most of them, this time, well past the age of the arena's roller-skating regulars. A dress in Trudeau Orange, it appeared, can also be worn with grey hair.

He was tired, tired enough for his English to show occasionally the wear of working all day in his second language.

In compensation he got an audience that was ready to cheer every punchline, and the best response of the day to his customary brief switch into French.

He had just come from Saskatoon where his few words of French had, finally, been applauded, but had also drawn a few shouts of "Shut up, frog," "Speak English," and "What's he saying?"

PARTY MEN FOOLED

And at the Lakehead, local party men, as usual, advised against speaking French or talking about national unity. The people, it was argued, weren't ready or interested.

The local party men ended up hearing for themselves the approving roars when he spoke in French and in English about "one Canada with two official languages." The Trudeau speech at Fort William was basically the same speech as he had made in the morning at the Calgary Stampede grounds to 3,000 people, to 2,500 at noon in Medicine Hat, to some 3,500 in mid-afternoon at Riverside Park in Saskatoon. And, with the roles of the two languages reversed, it was basically the same speech he had made in Quebec City Saturday night.

Responses varied. Only in Saskatoon was he called a "frog." Only in Saskatoon did he have to plead, unsuccessfully, with two plucky policemen who dragged out a youth who had just been doing some mild heckling.

The boy waved his one free arm — the police had him around the neck —while the prime minister shouted, "Oh, let him alone. Let him — come on, let him — oh, leave him alone officer."

The boy was still waving. The police were still hauling him through the crowd. The prime minister let out a disgusted, "Oh, what the hell."

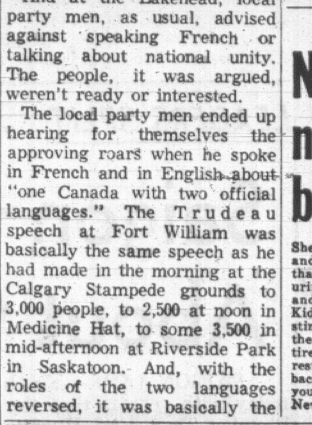

To this he added, "In order to have the just society you don't seem to want, you have to have fundamental human liberties."

His best lines got varying reception. In the morning in Calgary he got a roar of laughter when, attacking Conservative constitutional policy, he said, "Maybe they don't have a two-nation policy. They certainly have a two-policy policy."

But this one went dead at Medicine Hat on the first try. He gave them "two-policy policy" again. Still no reaction.

In Saskatoon the laugh came, but slowly. Fort William caught it on cue.

At all stops there were a few dissenting placards. Saskatoon's were the wittiest. For example: "Ask not what I can do for your country, ask what you can do for Trudeau." This, set in quotation marks, was signed, "P. E. T."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cooler air has moved into the province overnight behind the system which passed through Vancouver Tuesday evening. Cloud and showers have persisted in most areas overnight except for the Kootenays where only a few clouds were reported. A gradual improvement is expected today as a ridge of high pressure slowly builds into southern B.C. This will give general sunshine Thursday, except for showers in extreme northern B.C. Temperatures will be a little warmer Thursday.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1968—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Visit any campaign headquarters these pre-election days, and you may catch a glimpse of the man of the moment whose name is Mr. Candidate. But whether you do or no, you will certainly observe a mixed batch of people with this for their common denominator: They are busy, busy, busy.

These are the amateur, volunteer campaign workers who toil with but one end in view. The other end, except when they scurry off to grab a jangling phone (who knows, it might be a Voter), is clamped to a chair. The chair fronts a table piled with all the pre-election jazz of the sort that has been turning up in your mailbox.

You can distinguish them from the seasoned campaigners in the dark suits who help Mr. Candidate plan vote-snaring strategy by the fact that most are women. What they want, and all they want, is to see their guy top his riding when the ballots are counted.

How are they enrolled? Some simply turned up at the organization meetings and offered their services in terms more or less like this:

"I used to be a secretary but I've forgotten my typing and my handwriting is just awful, but if there's anything I can do . . ."

Or the recruitment may be more complex: "Well, my daughter goes to the Brownies, and her Brown Owl happens to be related to the candidate, and she asked me if I'd like to help."

★

So they assemble, arrange, and inscribe. They also stuff envelopes and lick stamps (or if they're smart, lick the envelope instead and avoid that uggy after-taste). They also make signs and banners both large and small, and at the end of a long, hard day, sometimes are visited by mild cases of graphospasm.

That's writer's cramp. One of Mr. Candidate's handmaidens stumbled on its other name while checking a medical dictionary for a cure. What she could do, of course, is quit addressing campaign literature. But she won't until the last bundle is in the mail.

When the card of the hundreds she addressed reaches you, please do not scowl if your name is preceded by "Miss" when you're a lawful "Mrs." and have a certificate decked with fat little cherubim to prove it.

She's doing her best, and without her services, the aspirant she backs would come to the June 25 crunch with chances reduced.

Another of her occasional activities is the political coffee party . . . and, brother, if you've never balanced a cup and saucer at one of these functions, you have missed an aspect of modern election campaigning only less important than the doorstep visitation.

★

If it's a suburban coffee party, you and your neighbors stand around for a while and talk about the weather, or your gardens, or the doings of your young.

Mr. Candidate circulates from group to group, and so does your hostess with her bundle of secret worries. Will some spy from another camp grind a cigarette butt into her rug? Will old Mr. Sitzpratt, who holds strong views, cause an awkwardness during the question period that follows the guest of honor's remarks?

When I set to on this screed, our occasional campaign helper was sitting at the other end of the kitchen table with her volunteer's homework.

She decided to type it after her second bout of writer's cramp. Her portable plinked along steadily, and when I asked her if she'd like to take time off for a snack, all I got was, "Darn! You made me hit the wrong key."

This sort of thing is rough on husbands, especially if they are used to being consulted on what they'd like to have for dinner, and what they'd prefer to do this evening. At the moment, I must admit to the merest touch of something mighty like jealousy: But this too will pass.

Election Day, with its huzzas for the victors and its wakes for the losers, is just over the horizon. Then the guys who have been playing second fiddle to Mr. Candidate will get their wives back.

'Some Progress' In Negotiations Says IWA Chief

Hopes Brighten For Settlement

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Hopes for a settlement without a strike in the British Columbia coast wood products industry grew today.

The official silence surrounding negotiations for the last week was broken with a report of "some progress" by Jack Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America and chairman of the union negotiating committee.

And Syd Thompson, president of the big Vancouver local and a member of the committee, predicted a settlement will be reached this week because of high lumber prices.

Two other members of the negotiating committee expressed hope for a settlement.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan local, said it "looks favorable for a settlement in view of the ever-increasing prices on lumber, plywood and shingles. The industry doesn't want a tieup at this time."

UP TO MEMBERS

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local, said "we're still talking, there's still hope. The membership will make the final decision."

One member of the IWA negotiating committee, however, said although talks are continuing "hopes for a settlement are getting fainter."

Ernest Freer, president of the loggers local 1-71, said union members are dissatisfied with the lack of progress and strike headquarters are being set up in a number of places.

LEADERS WORRIED

Union members have responded — with one brief exception — to the appeals from their negotiating committee not to strike as long as talks go on.

At Weldwood of Vancouver, 30 graveyard shift workers honored a picket line set up by two men but returned to work when the pickets were persuaded to leave.

IWA leaders are fearful such an incident could trigger a larger walkout and harm negotiations.

New 'Estevan' To Be Built On West Coast

Sharpen Pencils City Yard Told

A new coast guard ship guaranteed to a west coast shipyard was announced today by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Local Liberal candidates David Groos and David Anderson both expressed delight at the prospect of work for a declining industry, but both warned that the call for tenders will mean hard work to keep the price competitive.

Mr Groos said:

"I hope our Victoria yard (Yarrows Ltd.) will put in a very strong bid for the thing and that we will get the contract. I hope our yard will be competitive enough against Vancouver."

Mr. Hellyer said the new vessel would be a lighthouse and buoy tender, of all steel welded construction, having a length of 240 feet and displacement of 2,800 tons.

It was expected a contract would be awarded within two months and construction would take place this summer.

SOCREDS COVERING UP HYDRO COSTS—STRACHAN

'Part of Old Shell Game'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today charged the Social Credit government with subsidizing B.C. Hydro out of general revenue to cover up ballooning Columbia River Treaty costs.

The NDP leader said an order-in-council appointing the provincial highways department as agent for acquisition of Libby Dam flood lands is "part of the old shell game."

"This substantiates our claim that Premier Bennett wasn't telling the truth when he said the Columbia Treaty wouldn't cost us a nickel.

Mr. Strachan said the government will be spending highways department money that should be used for roads.

"Believe you me a lot of roads need a lot of work," said Mr. Strachan.

He asked where the money — estimated at $12,000,000 at one point — would come from if not from general revenue.

The lands to be acquired are in the Kootenays. They will be flooded when the Libby Dam below the U.S. border goes into operation.

MORE SUPPORT

Mr. Strachan said the well-known NDP claim that the Columbia River Treaty costs would exceed revenue by $200,000,000 is further supported by the B.C. Hydro annual report issued Tuesday.

It shows only $69.8 million left in the Columbia fund, he said, but "the High Arrow Dam isn't finished, the Mica Dam is just started and the Libby Dam land has to be purchased."

Hydro acquired flood lands for the Arrow Lakes project on its own, the NDP leader said. The change in policy means the Libby Dam land costs will never show up in Hydro cost figures, he said.

During the legislative session a bill making provision for some agency to acquire land on behalf of Hydro was passed with the NDP failing to find out from the government who would be appointed the agent.

Mr. Strachan today said the granting of expropriation rights to the highways department for other than highway purposes raises serious issues apart from the cost factor.

There is a danger that land owners expropriated by the highways department will find themselves with fewer appeal rights than those who were expropriated by Hydro in the Arrow Lakes district, reporters were told.

Premier Bennett is touring the interior of the province and was unavailable for comment today.

British Columbia received $273,000,000 from the U.S. in the Columbia deal and NDP critics have been claiming the province got the worst of it.

Mr. Strachan made his charges today after telling reporters that he had finally received the answer to the question of who would acquire the land for Hydro.

"Lo and behold," he said. "It's the highways department."

$15,000 FOR INDIANS FROM WIDOW'S ESTATE

A cheque for $15,000 was presented to the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Tuesday night by the estate of Mrs. Elsie Brant of Victoria.

The donation nearly trebles the Mungo Martin Memorial Fund used to assist Indians to study and maintain their heritage and culture.

Mrs. Brant, the widow of John Edward Brant of Niagara Falls, Ont., lived in Victoria for 13 years before her death in January at 68.

Her husband was a direct descendant of Joseph Brant, principal chief of the Six Nations Indians who fought as a captain with the British in the American Revolutionary War, led his Mohawk tribe to settle in Canada and became a missionary, diplomat and scholar.

A spokesman for the estate said Mrs. Brant felt the donation would have put the money to the use her husband would have wanted.

The presentation was made by the executrix, Mrs. Iris Fawcett, 1276 Richardson, to Col. G. S. Andrews, a member of the non-profit society's advisory council.

The society, with about 150 members in the capital district, fosters the work of young Indian students and artists and studies the history of the Canadian Indian.

Mrs. Fawcett recalls Mrs. Brant as an "energetic, fast-moving" woman who concentrated much of her effort in the work of the society.

She had no children and the $15,000 represents the bulk of her estate.

Last year Mrs. Brant travelled to her native England but became ill and returned to Victoria a few months before her death.

SIX DAYS TO GO

Chatterton 'Ballots' Again Draw Protests

By PETE LOUDON

A campaign advertising card issued on behalf of Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate George Chatterton has brought a storm of protest to returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lea.

"It's causing a terrific amount of trouble. We have been kept busy with people phoning about it," she said.

The card, identical to one issued in the 1965 federal campaign, shows an "example ballot" with the name George Chatterton, agriculturist, and a large X.

"Take this notice with you and be sure to mark your ballot with the pencil supplied in the voting booth," a message on the card states.

Taking anything of this nature into a polling place is forbidden. Cards have been left there in the past and no one knows what effect they have on the undecided voter.

Mrs. Lea says she contacted electoral officials at Ottawa and was instructed to advise voters of the regulations.

'DAMAGE DONE'

She said she contacted Mr. Chatterton's campaign office but was told all of the cards had been mailed at that point, "and the damage has been done."

She said she was aware that the same problem arose in 1965 and that Mr. Chatterton had been approached about the impropriety.

"There is nothing I can do about it at the moment," said Mrs. Lea, "but perhaps some of the other candidates can take action against Mr. Chatterton."

If you were impressed with Trudeaumania here on Monday be thankful the hysteria hasn't reached the peak attained in Burnaby Villa where the PM stayed during his Vancouver appearances.

The management revealed to Liberal campaigners that he was beseiged by Trudeau fans offering up to $25 for the sheets he slept in and $20 for a pillow case.

Esquimalt-Saanich returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lea says many voters believe that if their names have been left from the voters' list it is only necessary to bring in the enumerator's slip on voting day.

She points out that anyone in this predicament must apply to the returning officer with the slip and sign an affidavit affirming identity. This may be done at any time prior to the election and will save the voter some time on polling day, Tuesday.

Victoria Conservative candidate Eric Charman addresses a coffee party tonight at Oak Bay Beach Hotel at 8. Thursday night at 8 a similar gathering is being held at White Eagle Hall, 90 Dock Street.

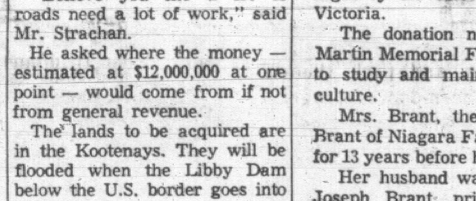

Up-Island NDP candidates—Colin Cameron of Nanaimo, Cowichan and The Islands, and Tom Barnett of Comox-Alberni—will join Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich candidates on the stage during the T. C. Douglas rally here Sunday.

It's at Memorial Arena at 8 p.m., seats on a first come, first seated basis.

Victoria made the headlines in Ottawa Tuesday with the account of the Trudeau meeting here, with emphasis given to the splendid setting and, of course, the crowd.

National headquarters of the Grits was elated, and despite the crowd of 16,000 which greeted Mr. Trudeau at Hamilton, they claim the Victoria rally equalled any crowd which has yet turned out for the PM anywhere in the country.

The PM was reported disappointed at the public address system breakdown.

'Knew I Was Going to Hit And Hit Hard So I Relaxed'

A 34-year old Victoria longshoreman escaped serious injury Tuesday in a spectacular fall over the side of the British ship Ixia at Ogden Point.

George Haywood, 1029 Oliphant, was helping hold a boom restraining chain on the deck of the ship when it slipped loose. A rope on which he was standing threw him.

He fell over 30 feet, struck the dock on his left hip, bounced off and fell another 15 feet to a fender log and slipped into the water.

Haywood was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated and released.

"I relaxed because I knew I was going to hit and hit hard," he said.

"I felt myself bounce then hit the fender log. I slipped off into the water and held on to a cable.

"I don't think I've got a muscle that isn't sore this morning."

GOING NOWHERE FAST are Jamie and Robbyn Bell mounted on Carmen, the most phlegmatic donkey in Saanich. Owner, Mrs. James Bell, 5440 Fowler, says one must coax Carmen in a "nice, soft, sweet way", feed her crispy toast, and then she does as she darn well pleases. On her first weekend here she pulled her stake and toured the district. She will deign to give the kids the occasional brief ride, but mostly she figures, when you've seen it once, you've seen it. Ask The Times

Q. When and where was the YMCA formed?—A.R.

A. The YMCA was formed in London, England, in 1844 by a drapery clerk named George Williams. Together with 12 other young men, he set up an association for the betterment of young men in an apartment over the drapery store. Since then the Y movement has grown to include five million people in 79 countries.

Q. Can you tell me where Alexander Caulfield Anderson, one time Hudson's Bay factor and later commissioner of Indian Affairs in Victoria, is buried; he died in 1884 and was buried in "South Saanich" cemetery, which we have been unable to locate. H.G.A.

A. The provincial Archives confirms that Mr. Anderson is buried in the cemetery of St. Stephen's Church, off Mount Newton Cross Road.

Anti-Smoking Drugs Found Not Helpful

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New evidence that smoking is harmful to both women and men was given to the American Medical Association by several investigators today—along with a report that drugs now in use to deter smoking don't help.

Dr. Colin R. Woolf of the University of Toronto challenged what he said was a general impression that smoking might be less injurious to women than to men.

Dr. Woolf said the use of cigarettes by women has risen sharply since the Second World War and there has been a progressive increase in the prevalence of coughing, wheezing, chest colds and lung disorders in women.

Dr. Charles Schuster Jr., University of Michigan pharmacologist, told the AMA's annual convention that lobeline sulfate, widely used in smoking clinics, had no effect on the number of cigarettes smoked by test subjects.

SMOKING INCREASED

He said subjects who were given D-amphetamine, an appetite depressant, increased their smoking by 20 to 25 per cent.

Meprobamate, a tranquillizer given to overcome tensions built up when people quit smoking, "had no effect whatsoever on smoking behavior," he said.

The only thing that helped, he added, was injection of nicotine equivalent to that which goes into the blood stream from smoking two cigarettes.

This decreased the number of cigarettes smoked by about 25 per cent.

FRISCO FORCES GUN CONTROL

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) —The toughest gun control measure in the U.S. enforcing registration of every privately-owned weapon in San Francisco, was approved by the city board of supervisors Monday night.

The proposed city statute, now almost certain to become law, makes failure to register any type of gun a misdemeanor punishable by up to six months in prison and a $500 fine.

ACTION 'REASONABLE'

Police Shooting Verdict Reserved

NELSON (CP)—Actions taken by Constable Gordon McPhail of the Nelson police force, charged with criminal negligence in the April 19 death by shooting of Walter Polzun, were "entirely reasonable", police chief H. M. Thomlison told a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Chief Thomlison told the hearing that police had reason to believe a break-in would be attempted by Polzun at the Kootenay Cleaning Centre, where the shooting took place, and that police "staked-out" the firm.

He said he had received an RCMP message in 1967 that Polzun had escaped from the provincial mental hospital, and said he considered Polzun a dangerous criminal. Polzun had been convicted twice before of possession of weapons.

A second constable, Allan Herbert Skaley, who was with McPhail the night of the shooting, testified that in conversation with Polzun April 14 in a police cell, Polzun implied he broke into a Nelson store and stole six weapons. Constable Skaley said Polzun told him that if he ever got into a tight spot, he would get as many policemen as he could.

Corporal Keith Nicol described McPhail as a good investigator and never reckless.

Crown counsel R. B. Allan, summing up, asked that trial be ordered for McPhail on criminal negligence charges. Defence lawyer Stewart Enderton asked that the charges be dismissed.

Magistrate Parker Williams said he will hand down his decision Friday.

WILL SURVEY BERING SEA SHELF LAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — An extensive survey will be made this summer of the floor of the Bering Sea as part of a long range program to map all of the 862,000 square miles of continental shelf land adjoining the United States, the U.S. Geological Survey has reported.

The Bering Sea study will include a search for indications of gold, tin, platinum or petroleum. It will be the most comprehensive study ever made of the area off Nome, Alaska, between St. Lawrence Island and the Seward Peninsula, the federal agency said.

The study will be made jointly by the Geological Survey and the Environmental Sciences Services Administration.
